FEARED JUMP

NASSAU, Bahamas (Reuters)—Passengers of the burning Yarmouth Castle had to be urged by rescue crews to jump overboard so they could be saved, the captain of the rescue vessel Bahama Star said today.

"Many passengers seemed helpless and unwilling to climb down the ladder or jump overboard," Capt. Karl Brown said in a radio-telephone interview.

Disaster Struck Suddenly

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — The holiday cruise ship Yarmouth Castle burned from bow to stern and sank in the Atlantic Ocean today and it was feared 84 of her 550 passengers and crew were carried to the bottom.

The cause of the fire was not known. The U.S. Coast Guard said disaster struck so suddenly the Yarmouth Castle, built in 1927 for Nova Scotia service, went to her death in 285 fathoms without sending a distress call.

Two vessels, the cruise ship Bahama Star and the Finnish motorship Finnpulp, reached the scene 110 miles east of Miami, Fla., shortly after the blaze broke out. But when the rescue operation ended, only 466 persons had been found.

The ship's passenger list indicated at least 15 Canadians had been aboard. There were none from B.C.

ALL POSSIBLE SAVED

Capt. Carl Brown of the Bahama Star said "We believe all those who were not trapped inside" the fiercely burning vessel were picked out of the water.

"We have searched the area and we have found no more."

The Bahama Star was headed for Nassau with 360 survivors. The Finnpulp, first to radio word of the tragedy to the Coast Guard, was going in with 94 others. They were due Saturday.

British Overseas Airways Corporation said it would arrange for shuttle flights to carry the survivors from Nassau to Florida.

Six men and six women, burned and in shock, were flown by U.S. Coast Guard helicopters to Princess Margaret Hospital at Nassau.

HUNDREDS WEEP

At 2:15 a.m. Brown said he saw smoke on the horizon, picked up speed and overtook the Yarmouth Castle. She was burning in the forward upper deck and flames were spreading rapidly throughout the ship.

"We passed three lifeboats full of people and called to them that we would return after we got the passengers off the burning boat."

Hospitals Crisis Major Battle Field

By PETE LOUDON

(Why is a rich city in a rich district in a rich province going without sufficient hospital beds? Why is this issue building into a controversy involving two layers of government instead of being quietly and efficiently solved? The Times asked reporter Pete Loudon to explore the issue. This is his first report in a four-part series.)

For the first time in history the 167,000 residents of the capital region will join next month in deciding a common problem by ballot — the crisis in district hospitals.

From Sooke to Sidney, from Oak Bay to Langford, in organized and unorganized areas on Dec. 11, property owners are being asked to speak as one community with one voice.

It will be the first test of the theory that working together they can accomplish what they have been unable to do efficiently, working independently.

So far they've failed to provide hospital accommodation to cope with a lower Island population that is adding 15,000 people—as many people as there are in Nanaimo—each year.

Loudon

There are often as many as 1,200 persons waiting for hospital beds.

Hospital planners say they need $13.5 million dollars in the next five years to catch up.

They say that unless the money is forthcoming, hospitals soon will be able to give immediate admittance to emergency cases only.

Yet despite the seriousness of their plight there is a growing feeling that the hospital referendum is doomed to defeat before the first vote is cast.

On the face of it, it's a simple problem. A stranger might marvel that there should be any question at all about an affirmative vote for the hospitals.

The people need hospitals desperately. In the coffers of governments—their governments—lies the peoples' money. The federal government is ready to contribute if the provincial government is ready to contribute, if the municipal governments of the area are ready to contribute.

And that's where the wrangling starts.

A growing number of capital district municipal leaders are digging in their heels. They say they can only raise money for hospitals through taxing property owners—but they feel everyone who uses a hospital should contribute to its cost.

They say the provincial government, which taxes everyone in a variety of ways, should pay most or even all hospital costs. They point to provincial claims of unparalleled prosperity and declared surpluses in each budget.

Provincial authorities say their present scale of contributions is acceptable everywhere else in British Columbia and ranks with the best in Canada.

The people who run the hospitals and who are scared by the inadequate facilities want fast action. They say the only way to get it is by accepting the present scale of provincial participation.

★ ★ ★

They believe objection by the municipalities would be fruitless and could only cause further delay and aggravate the present situation.

Already one district reeve, Reeve R. Gordon Lee of Central Saanich, has expressed the view publicly that the district referendum will go under.

He points out that a "yes" vote means a property tax boost —and land taxes already are disastrously high in an area where many elderly folk with limited incomes have settled in retirement.

Two Oak Bay councillors, Coun. Mrs. Frances Elford and Coun. Walter Dodsworth, have said they will campaign for re-election in December while urging a "no" vote.

So far the objections are only a murmur. But behind-the-scenes talks with other municipal leaders suggest a growing uproar.

No municipal leader wants to come out against hospitals. But many of them see the issue as another phase of a growing encroachment on municipal rights by provincial government fiscal policy.

★ ★ ★

They are debating in private whether they have a duty to make a public stand against the system. They are sorry the battlefield must be the hospitals.

When the question of united effort by organized and unorganized areas of the capital region came up two years ago they opposed inclusion of hospitals in district planning.

At that time Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell proposed a joint regional council—mini-metro some called it—where representatives of all capital areas would work together on matters of common interest—sewers, parks, and like matters

This has progressed to the point where a vote now is to be

Service Vote Gives Liberals 2

Pearson Now Commands 132

OTTAWA (CP) — Two turnover victories in the armed services vote and a guarantee of support from a Quebec independent have assured Prime Minister Pearson's Liberal government of 132 Commons votes—just two short of a clear majority.

(See also Page 25.)

The heavily pro-Liberal service vote, announced here today, provided the margin of victory for Liberals John B. Stewart in the Nova Scotia riding of Antigonish-Guysborough and Louis-P. Neveau in Quebec's Shefford constituency. Both dislodged Conservatives.

Liberal	131	129	100	49
PC	97	95	116	208
NDP (CCF)	21	17	19	8

Totals	265	265	265	265

Mr. Pearson said the service vote results "are gratifying in that they increase the chances of stability in the House of Commons and the prospect of effective action on a program of constructive legislation which the government will be putting forward."

After the civilian count on election night Nov. 8, Mr. Stewart trailed Conservative D. Hugh Gillis by 19 votes. But when the service vote for the riding was added, Mr. Stewart ended on top by 57 votes. He had held the seat in the previous two parliaments.

IN THIRD PLACE

In Shefford, Mr. Neveu was in third place election night, 13 votes behind Conservative Paul O. Trepanier and four behind Creditiste Gilbert Rondeau who was seeking his third straight victory there.

The service vote shot Mr. Neveu into the top spot, 47 votes ahead of Mr. Trepanier and 61 up on Mr. Rondeau.

Mr. Rondeau immediately announced he will ask for a judicial recount and there is a possibility that Mr. Gillis will make a similar request.

Official counts are being made in most ridings this week by returning officers and after these are announced candi-

U.S. PLANES ATTACK NEUTRAL AREA

SAIGON (CP)—U.S. planes today bombed a village and police post in the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam, killing one civilian and injuring another.

A U.S. spokesman said he had no information on police casualties.

He said two and possibly more high-performance U.S. jets made a rocket-and-bomb attack on the village of Xuan Hoa. A board of inquiry ordered an immediate investigation into the incident.

Union Jacks Torn Down As Africans Slam UDI

(Times News Services)

Noisy and sometimes violent protests against Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence broke out today in a number of African capitals.

The largest demonstration was in Dar es Salaam, capital of Tanzania, where 200 university students broke into the British Information Service, smashing furniture and windows.

They also tore down the Union Jack from the nearby British high commission building and burned it and wrecked the high commissioner's car.

In Leopoldville, Congo Republic, 600 students demonstrated peacefully, chanting "A bas (down with) Ian Smith." They also waved placards calling for military action against Rhodesia and freedom for "all African states."

The demonstrations took place outside the Portuguese and British embassies but no hostile moves were made against the buildings.

In Addis Ababa, the British ambassador to Ethiopia has protested to the government over a demonstration Friday.

Sir John Russell said the incident occurred when about 1,000 stormed their way into the British Embassy grounds, smashed windows, pulled down the flag and threatened and insulted embassy staff.

The ambassador said he received a visit from Ethiopian chief of protocol who apologized on behalf of the government.

In Cape Town, South Africa, a counter-demonstration took place when about 100 Rhodesian and South African students banged on the locked doors of the British consul-general's office seeking to protest British action against Rhodesia.

Negroes Press For Blockade Against Smith

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) —The 36 African members of the United Nations called today for a rail, air and sea blockade of Rhodesia to crush the revolutionary government of Ian Smith.

Speaking for the African delegates, Ambassador Arsene Assouna Usher of the Ivory Coast charged that the economic sanctions envisioned by Britain and the United States "will not be effective without the use of force."

He presented a sweeping resolution to the council urging a complete break of diplomatic relations by all states with Rhodesia.

The resolution insisted that the rebellion "on the part of the Smith regime be put down immediately and law and order established."

It also called for an embargo on the delivery of oil and spare parts and total rupture of rail, air, postal, telegraphic, radio and any other means of communication.

Oil Shutdown Looms Closer

With a Monday midnight deadline set for a strike by oil workers against all major petroleum companies, no break appeared imminent in any direction.

Oil workers president Fred Geddes said this morning he has had no word from the provincial government or any of the six oil companies involved.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson was reported somewhere in the interior.

The only comment from Attorney-General Robert Bonner this morning was: "I think the government's position will be made clear next week if an emergency occurs."

Refinery workers, truck drivers and warehousemen have been on strike against British American for two months in a job security - wage dispute spreading as far east as Ontario.

DEPENDS ON SUPPORT

Because the company has maintained a curtailed service by using supervisory personnel, and because the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' International Union is not organized completely at any of the companies, the effectiveness of the extended strike will depend on support from other unions.

The 110,000-member B.C. Federation of Labour said Friday all major unions have pledged full support for the oil workers.

"Our affiliates will not stand idly by and see these oil companies ride rough-shod over the people of British Columbia," the Federation said in a statement.

"All petroleum products in

HORRORS OF SHIP FIRE RELATED BY SURVIVORS

NASSAU, Bahamas (Reuters)—A badly burned American survivor of the cruise ship Yarmouth Castle told today of the horror of fire at sea.

"I really don't know what happened," Mrs. Mary J. Hamilton of St. Petersburg, Fla., told reporters at the Princess Margaret Hospital as doctors treated her burns.

"I heard screams, opened the door and the fire was all over the place. I became hysterical and I don't know what happened after that."

Mrs. Hamilton was one of 12 seriously burned survivors flown here by U.S. Coast Guard helicopter from the rescue ship Bahama Star.

Arthur Gordon, 53, of Los Angeles, said:

"I just don't know what happened. There was no explosion until the ship went down. I jumped in a boat.

"I heard shouts of 'fire.' I thought it was just a couple of drunks, but after the shouts continued I went out to the lobby.

"I was surrounded by flames. I rushed back in and closed the door.

"My wife and I went into the bathroom. I broke a window trying to escape to the deck.

"Someone later came back and helped me. I believe my wife is on one of the rescue ships."

BRITISH GOVERNOR HAS A PROBLEM

Who Fires Who in Rhodesia?

SALISBURY (CP)—What do you do when you are the Queen's representative and you get fired by a prime minister the Queen has already fired?

British Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs faces that problem today. He was fired Friday by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

But as far as the Queen and her government are concerned, Gibbs remains as the only legal power in Rhodesia. The British fired Smith as soon as he declared the British colony independent two days ago. But Smith remains firmly in control.

Gibbs' ouster was the latest move in the struggle between Britain and Rhodesia over independence.

In seizing independence to preserve white rule, Smith swore his allegiance to the Queen and said he was determined to remain loyal to "this gracious lady, our Queen" whether she liked it or not.

His newly-declared 1965 constitution provided for the Queen to appoint a governor-general "on the advice only of the ministers of the government of Rhodesia." If the Queen did not do this within 14 days, a regent would be appointed to represent her.

GIBBS EVICTED

Gibbs was asked to vacate Government House and The Associated Press quotes sources as saying that Gibbs, a practical man, was not expected to stay on the job much longer.

But Reuters news agency reports that the British high commissioner to Rhodesia, John Johnston, on his return to London Friday night, said Gibbs intended to stay at his post as governor and in his office residence.

Meanwhile, British Prime Minister Wilson told the British Parliament Friday that Gibbs now constitutes the legal government for Rhodesia.

Wilson said Britain will give full consideration to any request by the governor to restore law and order.

U.S. OPERATION SEALIFT FOR CUBANS UNDER WAY

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A U.S. government-chartered excursion boat reached Cuba today on the first shuttle of Operation Sealift, new hope for thousands of Cubans chafing to leave their homeland for the United States.

The coast guard said the 85-foot Skipper K took aboard 110 of 2,000 refugees at Matanzas for their voyage into exile.

The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Diligence was dispatched to escort the Skipper K through the 90-mile Florida Straits to Key West where a receiving centre can process up to 1,000 persons a day.

Another U.S.-chartered vessel, the 75-foot New Pan American, will join the Skipper K in the shuttle Monday. It also can carry 150 passengers.

The sealift, announced in Washington by the state department, is expected to continue most of November. A spokesman said it is hoped the sealift will end before an airlift of 3,000 to 4,000 refugees begins early next month.

It proposes joint action on a sewer study, fireworks control, park acquisition and hospital expansion. Hospitals, say the objectors in municipal ranks, were included over their objection.

They say the province chose hospitals as a battleground—and the province must take responsibility if the mini-metro concept fails to gain acceptance.

In the next few weeks councils of Greater Victoria and speakers in the unorganized areas will relate the controversy to the philosophy propounded (to willing ears) at the Union of B.C. Municipalities some years ago by the then-reeve of North Cowichan, Maj.-Gen. C. A. P. Murison.

The Murison formula called for a realignment of provincial-municipal financing with the municipal property tax levied only to pay for service to property and the province paying for services to people.

They may have enough listeners that the mini-metro vote, which is primarily the hospital vote, will go under. And the people, whose governments are so prosperous, still will do without adequate hospitals.

City Demands Facts On Hospital Scheme

Victoria city council is duty-bound to demand more information about proposed regional hospital construction to prevent ratepayers from buying a pig in a poke.

Mayor R. B. Wilson delineated the problem Friday, following a meeting with Greater Victoria hospital planning committee which is promoting a tax-levy system of capital financing.

There are insufficient details of the proposal to allow an intelligent decision to be made when the question is put to ratepayers in December, city council feels.

TWO-MILL LEVY

The provincial government, which proposes capital hospital construction financing as part of regional services, suggests a two-mill annual levy to replace voluntary subscriptions from municipalities and the general public.

This would be applied throughout the capital region, including unorganized areas which now make no formal contributions aside from personal donations.

$550,000 ANNUALLY

But as the mayor points out, this levy would raise only about $550,000 a year.

The committee has a five-year plan that proposes spending $5,732,500 out of tax-raised revenues with the balance of a $13,573,400 program coming from other sources.

The suggested two mills would then produce only a fraction of the required amount—about $2.7 million, or less than half the locally-raised amount.

"This is why we want to get it clear how the two mills is to accomplish this program," the mayor said.

"It appears it can't be done on a cash basis. We have to know how much money would have to be raised, for how long and at what interest rate."

SIX MILLS

The mayor said it seemed that the hospital planners are really aiming at a 15-year program and there is no indication of how the two-mill levy would take care of it. He suggested six mills would be more realistic.

"It is only fair to the people that the government make this clear," Mayor Wilson said.

Area Seeks Same Ballot

Greater Victoria ratepayers should all mark the same form of ballot when voting on participation in regional hospital costs next month.

The form of ballot was to be sent individually by the municipalities to the minister of municipal affairs with the recommendation that it be adopted for presentation to ratepayers in the unorganized areas.

veloped in fire that sent a column of smoke 4,000 feet into the air, listed badly, capsized and plunged to the bottom at 5:03 a.m.

The 38-year-old vessel was reported to have been in excellent condition and fully equipped for fire fighting.

Marvin DeBerry, production manager of the Tampa, Fla., Ship Repair and Drydock Co. Inc., said the ship completed its annual overhaul Oct. 15 and was "operating beautifully."

NO EXPLOSION HEARD

The failure of the Yarmouth Castle to send a distress call indicated an explosion might have knocked out her radio, but survivors interviewed here said they heard none.

When the Bahama Star left the scene there was only four empty lifeboats and debris scattered over the calm blue sea to mark the remains of the Yarmouth Castle.

W. R. Cooper, a coast guard helicopter pilot who flew into Nassau with three of the survivors, said: "It was a terrible sight. The ship was a mass of flames from bow to stern."

The fire raged through much of the ship before some of the passengers were even aware of it.

U.S. TO INVESTIGATE

The ill-fated vessel was built in 1927 by W. Cramp and Sons Co. of Philadelphia for the Nova Scotia Steamship Corp. She was renamed Queen of Nassau in 1954 but three years later the name was changed back to Yarmouth Castle.

Lieut. Hugh Huleatt, pilot of a coast guard amphibian out of Miami, flew over the Yarmouth Castle and said:

"The water was full of bobbing lifejackets and life rafts with people in them. The rescue vessels picked a few people right off the doomed ship's decks but had to back off because of the spreading fire. Then they picked them up as they went overboard.

"There was nobody visible on deck when the Yarmouth Castle heeled over and sank."

BANDITS HIT THREE BANKS IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL (CP)—Bandits hit three Montreal banks Friday and escaped with a total of $56,000 and police said a bomb explosion in a city church may have been a diversionary tactic in one of the holdups.

Hooded bandits, brandishing machine guns, robbed a downtown branch of the Royal Bank of Canada Friday morning and escaped with $5,000.

A few hours later, five bandits escaped with $16,000 from a branch of the same bank in suburban Mount Royal.

Friday night three men escaped with $35,000 from an east-end branch of the Montreal City and District Savings Bank. They fired a volley of parting shots in the air.

Police said they did not know if one gang committed all the robberies.

However, an explosion at the rear of a Roman Catholic church in northeast Montreal might have been used as a diversionary tactic in the third robbery, police said.

dates have four days in which to request recounts before a judge. Such a request must be accompanied by a $250 deposit which is returned if the candidate wins.

On Friday Mr. Pearson received a message from J. A. Mongrain, an independent elected in Trois-Rivieres, offering "collaboration to assure a stable government."

MUST NAME SPEAKER

Barring recount upsets, this gives the Liberals 132 votes in the Commons. An actual majority is 133 but the governing party must appoint one of its members as the Speaker, who votes only in the case of ties. Thus 134 members are needed for a clear majority.

As expected, the service vote went heavily Liberal.

With 79,146 of the 122,614 eligible service votes cast, the breakdown in percentages was Liberals 63.6, Conservatives 23.5, New Democratic Party nine, Social Credit 2.5 and Creditiste one. The remaining fraction was distributed among candidates of various minor lebels.

The civilian vote was 40 per cent Liberal, 32 per cent Conservative, 18 per cent NDP, five per cent Creditiste, four per cent Social Credit and one per cent for others.

However, service support for the Liberals was down from the 70.5 per cent of 1963. The Conservatives that year got 20.5 per cent, NDP 4.12 and Social Credit 4.6.

The turnovers boost the Liberal party standing in Quebec to 56 out of 75 seats and drop Conservative strength there to eight. In Nova Scotia the Liberals now hold two seats, the Conservatives the other 10.

The turnout of eligible service voters was 64.5 per cent compared with a civilian turnout of about 74 per cent. In 1963 the service turnout was 68.2 per cent and the civilian 79.6.

On a provincial basis, Liberals won the service vote in every province but Saskatchewan, where the Conservatives posted a slight edge. Biggest Liberal runaway was in Newfoundland, where they had 1,342 of the 1,702 service votes cast.

B.C. will be declared 'hot' immediately the union goes on strike at 11:59 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 15.

The ramifications of this decision mean that all industries in B.C. could be shut down."

The federation has called another meeting for Monday afternoon "to state the seriousness of the situation and to map strategy to ensure 100 per cent support for the oil workers in the fight for job security."

FULL RESPONSIBILITY

It also said the oil companies must accept "full responsibility" for any dislocation that occurs.

"The refusal of the oil companies to negotiate with the OCAW on the serious problem of automation can only result in complete disruption of the economy of B.C.," the federation added.

Two unions representing 42,000 forest industry workers warned today in a telegram to Premier Bennett that a complete disruption in the woods industry would result from the oil strike.

"It is now evident that our members will protest the use of petroleum products from strike-bound refineries and distributors," said the telegram from the International Woodworkers of America and the Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

The two unions urged the premier to step into the dispute and persuade oil companies to come to the bargaining table.

The union set the deadline after reducing its bargaining position to an extra 50 cents an hour over two years, instead of 40 cents in one year, and six months' notification of new processes instead of 18 months.

Mr. Geddes said there was no counter offer from the oil companies—Shell, Home, Texaco, Standard, Pacific Petroleums and BA. The companies have made no comment.

There were these other developments:

- A city service station manager said supplies of gasoline will be maintained, if at a slower pace, by distributors using non-union office staff;
- Opposition Leader Robert Strachan of the New Democratic Party said the provincial government should take over the oil companies rather than take action against the employees.

Mr. Strachan said he prefers public ownership over "the narrow restrictions of the Civil Defence Act."

OTTAWA CROWD GREETS CAMPAIGNER

Liberals Must Resign, Says PC Chief

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The last skirl of the last piper of campaign '65 rang out by the tracks of the capital's dingy old Union Station.

For John Diefenbaker it was the final whistle stop of the election.

He came home ready to form a government if he has any luck with his no-confidence motion at the beginning of the new Parliament.

Every other political leader had finished the battle last Monday night.

But for Diefenbaker, the instinctive old campaigner, it was perfectly natural that he should board the campaign special for the final miles back from Prince Albert.

There was a crowd out to meet him, almost as though he had been the victor in the tight election.

DELIVERS WEST

"He won the fight," said Alvin Hamilton, the man who was instrumental once again in delivering the west to the Tory fold.

Over the door of the station hung a premature Christmas sign—"Welcome Santa."

It was inevitable that Diefenbaker should have a press conference and call for the resignation of Prime Minister Pearson and his government.

SACRIFICE

"This is the first time in history that a government has voted no-confidence in itself," the Conservative leader said

"There was the finance minister (Walter Gordon) saying, here I am, take me. I am going to be a vicarious sacrifice for a cabinet which accepted my advice for the benefit of the people of Canada. It turned out to be wrong, so I must resign."

This had never happened before, Diefenbaker said.

"The government must resign."

The prime minister went to the country on the grounds that he couldn't govern without a majority, said Diefenbaker.

"He couldn't get what he asked for and demanded."

The situation surrounding the resignation of Gordon was difficult to understand, he said.

SOLIDARITY

"Under the principles of cabinet solidarity it is not he but the government which should resign.

★ ★ ★

"As far as the prime minister is concerned, if he was ever consistent with his stand taken through the campaign he should resign," said Diefenbaker.

"It doesn't make sense to make Mr, Gordon a scapegoat for the government. The prime minister must accept his responsibility for acting on bad advice."

If the government were defeated on a non-confidence vote it would not mean another election, Diefenbaker said.

The prime minister would have to go to the governor general and tell him it was possible that some other party would be able to govern — the official Conservative opposition.

Storm Wreaks Havoc

JOLIET, Ill. (AP)—A tornado slashed through northeastern Illinois Friday, killing an elderly woman, injuring more than 40 persons and destroying at least 150 homes and house trailers.

The twister hit Preston Heights and Sugar Creek, two suburban subdivisions south of Joliet, and Channahon, 12 miles southwest of here and 50 miles southwest of Chicago.

At Channahon, Mrs. Herman Heisler, about 70, was killed by debris when the tornado smashed the home of her daughter.

At least 45 persons were treated for injuries at hospitals in Joliet. Five were admitted.

Peek-a-Boo Suits Banned for Beauties

LONDON (AP)—Officials of the Miss World beauty contest have put a ban on peek-a-boo bathing suits after four contestants—including Miss Dominion of Canada—showed up for rehearsal in suits officials thought showed too much.

Carol Ann Tidy, 18, of Hamilton, who won her Canadian title at Niagara Falls, Ont., in July, offered a spectacular view through the net back and sides of her swimsuit.

Miss Peru and Miss United Kingdom both had net-covered plunging necklines that went way, way down and Miss Greece used see-through net to join together the scantiest of bikinis.

The title will be decided Friday.

Japan Rejects Stronger Fishing Curb

SEATTLE (CP)—Canada and the United States failed this week to persuade Japan to accept more stringent conservation of North Pacific and Bering Sea salmon and halibut.

Japan said fish of the oceans belong to all mankind.

The failure was announced in statements by spokesmen of the three countries at the end of a five-day meeting of the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission to which they belong.

Takeshi Yasukawa of Japan said his country considers the fish in the North Pacific and other oceans "a common property of mankind . . . open to utilization by all nations."

"No country is entitled to fence off any such resource, denying other countries an opportunity for their utilization."

Canada and the U.S. expressed fear for the future of the halibut fishery in the Bering Sea and salmon fishing at Bristol Bay, Alaska.

Clarence Pautzke of the U.S. and Dr. A. W. H. Needler of Canada criticized Japanese failure to agree to stronger Bering Sea conservation measures.

Needler said the unwillingness of the Japanese to agree to proposed conservation measures in 1963 and 1964 had "permitted an excessive fishery which seriously reduced the stocks."

Pautzke said the U.S. delegation believed the additional measures which it and Canada proposed for halibut conservation would have hastened recovery of depleted stocks.

Instead, the commission kept the halibut controls of last year and increased the fishing season to nine days from seven.

Harold Lokken of Seattle, a halibut industry spokesman attending the meeting as an observer, said:

"This Japanese attitude is a veto of the recommendations of the International Pacific Halibut Commission, a body with vastly more experience and more knowledge of this fishery than any other."

U.S. officials said Japanese and Russian salmon catches in the western Pacific are declining and a continued Japanese high seas fishery between 175 degrees west longitude and 175 degrees east longitude will result in the same declines among North American salmon.

Needler was elected chairman, Iwao Fujita of Japan vice-chairman, and Edward W. Allen of Seattle, secretary. Next year's meeting will be in Vancouver.

'PEARSON BOWS TO RIGHT WING'

VANCOUVER (CP)—T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, said Friday he thinks Walter Gordon's resignation as Liberal finance minister indicates a move to the right in the Liberal Party.

Mr. Douglas, commenting on Mr. Gordon's resignation Thursday, said he thinks Prime Minister Pearson "succumbed to the pressure of the right wing to get rid of Mr. Gordon."

"He (Gordon) has been the chief advocate of taking steps to regain control of the Canadian economy by Canadians," said the NDP leader.

"I'm not at all satisfied that the reasons which have been given by Mr. Gordon are the real reasons for his resignation.

"He says that he gave bad advice to the prime minister, but he gave this advice as chairman of the organization committee of the Liberal Party, which doesn't seem to me to be involved with his position as minister of finance."

National Grit Organizer To Postpone Resignation

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson has persuaded Liberal national organizer Keith Davey to carry on his job in spite of the Nov. 8 election setback.

The surprise statement was issued by the prime minister's office late Fraiday afternoon, one day after former fiance minister Walter Gordon's resignation was formally accepted.

Pearson noted that Davey had told him before the election that "irrespective of the result" he would wish to relinquish his post and return to Toronto.

"At that time I expressed to Mr. Davey my deep appreciation of the energy and ability that he had devoted to the organization of the Liberal party," the prime minister's statement read. "I said as well that I would respect his wishes."

Davey had a long chat with the prime minister Friday at his official Sussex Drive residence, and reminded Pearson of his previous wishes.

FOR TIME BEING

"I restated to him my gratitude for his services to the party, and to me as leader, and suggested he continue in his post for the time being," Pearson said.

"I am glad to say that he has agreed to this."

Davey told newsmen he did not know how long he would continue as national organizer. The only reason he was staying was because of the prime minister's request, he said.

The 39-year-old former radio executive from Toronto came to the job in 1961. He intended to stay in for one election but has remained for three.

The latest move came as a surprise in the wake of Gordon's decision to leave the cabinet because he had given the prime minister "bad advice" both as minister and national campaign director.

Davey and Gordon had worked closely together for this election. Both felt it should be called and were confident the Liberals would win a majority.

Davey in particular had been enthusiastically urging a national vote for months.

On election night he was visibly shaken as the national returns came in. But even in the final hours, when the Liberals had received disappointments in the Maritimes and Quebec, he would not concede that a majority was impossible.

When it was all over Davey was asked to comment on what the results would do to his future position with the party.

"I certainly don't think it enhances my position, let's put it that way," he said.

For a Thorough Overhaul

AS THIS PAPER POINTED OUT following the election of last Monday, although Mr. Pearson did not receive the mandate which he sought he has been given a new freedom of movement, a new deal that relieves him of the personal commitments which he felt bound him in his relationships with the last cabinet.

Recognition of this situation is seen in the prime minister's acceptance of the resignation of his finance minister, Mr. Gordon. It was not the first time that Mr. Gordon had voluntarily offered his resignation, but on that earlier occasion Mr. Pearson felt that in justice he must give his friend a second chance.

Time showed that that decision, while understandable on personal grounds, was not in the best interests of the government or of the country. Mr. Gordon's budgetary policies proved an embarrassment to the administration on several occasions; he revealed at times a lack of understanding of the public mind which brought further criticism of the government's program.

Mr. Gordon was not alone in this category. Mr. Favreau on occasion must similarly have posed Mr. Pearson with agonizing decisions as he laid the government open to heavy onslaughts from the opposition. There was no question of personal honesty involved in these cases, but there was certainly a wide public questioning of the judgment and the political competence of more than one of Mr. Pearson's cabinet colleagues.

Mr. Pearson now has the opportunity to rehabilitate his cabinet with enough new blood to remove the public doubts that became attached to the last government and to create a new feeling of confidence. He should proceed with his task of rebuilding with only one criterion in mind: Who will help to form the best government for the best service to the country? This is a second chance for the Liberal party, even though grudgingly given by the country. Mr. Pearson should show his appreciation of the situation by enforcing firm measures.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

EVERYWHERE you drive along the roads you can find a fascinating tree that has many different forms—the red alder.

When the tree is very young its stem is a mottled dark green with brown specks. As the tree grows older it changes the color of its bark and becomes a dirty grey. The older tree appears blotched with white markings.

Look closely at the older tree with these blotched marks and you will find minute lichens growing.

Do you know that this tree makes its flower catkins and cone-shaped nut during the year previous to flowering?

The catkins hang in clusters from the end of the twigs. In the spring when they burst into flower—the blooms are made up of many florets and are yellow in color—the flowers appear before the leaves.

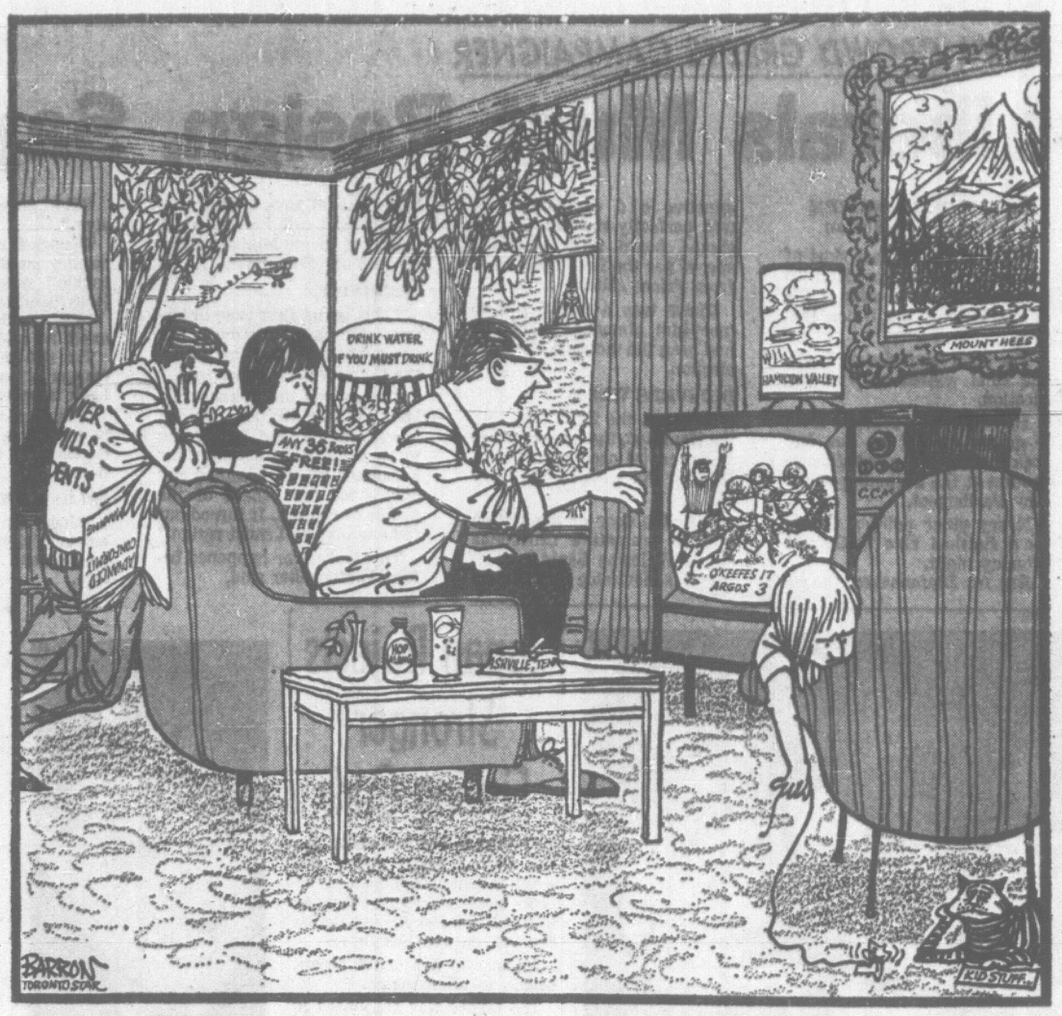
The leaves are three to five inches long and are a dull green, sometimes tinged with red on the underside.

The rather dull teeth on the leaves form rounded lobes and often take a different shape in the young tree.

This fantastic tree follows man wherever he has made a road or trail. It invades burnt-over land, and in so doing creates shelter and enriches the soil for the conifers that are sure to follow: The alder is a short-lived tree but it provides a nursery for other trees. When fallen it rots quickly and creates a rich soil.

Did you know the Indians used the bark from this tree to make a bright orange dye?



"... Hey! ... It's the old bootleg play ... No, wait a minute.... that's a case of beer he's carrying ... this must be the commercial ...!"

Canada and the Machine

THERE ARE SOME DISTURBing implications in an address delivered by Dr. George Haythorne, federal deputy minister of labor, at Queen's University regarding the pressures in Canada to speed up introduction of manpower-saving technology.

Dr. Haythorne said that technological change in this country's industry will probably set in more quickly in this decade than in the previous one and that the number of computers in use in Canada had already increased 10-fold in the past five years compared with the last five years of the 1950s. Furthermore, the trend to computerized operations has gathered most of its momentum in recent months—there was an addition of 170 computers between January and June of this year with another 70 on order.

The need for technological improvement of Canadian industry cannot be denied and, Dr. Haythorne noted, there is still a long way to go before the advance reaches a level comparable to the United States. At present, for instance, the U.S. has about 30 times more computers in operation than Canada although the population is only about 10 times as large.

A paper prepared by the Economic Council of Canada illustrates in an even more striking manner the technological disparity between Canadian and foreign industry. At the end of last year, the study shows, there were approximately 5,000 numerically-controlled machine tools in use in the U.S.—tools which perform complex operations without human supervision. Britain had about 400 of these machines, western Europe about 600 and Canada had only 46. To achieve the same ratio of use of these vital instruments of advanced industrial production, it was estimated that Canada should now have about 350 of them compared with the 5,000 in the U.S.

The key point in Dr. Haythorne's address was that although competitive pressures decree that Canada must catch up in a hurry, a rapidly growing domestic labor force, augmented by imported workers, is being employed in a boom that is partly based on lagging productivity.

In other words, the high employment rate is a result of low productivity per worker resulting in turn from the slowness of Canadian industry to introduce technological innovation in earlier years.

The question is: What will happen to these workers when the quickening move to a higher order of technology reduces the need for their services? It would seem that the challenge of automation has not touched Canada yet, comparatively speaking.

Rough Water on the Canal

ABOUT TWO YEARS AGO blood was shed in Panama as the Panamanians, obviously moved by the deep emotional forces of nationalism, came into direct conflict with Americans of the canal zone.

Demands were made at the time by Panamanians for sovereignty over all the land within their boundaries—and also the elimination of a clause in the original canal contract assuring the United States perpetual control over the big ditch and bordering territory.

More recently the people of Panama have heard a joint statement on the Panama-United States treaty covering new arrangements for the existing canal. The statement indicates clearly the transmission to Panama of sovereignty and the elimination of the clause giving the United States perpetual control. This, it was assumed, would meet the major demands of the Panamanians. The announcement was calculated to strengthen the position of President Robles.

The expectation has not been realized. Panamanians in the main have received the outline of negotiations with indifference—not, apparently, because they are apathetic to the points covered, but because they have a domestic difference with the man who holds the chief executive post.

The major political party in Panama reportedly considers President Robles improperly in office. It takes the position that Dr. Arnulfo Arias should be president and that only he could sign a new treaty as the representative of the people of Panama. A Panamanian spokesman involved in recent treaty negotiations explains that "personal political ambition and intense party rivalry are the reasons for the opposition to the treaty."

The amendment to the old terms may be interpreted as no more than was due to the Panamanians. The lack of appreciation for the American concessions, on the other hand, will not pass unnoticed by Americans contemplating construction of a new sea-level canal through the isthmus.

An Ambitious Indian Project

INDIANS OF THE DUNCAN area are studying plans for a $250,000 recreation hall as a centennial project. That is an ambitious undertaking, as the Indian committee in charge readily admits. A good deal of its success apparently would depend upon special federal assistance since the Indian bands would not qualify under the arrangements for centennial aid to municipalities. But the concept itself is an inspiring one which would utilize Indian craftsmanship and set a fine example of initiative and joint effort. Communities throughout Vancouver Island will watch the progress of the idea with interest.

The Deadlock Over Taiwan Will Not Last Forever

FOR the fourth time in five years the question of whether Peking or Tapei shall occupy the seats that belong to China is again before the United Nations. During these years there has been a striking change in the shape of the problem. Sentiment has grown in most of the world in favor of seating Peking on the ground that Mainland China really is China and that as a matter of practical politics it must participate in any peaceable settlement in East Asia.

Lippmann

As this sentiment has grown, the Peking government has stiffened the conditions which the United Nations must meet before it would accept the seats if they were offered.

If the Peking conditions are to be taken literally as being what, in his press conference on September 29, Foreign Minister Chen Yi said they are, the debate may be regarded as over and the question disposed of. For the position of Peking would then be that it will not accept the seats unless the United Nations surrenders unconditionally, not only on Taiwan but on a radical revision of the charter and on a purge, directed by Peking, of the membership of the United Nations.

If all these conditions are to be regarded as not within the realm of accommodation and negotiation, then Chen Yi must be understood as having renounced Peking's entry into the United Nations. He must be understood as preferring for ideological and other reasons to continue to remain a hostile outsider.

In consequence, the United States' real problem is not how to keep Red China out of the United Nations. Arthur Goldberg was in effect arguing a case which his Red Chinese opponents had already won for him. Polemics are not statesmanship, and our real problem and that of the great majority of the loyal supporters of the United Nations is how the abyss between Red China and the rest of mankind is to be bridged, how the alienation of the Mainland Chinese is to be overcome, how China is to be brought into the universal society.

When we examine Chen Yi's conditions, I think we may suppose that all the talk about the revision of the charter and the purge of the members is no more than a preview of what Red China would argue for if she were in the United Nations.

The real pre-condition is the old one—that Peking must not only be given the seats in the U.N. organization now occupied by Taiwan, but that Taiwan must also be expelled from the United Nations.

The United States cannot honorably agree to this demand or even tacitly assent to it. Not all countries are in honor bound as is the United States, but it is a virtual certainty that enough members will join us in refusing to deprive Taiwan—a state which has 11 million people in it—of representation in the United Nations. Those who will refuse to expel Taiwan will be enough, it appears, to deny the two-thirds vote it would take to expel Taiwan.

It is not certain that this deadlock over Taiwan will last forever, or even far beyond the lifetime of Chiang Kai-shek. The magnetic attraction of China on Taiwan will be strong, and eventually a political deal reunifying the two Chinas is a distinct possibility.

Since that is only a future eventuality, the only hope in the near future for an agreed solution is for the United Nations to recognize Peking as China and to recognize Taiwan as Taiwan. This is not precisely what has been called in the past "the two-China" solution. For there would be only one China.

But the solution would recognize the independence of Taiwan which, as a matter of fact, has not been under the rule of the Chinese Mainland since 1895. It would amount to treating Taiwan, which was conquered and colonized by the Chinese from Fukien in the 17th century, as so many other former colonies, now independent U.N. members, have been treated.

To back the independence of Taiwan is to arouse the opposition not only of Peking but of Chiang Kai-shek as well. But in principle an independent Taiwan, neutralized under a U.N. guarantee, would be in the spirit of the age. If in the end Peking were to accept it, it would not only solve the problem at the United Nations, but it might well be a decisive step toward peaceable co-existence in Asia.

It is, of course, not easy to believe that such a rational and civilized accommodation will be reached. It requires an act of faith to make such a formula an objective of policy. But if there gather behind the idea the preponderant majority of the United Nations, we can at least say that no one who joins this majority will ever need to feel ashamed that he has done so.

The Conservative Rebels Had an Edge on the Loyalists

THE detailed returns from Monday's general election suggest a number of interesting conclusions. One is that the techniques of the professional pollsters, largely developed in the United States, require much more refinement if they are to mirror at all accurately the trends of public opinion in this country. Obviously the final forecast of the Gallup organization, which showed a spread of 15 points between the Liberals and Conservatives, was widely in error. According to the Canadian Press tabulation the actual difference on November 8 was six points. While it is true that the last sampling showed that the Liberals were slipping, this cannot be much comfort for the pollsters since the Gallup report detected a similar, although slighter, falling off in Conservative support.

Western

It is a perfectly legitimate argument that the polls are strongly affected by regional differences and by the regrettable fact that the constituency map is based on the census of 15 years ago.

For example, less than 8,400 votes were sufficient to elect Mr. George Hees in the Ontario constituency of Northumberland but 54,000 were insufficient to return another Conservative, Mr. Frank McGee, in the Ontario constituency of York Scarborough. There were similar discrepancies in Quebec and in other provinces.

There remains the incomprehensible fact that the Gallup Poll consistently reported a Liberal lead on the Prairies although the Conservatives were on their way to sweeping victories in all three provinces. Indeed in Alberta and Saskatchewan, they more than doubled the Liberal vote.

The pollsters might have an argument if some new issue had suddenly loomed large in the last fortnight of the campaign or if Mr. Diefenbaker had discovered some new and remarkable method of bewitching the voters. But if there was such a new issue, it is astonishing that it went unnoticed by the companies of correspondents faithfully reporting the leaders up to the last hour of the last day.

There is another fact which seems to have received insufficient attention. Although Mr. Diefenbaker evidently feels that the results have strengthened his grip on the disputed leadership, returns from the constituencies show that the Conservative rebels were at least as favorably regarded by the voters as were the Conservative loyalists. With the exception of Mr. Martineau (one of the Conservatives who had an assist from Mr. Diefenbaker), all the rebels are back.

Mr. Harkness, who was shabbily treated in the last House, increased his majority in Calgary. So did Mr. Fairweather in Royal, Mr. Aiken in Parry Sound-Muskoka and Mr. Baldwin, an outstanding moderate who could have had his choice of tickets in Peace River. Other Conservatives with reputations for independence, such as Mr. Heath McQuarrie and Mr. Heber Smith, fared almost equally well.

It was the general verdict in 1963 that Mr. Diefenbaker, after the collapse of his government, saved his party from looming disaster. The evidence suggests that in 1965 the leader owed at least as much to the party as the party owed to the leader. Admiration for Mr. Diefenbaker's personal effort goes hand in hand, at least in parts of Ontario, with a feeling that, in the different conditions of the present year, another leader might have achieved the victory denied to the Conservatives on Monday evening.

The rift in the Conservative Party may have been mirrored in the contrasting post-election comments of Mr. Fulton and Mr. Diefenbaker. Mr. Fulton spoke mainly of the responsibility resting upon the parties to carry forward the business of the country. Mr. Diefenbaker, gloating over the prime minister's discomfiture, appeared to regard events as a vindication of his own course in the last House. If the Conservatives listen to Mr. Fulton's advice, we may at least avoid a repetition of the excesses of the last Parliament. But if Mr. Diefenbaker's comments in Prince Albert are reliable portents of things to come, it will not be long before the parties are back in the political trenches, with the prospects for bold and constructive legislation extremely bleak.

SOUNDNESS CHECKED BY ROTTENNESS

By TONY EMERY

Once More Unto the Beach, or, Canute Strikes Again

EVER since we moved down by the water my friend along the beach has been on at us to build a seawall of logs to prevent the winter gales from washing our precious soil out towards Zero Rock. Whenever I met him he would enquire how the wall was getting on, and when he heard my temporizing answers he would shake his head and say: "That property has been going back ten feet from the beach in the last ten years. All you need is a northerly blow when the tide is high . . ."

Emery

I think I might have managed to remain unmoved by this pressure, but my wife crumbled early, and all summer long we have been pursuing logs, roping them and dragging them up the beach; we spent nights rolling them higher with the tide to help us, and learned the hard way that high tide in the summer never seems to come earlier than 1 a.m. Sometimes the logs we had so laboriously won were floated away on the next high tide before we could secure them; others paid a fleeting visit to the bay, and drifted off before we could lay our plans to snare them.

Eventually, however, we seemed to have amassed enough for the project. Our construction boss had given us a list of gear and other necessities; our friends were sized up for their muscular strength and manual skills; some powerful looking students were conscripted: nothing remained but to name the day, and begin the countdown.

In spite of the weatherman's gloomy prognostications, last Saturday turned out to be the ideal day for the operation, which made for high morale throughout. By nine-thirty Ernie, the construction boss, was down on the beach eyeing the logs and making his plan. An hour later the whole gang was at work; the first log was in place, and notches had been cut in it to take the tie-logs to hold it into the bank behind. Next came the slave with the electric drill to prepare the way for the man with the spikes which were driven home by the strong man with the deadly eye.

The boss was everywhere at once, wielding a chain-saw, kicking and cuffing logs into place, and managing to keep an eye on all phases of the project at the same time.

My neighbor was the observed of all observers. He came by his skill with the axe the easy way: by spending a lifetime at it. To see him cutting hard and clean with a marvellous economy of blows was an education to me, and he was no less impressive with the sledge, with which weapon the rest of us were batting about .500, to the considerable detriment of the long wooden handle.

By the end of five hours of labor the wall was up. Three logs high, all spiked and tied, it stretched over 60 feet along the bottom of the bluff, and the eyes that went with the 10 pairs of hands which had raised it were filled with a certain pride in their achievement.

Meanwhile, the women had not been idle. (And if they had been, could you ever have got them to confess it?) Apart from looking after the food and drink, an onerous task in itself and one that presented some logistical problems, they were active in auxiliary roles on and near the wall. One lasting monument to their labors is a pile of wood chips and small offcuts which they collected and carried up the beach, and which will kindle a blaze or two in the winter.

Looking at the impressive structure, which now lacks only some yards of rock-fill before it can be called complete, I find myself being reminded of the famous sea-wall which, so T. L. Peacock says, once protected the people of the plain of Gwaelod from the slow aggressions of the encroaching sea. You may remember that this wall was dominated by the castle "wherein dwelt Prince Seithenyn ap Seithyn Saidi, who held the office of Arglwyd Gorwarcheidwad yr Argae Breninawl, which signifies, in English, Lord High Commissioner of Royal Embankment; and he executed it as a person so denominated might be expected to do: he drank the profits, and left the embankment to his deputies, who left it to their assistants, who left it to itself."

When Prince Elphin tried to point out to this negligent guardian that the wall was in such decay as to give cause for concern, Seithenyn obliged with a spirited defence that is one of the high spots of nineteenth century English literature: ". . . the parts that are rotten give elasticity to those that are sound . . . If it were all sound, it would break by its own obstinate stiffness: the soundness is checked by the rottenness, and the stiffness is balanced by the elasticity. There is nothing so dangerous as innovation."

Rhodesian Move Could Spark Racial Warfare in Africa

By PETER MURRAY
Times Wire News Editor

After weeks of threats and half-hearted negotiations Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia took action—a unilateral declaration of independence from Britain—that could lead to a long-dreaded race war in Africa.

The declaration was no surprise, but it did come suddenly after British Prime Minister Harold Wilson had apparently won more time in which to continue negotiations.

At their last meeting in the Rhodesian capital of Salisbury Smith and Wilson had agreed to set up a joint commission inquiry to study a proposed constitution for independence.

This plan soon collapsed when the two leaders failed to agree on the makeup and terms of reference of the commission. They were also divided on the question of how to conduct a plebiscite on independence among Rhodesia's 4,000,000 Africans and 220,000 whites.

Smith and his white settler followers steadfastly refuse to admit the principle of "one man, one vote" which would result in Negro rule for Rhodesia.

●

Despite a United Nations General Assembly resolution calling on Britain to use force if necessary to crush the settlers, Wilson held to a strictly legal and constitutional position.

He suspended the Rhodesian constitution, formally ousted Smith and his cabinet from office and placed Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs in technical control of the colony.

This step was unlikely to daunt Smith, who holds a tight rein on Rhodesia's strong police and military forces.

To bring real pressure on the rebel regime, Britain will rely for the time being on economic and diplomatic sanctions. The first step was to cut off Commonwealth and other trade preferences and oust Rhodesia from the sterling bloc.

In addition, shipments of all strategic goods, including arms, will be banned and British purchases of Rhodesian tobacco and sugar—mainstays of her economy—are to be cut off.

British credits to Rhodesian industry will stop and Rhodesian assets in the United Kingdom are frozen.

Canada and the U.S., expressing strong disapproval of Smith's action, quickly joined Britain in the economic boycott and other nations indicated they will follow suit.

Rhodesia's only ally appeared to be neighboring South Africa, where a sympathetic white government pledged to continue normal relations.

The Negroes appear unable to mount any resistance to Smith at this time, but as the effects of the economic clampdown are felt, increasing bitterness and resentment by the Africans may lead to violence.

Smith also faces the threat of hostile Negro-ruled nations that surround his country on three sides.

China has already attempted to capitalize on the explosive situation by urging Rhodesia Negroes to take up arms and fight for their national independence. The Chinese pledged support for this "sacred struggle."

Canada's general election left the parliamentary lineup much as it was before, but the political ramifications will be felt for some time to come. Shakeups within the party have already begun.

The Liberals, who failed to achieve the majority they pleaded for, were the first with the resignation of Finance Minister Walter Gordon, the No. 2 man in the party and a close friend of Prime Minister Pearson.

Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker emerged from the election with a handful more seats but is not expected to hang on long to the leadership.

Neither Mr. Pearson nor Mr. Diefenbaker is likely to lead his party in the next election. When that will come depends largely on the policies and strategy now being prepared for the coming session of Parliament.

Mr. Gordon's final act before stepping down was to issue a statement discouraging large Canadian borrowing in the U.S. until next year. He said the reason is Canada's current high foreign exchange reserves and an attempt by Washington to stem the outflow of U.S. dollars.

U.S. Chiefs Outnumber Vietnamese

SAIGON — It finally happened—there are more American generals and admirals serving here than South Vietnamese ones.

There are 39 U.S. officers of general or admiral rank in South Viet Nam, compared with 36 Vietnamese senior officers.

Thirty-seven of the Americans serve in a direct military capacity with 154,000 troops here. The U.S. Air Force's Maj.-Gen. James W. Humphreys Jr. heads the U.S. Operations Mission public health program and the army's Brig.-Gen. John F. Freund works in psychological warfare.

33 Active

Only 33 Vietnamese generals are active in the military sense with the nation's 550,000 regular and paramilitary forces, not including the 55,000 armed national police directed by a colonel.

Major Generals Nguyen Van Thieu, Pham Xuan Chieu and Nguyen Huu Co are serving respectively as chairman and secretary-general of ruling military directory and minister of war and reconstruction.

In addition to filling the major posts in a joint general staff headquarters, South Vietnamese generals command all four corps headquarters and also lead seven of the army's 10 divisions. The other three are commanded by colonels.

The American army and marines between them dispose of the equivalent of four divisions, and the marines also have a tactical air wing in addition to the USAF's second air division.

As the American buildup approaches the level of three corps headquarters grouped into an army command, the number of general officers in the country will increase and a number already here will be promoted.

THAT BENNETT CAMPAIGN: A B.C. ELECTION NEXT YEAR?

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Monday's federal election results could spawn a provincial election next year in early summer or fall.

Premier Bennett was known to be sniffing the British Columbia breeze like a politician straining at the traces before the national vote, and the results may make him take the leap.

He campaigned vigorously throughout the province in the federal battle, as is his wont. But this time he talked only of his own administration's programs and how good they had been for the voters.

Gone was the usual flamboyant but thoroughly serious effort to increase Social Credit strength in Ottawa. He seemed more intent on preventing erosion of his provincial base than on expansion of his federal beachhead as the patron of Real Caouette.

The trip appeared more of a stately tour through every corner of B.C. with speeches spread two or three days apart, giving him an opportunity to raise his voice through all the federal din with a shout of "remember me."

Between speeches he cocked his ear to detect any answering response from the electorate — and later indicated he was happy with what he had heard. He consistently outdrew federal campaigners during his electioneering.

'Mainstreeting'

Perhaps more important, he made use of the time between speeches to "mainstreet" as he did in one famous trip on his own before calling the 1963 provincial election. This recent commonman pulse-taking also was done alone and with the perfect cover of a federal campaign to mask it.

But probably the most important factor in the aftermath of Nov. 8: although the Socreds did not go anywhere federally in this province, their popular vote went up by 27,000 votes and four percentage points.

Granted the NDP popular vote also went up by two percentage points as they gained from the Liberals and Conservatives; in a provincial election it is almost certain that the old-line parties again will desert their standard-bearers to rally around the Socreds rather than see a socialist government. The Liberals slipped two per cent and the Tories plummeted four points.

Provincially-speaking, the worst that could have happened Nov. 8 in the Bennett view would have been an upsurge of Liberal and/or Conservative appeal. The opposite happened, undoubtedly to his delight.

Mr. Bennett has not acted as though he had been repudiated by the federal vote, as some see it. On the contrary, he quickly announced the provincial legislature's next session and dived into preparations for it.

There was no sign of chagrin, only a feeling that things were going on schedule and picking up steam.

But the election did make one major change in the B.C. cabinet's stance—it no longer has that toehold in Ottawa which was used so effectively in winning a Liberal switch-of-mind that paved the way to completion of the Columbia Treaty.

In fact, the NDP now holds the balance of power in Ottawa and it will exert pressures on the federal government for policies that in some cases will be congenial and others highly inimical to Mr. Bennett's ambitions.

The congenial ones include demands that provincial governments be allowed to enter the banking business and have jurisdiction over off-shore oil rights. In both these cases, the NDP and Bennett attitudes are, for all practical purposes, the same.

A Division

In another sphere, medicare, the NDP insistence on a universal and compulsory scheme may, or may not, be agreeable to the B.C. cabinet. There is a division among the ministers and it's not clear yet which is the stronger group.

But in two other areas that undoubtedly will feel NDP pressure on the national government, grave dangers arise to both Mr. Bennett's strategy and tactics.

First is the socialists' demands for removal of the charters which would impede provincial take-over of B.C. Telephone and the various oil and pipeline companies.

If the federal government were to do this, there is a danger that the premier might, depending on the circumstances, be cast in the role of a man denying the benefits of public ownership of the two utilities—recognized by even an "impartial" national government—to his own province if he should refuse to follow through with actual take-overs.

But taking them over would be bad strategy, overextending the province's commitments at a time when the premier is concentrating on power and industrial development in the north. It would be poor tactics to thus cut off a highly lucrative source of campaign funds.

Also, in the coming federal-provincial talks on a new splitting up of the taxation pie, Mr. Bennett's strident demands for more provincial powers and the NDP's oft-repeated demands that the central government's powers be protected if not augmented are bound to collide.

The shock waves could easily undermine confidence in the Socred government here, giving Mr. Bennett's growing reputation as the only real separatist in Canada. It will take a strong political house with solid foundations to withstand such tremors.

What better preparation could Mr. Bennett make than to shore up his mansion with a fresh batch of extra-strong cement cast for him at the polls?

Next year, and the sooner the better, seems to be the ripe time for an election.

Everything Going

Mr. Bennett will have everything going for him then. Redistribution of seats, on his terms in the final analysis, probably will be completed during the coming session. The switch-over from "net" to "gross" budget reporting—taking into account the federal grants spent by the provinces — automatically will inflate his budget from $450 million last year to more than $600 million, and many an unsophisticated voter will never realize it's just a bookkeeping change.

But the biggest "go in '66" sign of all still remains the Nov. 8 vote count. With Social Credit reeling everywhere else across the country, the party was able to rack up an increase of support in B.C. and only Mr. Bennett can be credited for this.

The people did remember him and he's not likely to forget that.

U.S. May Accept 'Two Chinas' Policy

By WILLIAM R. FRYE
Times UN Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS — This past week the United States introduced into UN debate on seating Red China an idea many have long considered preeminently logical: that under the right circumstances, both Peking and Taipeh should have UN seats, the one as "China" and the other as "Formosa."

FRYE

The Nationalist Chinese are entitled to UN representation, United States delegate Arthur J. Goldberg said, if only as the rulers of an island with 14,000 square miles of territory and more than 12,000,000 people.

The defacto domain of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is larger than the territory of 18 present UN member countries and has more people than 83 of them, Goldberg pointed out.

"How can this assembly even consider" expelling Taipeh? he asked.

Administration spokesmen denied this was a hint Washington would be prepared to see both Peking and Taipeh in the UN. But nearly everyone else interpreted it as such. They saw in it all the earmarks of a diplomatic trial balloon.

Behind Scenes

Other countries, behind the scenes, were quietly considering a two-Chinas solution. Canada and New Zealand toyed with the idea of attempting a formal public move in that direction.

The project is, however, extremely difficult to get off the ground. All-out supporters of Peking refuse to touch it, since it is an anathema to Red China—and a major objective, from their point of view, is to curry favor in Peking.

Supporters of Nationalist China are also wary of the plan, in part for a parallel reason—that the idea outrages Taipeh—and in part because they are unsure of the timing. To move too soon, and be defeated, would compromise whatever prospect there may be of trying and succeeding at the right moment.

But what would the right moment be? When Red China becomes persuaded it cannot replace Taipeh? That time may never come; indeed, it may not be true. The United States' voting strength has been eroding steadily in recent years.

When the United States is about to lose? Whether the United States could still muster enough votes to force a compromise under those conditions is problematical. Perhaps it could.

At any rate, obtaining a two-thirds majority in the UN General Assembly for two Chinas —or one China and one Formosa—would not be the same thing as getting them both seated.

Each China insists it would have no part of it; each claims that China and Formosa (or ("Taiwan") form one indivisible whole.

Neither was prepared to accept dual recognition from France. Neither would be prepared to sit in the same UN with the other — or so they say.

The best guess is that whatever Peking would do, no government in Taipeh consisting of refugees from the mainland would ever accept designation as the government of Formosa. Perhaps their successors would.

If the seat labelled "Formosa" (or "Taiwan") remained legally available, even though empty, much of the bedrock American purpose would be served.

Deny Bases

The object of the whole exercise — the military and diplomatic protection of Formosa — is to deny the submarine and air bases of that islan dto the Red Chinese.

Sheer military force could theoretically accomplish that result regardless of Formosa's legal status. But it is incomparably more difficult, as experience in Viet Nam has shown, to defend a territory not generally recognized as an independent entity with the right to be maintained as such.

Existence of a UN seat labeled "Formosa" would constitute such recognition. It would therefore be a commodity of considerable value to the United States, even if the seat were not occupied.

If Red China chose to use her seat, a new channel of multilateral contact with Peking—including possible contact on Viet Nam—would have been opened up. Finally, the domestic political embarrassment depriving from Peking's entry—fear of which has haunted every administration since 1949—would be minimized.

Two Chinas has much to recommend it. The problem is to bring it off.

Leaders vs. Policy

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

It has been said that something of a leadership cult developed in the recent election campaign—that the electorate was being asked to support leaders, rather than party policies.

However, more than half the Canadian voters feel that the policies of a party influence their vote more than a candidate does. Just over a third name the candidate as most influential.

In the ranks of the Liberals and Conservatives, policies are named as of most influence in voting, despite the fact that both parties had controversial candidate leaders.

But the greatest number (67%) to believe that party policies influence a voter most are adherents to the New Democratic Party. Admirers of the Socreds are evenly divided on the question. Forty-two per cent say the policy of a party influences their vote most and 42% say the candidate.

Opinions on this question of party policies versus candidates have not changed much during the past two decades.

The question: "Which do you feel will influence your vote the most in the coming election—the policies of a party or a candidate in your riding?"

The Blank Cheque And How It Bounced

By DOUGLAS FISHER
Former NDP MP for Port Arthur

OTTAWA—"As you were!" the army sergeant's order, has been given to Lester Pearson by the Canadian people. The majority he sought was denied and the traditional official alternative was decreed to be acceptable.

Fisher

The prime minister and his advisers must look upon the verdict as a rebuke. There wasn't any constitutional requirement for this election. It was called by the leader of the Liberals for one purpose only—to get a majority.

By denying the majority but leaving him with the responsibility, Canadians have told Mr. Pearson to declare his purposes, to say what he intends to do.

Not so long ago all of this was elementary. Government and opposition parties always thought it necessary to seek a "mandate" from the people. They would spell out their proposed policies, their general philosophies, and say, "If you elect us, that will be our mandate and we will put these ideas into effect."

In 1965 the smooth, American-style Liberal machine decided to take a new line. They asked for a blank cheque. The fact that they did not get it may become a kind of turning point in Canadian history.

★ ★ ★

But first of all, let us look at what Canadians said to Mr. Diefenbaker. Disenchanted as they were with their Liberal government, unwilling as they were to trust it with a majority in the Commons, they were even more unwilling to place their future in Mr. Diefenbaker's hands.

The function of an opposition is to do more than oppose; it must be an alternative. Still, although there is no reason for them to be despondent, the Conservatives are not the eagerly-awaited alternative. In sum, Canadians are unhappily unwilling to trust either of the old parties very thoroughly.

There are two things which indicate this may be a turning point in our political history. First, there is the sharp increase in the popular vote, though not in elected members, of the New Democratic Party. It took 18 per cent of the vote, almost up half again from its previous percentage.

This means there maybe a "way out, an alternative, another stick in the Canadian fireplace. The second point is the general acceptance in recent weeks on the part of much of the press that maybe a minority government wouldn't be a bad thing to stick with for a time.

The government of the nation must go on. Mr. Pearson has a majority in the radical measures he chooses to introduce—from medicare to retraining of our manpower to the provision of free university tuition.

He has a majority for a clear Canadian-centred foreign policy. He has a majority for a sound fiscal and monetary policy. He has a majority to support a policy of accommodating Quebec while preserving in Ottawa the basic authority for a Canadian state and a Canadian economic policy. He has a majority for all of these in the 21 members of the NDP.

But if Mr. Pearson chooses to do what Mr. Hellyer called the "unpopular things" that have been whispered about, for example, if he intends to do things more agreeable to right-wing elements in the Liberal party, then he will have to get his majority elsewhere.

In short, the Liberal party is in a position where it must make up its mind which side of the crown of the road it is going to proceed upon. Is it going to be a party of Robert Winters or a party of Jean Marchand? It is hard to see how a party sentenced to a second term of minority office can continue the pretence of being all things to all men. It must make up its mind. When it does, if it does, it will be able to ask for a mandate.

One final thought on "national unity" which somehow, by some curious and unexplained alchemy, was to have been served by this election. The Conservative figure of "10" in Quebec looks mighty big beside the Liberal "1" on the Prairies.

Farewell for the time to a cluster of able MPs. I think particularly of John Mulally (L) from P.E.I.; David Hahn (L), Toronto Broadview, and Pauline Jewett (L), Northumberland. Welcome to a chance for renewed parliamentary achievement to Davie Fulton, George Hees, Dick Bell and David Lewis. On balance, it seems to me that the opposition parties have gained the most in able parliamentarians.

LOOKING AROUND AT ART

By ROBIN SKELTON

Paintings by Onley an Unforgettable Experience

Last week I advised you to go and see the Duncan de Kergommeaux show at Victoria Art Gallery. This week, I advise you, equally strongly, to visit the gallery in the University Library on the Gordon Head campus where there is a superb exhibition of water colors by Tony Onley. This exhibition will not be on view very long, and it would be a pity to miss it.

Skelton

At first glance Onley's water colors appear subtle to the point of being unsubstantial. The colors are often unemphatic and the shapes are rarely well-defined. Moreover, almost all the works exhibited appear to be sensitive variations upon a single landscape theme. It is all very pleasant, but it lacks force.

This is only the first impression, however. If you look more carefully you notice that what first appeared to be aesthetic languor now identifies itself as passionate restraint.

The stillness and apparent remoteness of many of these landscapes imply a surrounding turbulence and imminent challenge.

Look, for example, at Silent Bay in which the mass of dark green behind the white foreshore and uneasily balanced rocks appears to be gathering itself for a decision which will unbalance everything about it.

Look at Embryonic Landscape, where it seems as if the black shape upon one of the rocks is just about to become something else, and something disturbing.

The same use of a black shape whose indefinite quality is an aspect of the overwhelming range of its potential occurs in Personal Landscape. And in Solitary Boulders the rock shapes are huddled in a dead white isolated place beneath a thickening ominous sky.

In these works, it seems to me, Onley has created powerful drama by means of an almost lyrical restraint. The delicacy of his tones is such that even the smallest contrast appears brutal.

Thus, in Landscape and in another untitled work beside it the texture of the graphite contrasts with that of the water color to such effect that these two works appear almost harsh in the context of the exhibition as a whole.

For the most part these works make their dramatic point by suggesting a stillness about to be overthrown. There are, however, some paintings in which movement plays an important part.

Thus, in Inland Passage the pale rock-shape in the foreground appears to be about to attempt a passage between the two black rock shapes in the middle distance in the hope of reaching a mistily blue country upon the horizon. The passage is narrow and threatening.

I thought, myself, of Odysseus faced with Scylla and Charibdis. You may find other myths. It does, however, seem to me that Onley is working in mythic terms.

His landscape is symbolic, not allegorical. It describes fundamental dramas and crises of the human mind and spirit. The boulders are creatures, and the landscapes are animated by an intelligence.

Sometimes, indeed, the landscapes appear to be actually in movement. Watching them is like gazing through a telescope at strange creatures lost in their own solitude who are performing manoevres which we can only dimly understand.

This is, of course, only one man's view of the Onley mythology, and I give it you less because I think it true than because I think it illustrates that evocative power which these watercolours possess.

They may evoke other dramas and tensions for other observers, but every sensitive observer will find drama and tension present.

Some will, perhaps, see them most clearly in the use of definite black shapes placed in opposition to less definite and lighter areas as in In the Absence of the Scarecrow.

Some may find excitement in the deft use of torn edges in those watercolours that also make use of collage techniques.

Everybody, I should hope, will detect the strength and delicate tension of Dialogue, the only completely non-figurative work in the show, which creates a conversation of forms and tones of astonishing subtlety and wit.

Wit is one of Onley's characteristics. I do not mean that he is funny, but that he surprises us with unexpected accuracies and handles implications with an easy mastery that the rest of us cannot accomplish when handling simple matters of observation.

This mastery has, clearly, emerged over the years. There is little of it in the few early watercolours of 1945 and 1946 which are also in this exhibition. They are charming, and reveal considerable subtlety of tone, but they do not have the power of the later work.

In this later work—and all of the paintings I have mentioned were made in 1965—Onley reveals himself to be a painter of real stature.

Go and see this exhibition. It is an experience you will not forget.

Stimulate Taste-Buds With Colorful Books

For the discerning parent who would like to counteract the sleazy stuff that is flaunted before today's children in print and on screen, books provide one of the best answers.

Every age group, in inconceivable variety is catered to by publishers, especially at this time of year with Santa's sleigh bells jingling in the near-distance.

Browsing through some of the local bookstore juvenile shelves I am filled with a nostalgic desire to be "a child again just for tonight"—long enough, that is to be back on the receiving end of some of these delights.

They are delicious to look at and touch and brimming cover to cover with not only the stuff that dreams are made of, but that knowledge and understanding and taste are made of.

It's no use waiting until the youngsters are in their teens and then wishing you could interest them in reading a book.

START YOUNG

The appetite for books must be awakened in the pre-school years when color and tactile sensation are of major importance and "tell-me-a-story" tugs at parental invention.

One of Britain's most imaginative and brilliant artists and illustrators of children's books, is Brian Wildsmith. At present he illustrates exclusively for Oxford University Press.

Four of the books I have seen reveal a rich, glowing sense of color harmony and a vivid humor, the sort of story-telling talent that has instant appeal for youngsters.

Brian Wildsmith's ABC and Brian Wildsmith's 1 2 3, both Oxford, priced at $3.25, will do a lot to help your tot's first attempts in recognition of letters and in counting from one to 10.

At the same time they are books that make the learning process seem a fun-filled, vital, colorful experience and stimulate his artistic taste buds. It was ABC which won him the Kate Greenaway award and made his reputation.

COLLECTORS' ITEMS

More of Wildsmith's work is to be found in the Oxford Book of Poetry for Children (11-year-olds and upwards) published some time ago but worthy of becoming a collector's item.

Latest to come off the Oxford presses is a fable by La Fontaine, The Rich Man and the Shoe-maker.

The richness of the full-color art work will make this fascinating to all ages but the simple story, told in few words is intended for six-to-eight-year-olds.

Its moral—that money does not bring happiness—is ideally sound but the Canadian-American moppet may not be as convinced by it as he will be entertained.

OPEN SHELF

By John Mika

The time-bombs are blooming again in the province of Quebec and a timely book has arrived here in translation which helps the English-speaking half understand a little better the minds of those separatists who plant the deadly packets.

The book, entitled Ethel and the Terrorists, was written by Claude Jasmin and published last year in French. With the help of a Canada Council grant, it has been ably translated by David S. Walker and now appears in English under the impriment of Harvest House Ltd.

This book is a work of fiction, not a social worker's analysis of the motives that drive the FLQ members in their attempts to destroy a past, and it is very readable fiction too.

So readable, that the above reminder is needed to prevent one from drawing conclusions as though the book was a statement of facts.

The story is believable largely because of the author's style.

* * *

Told in the first person by a youth who is making his getaway from Montreal after planting one of the bombs, the narrative is rendered in nervous twitches, jumping from present to past, silent thought to spoken word much in the manner one would expect from a fugitive. It's not exactly stream of consciousness because there is nothing of even the weird logic that the undisturbed flow of thought produces.

The hero is totally illogical, but entirely human and young.

Ethel, the heroine of the story, flees with the bomber to New York because she loves this young French-Canadian.

The jacket blurb on the book draws great symbolic significance from the fact that she is a Jewess—overtones of the success of another race to survive as a minority attracting the French-Canadian psyche and so on—but I take a different view.

Ethel constantly probes for the answer, and the bomber just as consistently eludes the question, of the major riddle: was someone killed by the bomb? Was the package an elaborately staged but childish prank by young nationalists or was it in fact the lethel expression of a deep hatred intent on spilling blood?

* * *

The question throbs painfully throughout this short book, heightening into prickly suspense as it becomes clear that Ethel's conscience will force her to leave her lover if he has become nothing more than a member of a murder ring bearing a resemblance, however remote, to the racially and politically-inspired Nazi massacre of Jews.

The ending, I think, strengthens the realism of the story because the answer is Yes, there was a fatality, and No, love does not rest on idealogical grounds.

I liked the book for itself but, despite my own reminder I can't help trying to read social significance into its tale.

To me, Ethel and the Terrorist is a more potent slap in the face of English-Canada than any FLQ bomb because it seeks to awaken rather than anger us.

It portrays humans and some of the causes of their belligerence and thereby blasts away some portion of indifference that is beyond the power of a mere bomb.

In its own fashion, it reaffirms the old adage that the pen is mightier than the sword.

Problems Analyzed

"SEXUAL LIFE AFTER SIXTY" by Isadore Rubin. General Publishing Co. Ltd. 1965, 235 pages. References, Notes and Index. $6.95.

Reviewed by M. Schierbeck

This book is an attempt to demolish many misconceptions which, in the author's opinion, hinders a healthy expression of sexuality in the later years of life.

Drawing on the most recent clinical and research data about sex functioning and its problems after sixty years of age he strongly advocates the modern idea of a successfully extended sexual life for older people.

He examines at length the numerous problems which may beset the elderly in this connection, physically and mentally, and sincerely believes that fuller information on the subject might lead to a general recognition of normality of sex even at an advanced age, and of older people's right to express their sexuality freely and without a sense of guilt.

Dr. Rubins book contains a great deal of useful information which will undoubtedly clarify a number of questions, but at the same time it leaves the reader with the impression of a somewhat artificial attempt to prolong a period of life beyond the intention of nature.

EXCITING PIANIST

Johannesen in Front Rank

Soloist for the next trio of Victoria Symphony concerts, is a young, attractive and sensational Canadian pianist—Audrey Johannesen.

Miss Johannesen, who started her studies in Canada at the age of five and achieved her ARCT at 15, then went to England where she studied at the Royal Academy, won most major prizes and awards including the McFarren Gold Medal, gained her LRAM and appeared at the Albert Hall.

Further study in Belgium with the Spanish pianist Eduardo del Pueyo saw her win the Premier Prix and Prix Van Cutsem.

Returning to Canada she began a concert career that brought her acclaim as one of this country's foremost pianists and prompted adjectives such as "exciting," "poised," "innate musicality" and such remarks as "she is mistress of heroics and Lisztian bravura."

With Otto-Werner Mueller and Victoria Symphony she will play the Bach Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor and Ravel's Nights in the Gardens of Spain.

The program will be presented in the Royal Theatre Nov. 28 and 29 and previewed in Duncan, Nov. 26.

Trio Triumphant

By AUDREY St.D. JOHNSON

The several hundred city music lovers who are genuine in their anxiety to see Victoria in possession of a really fine concert grand piano, bought themselves an evening of rare delight when they purchased a ticket for the School of Music faculty trio concert at McPherson Playhouse.

Total proceeds of the Royal Trust Company-sposored event went to the already established piano purchase fund.

The artists, Robin Wood, pianist, Jean Angers, violinist and Hans Siegrist, cellist, selected a balanced, appealing program of ideal length, for it left one much inclined for more.

For those who think of chamber music as being dull or too estoric to appeal to the average taste, Wednesday evening's concert would have been quite a revelation.

Of the two trios—Haydn's in C and Mendelssohn's in D minor—the latter was quite unfamiliar to me yet instantly entrancing, with its abounding melodic beauty, vivacious scherzo and stirring finale.

The lively Haydn has a lilting andante and continuously bubbles with charm and good humor.

Mr. Wood, at the piano, led the ensemble with the easy authority born of his several years' experience in the medium abroad.

In fact all three musicians have had considerable experience in this form of ensemble work. But what is truly remarkable is that in so short a time since their association here began, such a keen artistic rapport should have grown between them.

That they see closely eye-to-eye in matters of interpretation brings about a stability in performance, a clarity and a sense of freedom within the discipline of the form that makes it exciting to contemplate what they may accomplish after a year or so.

Haydn's Gypsy Rondo, nimbly done at a dazzling tempo, was the encore.

Mr. Wood's solo performance of Chopin's B minor Sonata made one wish that this romantic and highly pianistic work might be heard more often. This is Chopin at the height of his powers of invention.

The sensitive shapings of phrases, the tonal colorings and the power and bravura of the finale brought Mr. Wood a prolonged ovation from the nearly full house.

The Women's Committee of the School of Music were associated in the sponsoring of this concert, the result of which is that several hundred dollars have been added to the piano fund which will have been brought to approximately $3,000.

It would be pretty wonderful if more people and business houses would interest themselves in the project and come up with ideas for getting the ultimate $5,000, or with donations of their own.

It is not only a question of having a good instrument on hand for visiting and local professional musicians.

As Mr. Wood so truly said, Wednesday, the availability of a first class instrument upon which they can perform from time to time, is essential to the proper development of the gifted student.

Well, perhaps the principal that God helps those who help themselves will apply and the rest of the necessary funds will appear from some unexpected source before too much time has gone by.

In the meanwhile, I join with the many who expressed the hope that Messrs. Wood, Angers and Siegrist will not let too much time go by before offering us another such concert as this.

UVIC PLAYERS

Search for Realism

Sometimes realism in drama is difficult to obtain. When the University of Victoria Players Club decided to put on A View From the Bridge, they were faced with a unique problem.

In the last scene of the play, there is a knife-fight which requires a special type of switchblade knife. A stiletto knife is illegal and very difficult to find.

Early in the fall the students and director started searching for such a weapon. Some students visiting in Vancouver and San Francisco were asked to help, but without success. Finally Robert Hedley, the director, was about to give up and use a more conventional knife.

However, one day a mail package arrived at the theatre containing the exact sort of knife required.

The knife had been sent by Mr. Justice Gregory, whose daughter is a member of the Players Club. He had heard of the problem and acquired the knife from the authorities of the Juvenile Court. The court has some 3,000 such knives which have been confiscated from juvenile offenders.

There was, however, a condition included with the gift. The knife was to be used only for the purposes of the play.

A View From the Bridge is being presented from November 16 to 20 and November 23 to 27 at the Phoenix Theatre on the Gordon Head campus. Reserved tickets are available at 477-1834 or 477-4821.

Once-a-Week Shows For Friday Noons

Noon time concerts resume on a once weekly basis at McPherson Playhouse next Friday.

The programs will be under the joint management of Harry Hill, University of Victoria professor widely known for his acting, musical and raconteur talents, and house manager Erik Perth of the Playhouse.

The first program will consist of an excerpt from Shaw's comedy, You Never Can Tell, which Bastion Theatre opens at McPherson next Saturday, and musical numbers by Erika Kurth, soprano, and Mrs. Hill.

On the following Friday, Nov. 26, Uvic students, Paul and Donna Phillips, folk singers and instrumentalists, will perform, with Dougal Fraser giving readings from the uniquely styled writings of Ogden Nash.

There will also be a scene from Uvic Players' club production, A View From the Bridge, which opens in the Phoeix, Tuesday.

Concerts will begin at 12.10 each Friday. There is no change in the admission charge of 35 cents and box lunches will be available in the foyer.

'Couldn't-be-done' Film Makes Grade

By BOB THOMAS

NEW YORK (AP)—Mary McCarthy's best-selling novel The Group treated the sex lives of eight (Vassar) graduates with startling explicitness. Most readers believed it could never be made into a movie.

But the film has just been completed in New York. The man who accomplished the seemingly impossible is Sidney Buchman, an urbane writer-producer who has toiled in Hollywood studios.

Buchman wrote and/or produced such films as Here Comes Mr. Jordan, The Jolson Story and A Song to Remember, then fell into eclipse during the investigative upheaval of the early 1950s. He has lived abroad in recent years and made a return to film-making with The Mark.

The Group, directed by Sidney Lumet, appears to have survived the scrutiny of the film industry's production code. Buchman's script was amended largely in the use of certain words, he reported. Otherwise, the censors went along with him.

PROBLEMS PRESENTED

"We are not out to create a work of pornography," Buchman said. "It seemed to me that the book presented problems of the 1930s that remain vital and perplexing today.

"One of the major issues is the ever-present one that higher education is no help in preparing for the complexities of life."

The film will not specify the school from which the girls graduate.

Buchman charted his course for The Group early.

"I knew it had to be made in the east. To have filmed the picture in Hollywood would have subjected the story to the usual trap of using starlets and glossy settings. This was essentially an eastern subject and it had to be shot in the areas where it took place."

USED NO STARS

With the approval of United Artists, Buchman made another command decision—no names.

"There were two practical reasons for this. At one time we discussed the idea of using perhaps three female stars. But this would have added $750,000 to the budget.

"Using stars also would have brought an imbalance to the script. The story would necessarily have been focused on the three names, whereas it should be composed of eight more or less equal roles."

Buchman and Lumet interviewed 400 girls and their final choices will be billed alphabetically—Candy Bergen, Joan Hackett, Elizabeth Hartman, Shirley Knight, Joanna Pettet, Mary-Robin Redd, Jessica Walter and Kathleen Widdoes.

Dentist's Chair Old Style Wanted

You never can tell what may be laid away in Victoria attics, and Stuart Baker, director of Bastion Theatre's next production at the McPherson Playhouse—You Never Can Tell—is hopeful that an antique dentist's chair will turn up—vintage 1891 or thereabouts.

If you have a spare one in your attic, and you would like to see it in a starring role in George Bernard Shaw's comedy about dentistry and love, give Bastion Theatre a call at 382-4112.

Two Good Reasons For Vancouver Trip

By JOAN MASON HURLEY

I blush to confess, as a Victorian born and bred, that I have an undying passion for Vancouver. So it was with alacrity that I seized on two good excuses to go there this week.

One was the advent of a distinguished symphony orchestra, the other the production of a great classic of Russian literature.

On Tuesday the Los Angeles Philharmonic played at the Queen Elizabeth. Their conductor is the glamorous Parsee, Zubin Mehta, son of Mehli Mehta, conductor of the Bombay Symphony Orchestra.

An exotic star in the realm of international music, 29-year-old Mehta commutes between California and Quebec, where he is also conductor of the Montreal Symphony.

He is the youngest person ever to have directed the Berlin Philharmonic and the Vienna Philharmonic.

ALLOWS SCOPE

He conducts with remarkable economy of movement, at times he is almost motionless. He allows the players considerable scope within the limits of the music.

The program was one chosen to display the technique of the huge 104-member orchestra. First came American Samuel Barber's ballet, Medea's Meditation and Dance of Vengeance

I don't know when I have been so excited by discords. Composed in 1946 I found it electrifying music, with magnificent orchestral effects.

In complete antithesis was Mozart's Concertante for Oboe, Clarinet, Horn and Bassoon. Strangely enough, this was less successful and it was the only work for which Mehta used a score.

Richard Strauss' massive Ein Heldenleben was last. This tremendous orchestral structure requires among other things two tubas, two harps, eight basses, and in fact a most expansive orchestra.

I heard one young man complain that the work had lasted 50 minutes. But so vastly complex and fascinating a display of musical color I found only slightly too long.

This was partly due to the excellent program notes, which one was able to read as the lights were left dimly on. This civilized custom, embraced by most great orchestras, where listeners often come with their scores, would be worth trying, to my mind, here in Victoria.

The next night at Turgenev's A Month in the Country, I stumbled on the best thing I have seen in months and months of intensive theatre-going.

This was the play chosen to open the new super-modern Guildford Theatre in England this summer. It has since moved to the West End, starring Ingrid Bergman and Michael Redgrave.

The Vancouver Playhouse production has many virtues, but the most outstanding one is style. Style of movement, style of address and style of delivery.

IN 1850

The play has been adapted by Emlyn Williams into truly distinguished English.

Written in 1850, with its subtle probing of personality and love, A Month in the Country seems as new as today. It is an absorbingly interesting psychological drama.

Here was a piece of acting which quite transcended anything I have lately seen. Every emotion, love, shame, despair, remorse in turn are mirrored on her wonderfully expressive face.

Unwilling recipient of her confidences is Rakitin, her long-time admirer, who was suavely played in Wildean manner by Derek Ralston.

ENJOYS CONTRAST

Turgenev doesn't wallow in hysteria. Like Shakespeare he enjoys contrast. There were many scenes of broad farce to relieve the tension.

There is a whole panorama of people attached to the country estate, each with his own fish to fry and his own romantic plans . . . the preoccupied husband, the termagant of a mother-in-law, her spinster companion, the scheming doctor, the charming young girl who is Natalie's rival, the stupid neighbor, the two tutors, the son, the servants and so on.

There are antithetical scenes of many kinds, the love of youth and innocence, that of age and experience, amazingly cleverly contrasted.

SYMPTOMS

The production is beautifully set on two levels, the drawing-room and the garden, and lit to enhance the sumptuous dresses. Seldom have I been so committed and so carried away by a play.

Incidentally Malcolm Black, artistic director, told me the Playhouse Company was disappointed that Victoria city had cancelled the arrangements made by Robert Ellison, former manager of the McPherson, for them to bring their productions here this season.

Without a guarantee they cannot afford to come, but in point of fact, he said, Stop the World and Ring Around the Moon had both made money for the city last year.

At all events, A Month in the Country runs through next week with a matinee on Saturday.

Accent on Youth For Festival Programs In '66

VANCOUVER (CP) — Youth will be the theme of the 1966 Vancouver Festival.

Manager Hugh Pickett told the annual general meeting Friday that attractions planned include performances by Britain's National Youth Orchestra, production of the play Noye's Fludde, the Ding Dong Dell comedy revue from Toronto and a Vancouver Operatic Association production of Humperdink's Hansel and Gretel.

Mr. Pickett said the festival hoped also to present Russia's Bolshoi Ballet.

Directors reported the festival last year had managed to cut its over-all $66,500 deficit by $2,464.

Mainland Actress In Bastion Show

One of this province's most sought-after professional actresses is in Victoria to play a leading role in "You Never Can Tell" — Bastion Theatre's next major production.

Pat Gage, who came to Canada eight years ago from Scotland, plays Gloria Clandon in the George Bernard Shaw comedy, being staged Nov. 20 to 26 at the McPherson Playhouse.

Pat has been on the stage since she was a child. In Canada, she has won a Dominion Drama Festival Best Actress Award, and played in movies and on TV as well as in the theatre.

VARIETY

Her most recent performances were in "Charley's Aunt" and "Desire Under the Elms" with the Playhouse Theatre Company, "The Rape of the Belt," "Rattle of a Simple Man" and "The Play's the Thing" with the Arts Club Theatre-in-the-Round, "Billy Liar" for Metro Summer Professional Theatre, and "The Country Wife" and Shaw's "Man and Superman" for the Freddie Wood Theatre.

One of the two feature movies she made this year was filmed in the Bahamas, the other, a Canadian production, filmed in Vancouver.

On TV, Pat Gage has appeared on Camera West and the Heritage Series for the CBC.

Starred with Pat in "You Never Can Tell," are many of Victoria's leading actors and actresses—Harry Hill, Robert Price, Bruce Sharp, Jennifer Chaster, Wendy Packard, John Bergbusch, Bruce Banyard, Stanley Bowles, May Mack and Rick Stamford.

Director Stuart Baker, who also directed Bastion's comedy "Come Blow Your Horn," turns his hand to Shavian wit and wisdom in this production.

Girl Travels 4,000 Miles To Dance

LONDON (CP)—A 22-year-old Canadian girl has travelled nearly 4,000 miles to study dancing at a suburban Romford school.

Susan Miller of Guelph, Ont., was studying with a woman who was a former pupil at the school. When she heard that Susan would have to wait 18 months to take an advanced examination at the Royal Academy of Dancing in London, she advised the young Canadian to go to Britain and study while she waited.

"I want to sing and act as well as dance," Miss Miller said. "And when I am good enough to land worthwhile parts I want to work on this side of the Atlantic."

DDF Jury Chooses 10 Original Plays

Ten new Canadian plays have been approved by a jury for entry in the 1966 B.C. Regional Festival of the Dominion Drama Festival.

Among the playwrights are Ralph Kendall, formerly of Victoria, who worked with the Theatre Guild here a few years ago, and Raymond Hull, whose The Drunkard had a phenomenal run at The Secret summer before last.

Kendall's play is titled The Duke and the Devil; Hull's, The Gang's All Here.

Others are Milt Freiman, A Voice in the Wilderness; Tom Grainger, Daft Dream A-Dyin'; Paul St. Pierre, How to Break a Quarter Horse; John Kelly, I'll Remember You, Love, in My Dreams; George Ryga, Nothing But a Man; Robert Wallace, Nursery Rhymes; Arnold H. Olson, Permission to Breed, and Beverley A. Simons, The Elephant and the Jewish Question.

A one-thousand-dollar prize is offered the drama group whose production of an original new Canadian play approved by the jury places first in the Regional Festival.

In addition, a $100 grant will be made to any properly organized drama group in good standing with the B.C. Drama Association which has confirmed its intention to enter the 1966 festival with a play chosen from this list.

Upon being invited, after preliminary screening, to present their production in the Regional Festival, a further grant of $300 will be made to not more than four groups.

The author of the best original new Canadian play entered in the festival will also receive $1,000.

Deadline for any group intending to enter a play is Dec. 1.

The Dominion Drama Festival finals will be held next spring in Victoria, at McPherson Playhouse.

Summer Playhouse To Do Without Pros

By NICK FILLMORE

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP)—Director Jack Sheriff says the Acadia Summer Playhouse will probably operate in its sixth season in 1966 without professional actors.

"Our company has developed to the stage where it is doubtful we'll need professionals next summer," Sheriff said in an interview. "Some of our young performers have developed very rapidly in the past couple of years and they're ready to handle just about any of the productions we plan."

Sheriff, professor of English at Acadia University here, said the amateur group will put on eight productions in 1966. Five will be musicals.

The plays will be The Fantasticks, South Pacific, The Little Indians, Girl Crazy, Enter Laughing, 110 in the Shade, Barefoot in the Park and The King and I.

"The only part we might need help in is the Frenchman in South Pacific," said Sheriff a native of Toronto.

DEFENDS STANDARDS

An extra — West Side Story, starring Tommy Common—was presented in October at Truro, N.S., Halifax and here. Common also played Lancelot in Camelot during the regular summer run.

"I was very pleased with Tommy's performances," Sheriff said. Camelot drew good attendances for its week-long run and West Side Story was a sell-out when it appeared here."

The only other professional to appear with the workshop last summer was Pam Hyatt of Toronto, onetime Spring Thaw regular, who had the lead in Sound of Music.

Sheriff spoke rapidly in defence of the Summer Playhouse, which has been criticized by some Annapolis Valley people for producing shows of too low a standard.

"We're here to provide entertainment. You have to expect criticism. Many of the persons in the show are teen-agers just learning there. We're not professionals."

But Sheriff said people often compare the Summer Playhouse to something they saw on Broadway or at Stratford.

"The comments I hear are usually favorable. Tourists have told me our productions compare favorably with professional theatre they have seen."

Dr. J. M. R. Beveridge, president of Acadia, which sponsors the Summer Playhouse, said the drama workshop is serving a need at Acadia and in the valley.

"In my opinion he (Sheriff) is doing an excellent job in training students in drama and in providing excellent background of live theatre for the surrounding communities and for summer tourists," Dr. Beveridge said.

Dockyard Worker Has Dream

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

Tom Kirk is a man with a dream.

A dockyard worker by daily trade, Tom was bitten by the prospecting bug many years ago. He still works at the dockyard to earn his daily bread, but each year after carefully hoarding days off, he takes a leave of absence and heads for the hills and looks for his dream.

Hume

And now he thinks he's found that dream high in the mountains near Telsa Lake in the Omineca mining district.

I should say for the ake of accuracy that he feels he found his dream three years ago, but is now on the verge of making it come true.

The 34 claims Meteor Mining, that's the company Tom and his partners formed, grouped above the tree line, looks good on the surface and from the grab samples picked up after trenches were blasted this summer.

Now comes the time for the big test.

Late this summer the Meteor men purchased their own diamond drill, to find out how deep the rich surface ore goes. By helicopter it was flown to the campsite. But to diamond drill you need a plentiful supply of water, and by the time the crews were ready to start, the two creeks they were depending on for the water supply had dried up.

NEXT SPRING

The test now has to wait until next spring for the streams to be fed by mountain snow.

"We have quit for the winter months," Tom told me the other day. "But we'll be back in there as soon as the winter is over to get those close-spaced drill holes down. I'm sure we've got a good one, but of course we won't know until we get those drill cores out and assayed."

When talking mining it is usual to quote from an engineer's report. So here's a quote from the annual report of the department of mines, 1925, page A 144:

"A report has come to hand of the discovery of a high-grade mineral on Tesla Mountain south of Eutsuk Lake. Information is to the effect that the ore assays at $150 a ton."

LOGGING ROADS

Little could be done about the find in those days for Tesla Mountain, if not as remote as the moon was almost as inaccessible.

The advent of the helicopter and the building of logging roads have changed that picture.

A good logging road now runs from Kimsquit on the coast to within 10 miles of the Meteor property. If Tom Kirk and his associates find what they're looking for next May there will be no insurmountable problem to prevent them from hooking up with that road to tidewater.

But prospecting and proving up are, to say the least, chancy. Sometimes you hit, many times you don't.

FISHING SPOTS

Next spring when most of us are anticipating an early summer and a return to favorite fishing spots, Tom Kirk will be facing his moment of truth high in the hills.

"We think we have a rich property and the diamond drill will confirm our high hopes," says Tom.

And if it doesn't

"I'll have no regrets. I have seen some of the most wonderful country in the world and shared experiences I could never hope to have had.

"But I'm not worried. I know the ore is there."

Reservoir Low Bids Indicated

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority announced today A. C. McEachern Ltd. of Vancouver has submitted apparent low bids on two of five contracts for clearing of nearly 2,000 acres in the reservoir behind the Arrow Dam.

The firm submitted a bid of $84,980 for clearing of 305 acres and a bid of $133,840 for the second contract to clear 580 acres. Both blocks of land are located on the west shore of Upper Arrow Lake, opposite Arrowhead.

On a third contract to clear approximately 450 acres in the same general area, Cattermole-Trethewey Contractors Ltd. of Vancouver submitted an apparent low bid of $130,500.

London Contracting Co. and McArthur Construction of Prince George submitted apparent low bid of $127,750 for a contract to clear 365 acres south of Nakusp on the west side of Upper Arrow Lake.

Apparent low bid of $37,810 for the fifth contract, covering clearing of 95 acres on the opposite side of the lake, was submitted by Spatsum Lumber Company Ltd., of Vernon.

BANK STOCKS EDGE UPWARDS

Election, Resignation Fail to Shake Market

By PHIL FORSYTH-SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock exchanges showed little reaction this week to the federal election, the gigantic power breakdown or the resignation of Finance Minister Gordon.

Volume on the Toronto Stock Exchange Friday was 3,790,000 shares compared with 6,617,000 the previous Friday and volume for the week was 19,856,000 shares compared with 23,190,000 last week.

Many stocks moved sideways in price rather than up or down, although the general price trend was mixed with golds and western oils advancing on index while industrials, base metals and the TSE indices all declined.

Bank stocks, which were soft during the week on rumor of a tight money policy, showed their only strength Friday after Mr. Gordon's step-down from the finance portfolio was announced late Thursday.

Royal climbed ¾ to 73, Nova Scotia 1 to 72½ and Imperial-Commerce ¼ to 62¾. Montreal and Toronto - Dominion were both unchanged at 60¾ and 61¾.

ONLY TWO GAINED

However their improvement on the day still left most below last week's levels and Montreal and Nova Scotia were the only two to make fractional gains: Montreal ¼ and Nova Scotia ½.

A few individual issues in the main list did manage to capture investors' attention but they were quickly upstaged by the otherwise dull market or another stock.

Following news that American aluminium producers were increasing prices, Canadian companies announced they would do the same.

The United States government called the move inflationary and said they would release 300,000 tons from their stockpile. This caused a sell-off in aluminium stocks and aluminium dipped a point to 32. Later, American producers said they would drop the price increases but while aluminium traded actively Friday and tacked on ¼, it was still off a point on the week.

Aluminum Hike Falls Like House of Cards

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. aluminum price increase collapsed like a house of cards this week.

The aluminum industry wilted after the government said it would sell 300,000 tons of the metal from its stockpile.

Aluminum Company of America, the No. 1 producer, rescinded the increase Wednesday and other companies followed suit.

It was reminiscent of the late president Kennedy's victory in publicly forcing the steel industry to roll back a price boost in 1962. But this time, President Johnson remained silent, leaving it to Defence Secretary Robert McNamara, Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler and government economists to carry the ball.

The government first met the price increase with an assertion that it would sell 200,000 tons of stockpiled aluminum. It said this had nothing to do with the price rise, but it labelled the boost as inflationary and unjustified. The producers declined to rescind.

Then the government played its trump card, announcing it would sell 300,000 tons of stockpiled aluminum, 100,000 tons of it immediately.

This was more than the industry could take, and it backed down.

The decision by Alcoa to withdraw the increase of one-half cent a pound for ingots and one cent a pound for fabricated metal was announced in a hurriedly called press conference by McNamara Wednesday night.

Even after rescinding the price increases, Alcoa and Reynolds Metals said that they still considered them justified and necessary to maintain adequate profits.

B.C. Tel Hearings Completed

VANCOUVER (CP)—A public hearing by the Board of Transport Commissioners into the financial affairs of the B.C. Telephone Co., ended here Friday.

The hearings began Oct. 25.

H. H. Griffin, assistant chief commissioner, said the judgment of the board would be handed down later in Ottawa. Mr. Griffin sat as chairman of the three-member panel during the three-week hearing.

He said the board will study the 13 volumes of testimony and the numerous exhibits placed before it during the 14 sitting days of the hearing. It also will consider and make additional inquiries as necessary and, "as soon as other commitments permit, we will issue our judgment."

The board heard argument from three parties Friday. They were C. W. Brazier, counsel for the province of B.C.; E. P. O'Neal, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor; and J. D. Taggart, counsel for the company.

Car Firms Expanding

TORONTO (CP) — Additional production machinery worth $100,000,000 will be bought by Canadian auto parts manufacturers in the next 14 months, D. S. Wood, executive vice-president of the Automotive Parts Manufacturers' Association, said Friday.

In an interview, Mr. Wood said the purchase figure was established by a survey of the association's 185 member firms.

Companies will need the "whole gamut" of machinery to compete effectively in the enlarged market created by the Canada-United States auto trade agreement, he said.

Takeover King Seeks Giant London Store

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP)—A bid by multimillionaire Charles Clore to buy the firm that owns Selfridge's of Oxford Street, the largest department store in London, has raised a series of questions that wouldn't sound out of place on a radio soap opera.

Will Clore, 60, who climbed from the back streets of London to become the "takeover king of Britain," be able to win his latest gamble?

Will the Cohen family, with its decades-old line of merchant princes, be forced to the wall?

What does Clore want with Selfridge's, anyway?

Those questions, and dozens of variations on them, have been tossed around by London financiers since Clore made his first move Oct. 10.

The bid was made by British Shoe Corp., a vast operation controlled by Clore. It offered an estimated £55,000,000 ($165,000,000) for the shares of Lewis' Investment Trust, which owns Selfridge's and a string of other department stores and manufacturing operations throughout Britain.

COHEN FIGHTS BACK

Led by Sir Rex Cohen, 58, most recent of a long string of Cohens to be chairman of Lewis, the department store firm decided to fight back.

The directors recommended that shareholders reject Clore's offer. Both sides came out with various statements to support their positions.

The latest word has been a statement from Lewis questioning whether Clore's offer is high enough, and holding out the prospect of increased profits in future due to a current redevelopment program and proposed refinancing.

Financial observers appear puzzled about both sides in the takeover bid.

They wonder how effective Lewis' future plans will be. Retailing in Britain has become exceedingly competitive, with a trend toward small stores and suburban operations, whereas Lewis' holdings are concentrated in large, centre-of-the-city department stores.

WOULD MEAN SWITCH

For much the same reason, the financial experts are puzzled by Clore's readiness to move into the field. British Shoe owns 2,000 retail outlets in Britain and has been a major factor in some aspects of the selling revolution, so a step into department stores would be a complete switch.

The big investment firms that hold about 12 per cent of the Lewis shares are reported to be favorably disposed toward the offer. The Cohens and their supporters are understood to control about a third of Lewis' stock.

Clore, starting in 1926 with the purchase of British film rights to the Jack Dempsey-Gene Tunney world heavyweight fight, built up a fortune from meagre beginnings. Now his holdings and directorships read like a prize list from the stock exchange.

He long ago forsook London's east end, where he grew up, in favor of a mansion in the rich Mayfair area, a country home and an 18,000-acre farm. Among other hobbies, he grows orchids and collects art treasures.

WELCOMED TO HOLLAND with gift of traditional wooden shoes is Canadian Pacific chairman N. R. Crump. Four flower girls from Haarlem, Holland, later were given a free trip to Montreal in return. CP Airlines has just started a Montreal-Amsterdam service.

Some Businessmen Cheer Change in Finance Post

TORONTO (CP)—The resignation of Walter Gordon as finance minister was greeted today with undisguised approval by most Toronto businessmen — many of whom had feuded with him while he was in office.

Several said, however, it is unfair to blame one man for unpopular policies adopted by the cabinet and government. They added that it will be necessary to wait and see what changes, if any, his successor makes before trying to estimate what effect his resignation might have on the economy of the country.

Most businessmen declined to be quoted by name, but one construction industry official noted that while Mr. Gordon's 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials and production equipment had been bitterly attacked it now was becoming acceptable.

"Someone has to pay taxes and certainly the tax has not affected the amount of construction going on in Canada—everyone is working at capacity," he said.

Another official, however, said Mr. Gordon's resignation was "one of the best things that's ever happened to Canada."

Senior officials of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association were in Japan on a trade mission, but one spokesman noted it had consistently demanded withdrawal of the 11-per-cent sales tax and added it would be fair to hope the new minister would repeal it as soon as possible.

He said the tax seriously interfered with industry efforts to modernize plants and equipment — something of vital importance in Canada's international competitive status.

One financial source said the attacks on Mr. Gordon follow the accepted line of Canadian politics that the finance minister be made the sacrificial goat.

"Some people seem to have the incredible idea that the finance minister is solely responsible for measures introduced in his name," he said.

"They seem to forget that these measures have to be okayed by the cabinet and that the minister often has to go along with the cabinet on policies he doesn't necessarily approve of."

Canadian Firms Prepare New Advertising Plans

TORONTO (CP) — Most Canadian companies are planning big 1965-66 advertising budgets because "they realize the consumer is in a spending mood," says George Sinclair, president of MacLaren Advertising Ltd.

Mr. Sinclair said in an interview he estimated "there has been a six to seven-per-cent increase" in the advertising budgets of Canadian companies this year.

Canada's gross national product outstripped advertising investment in recent years partly because many advertisers are too hesitant about increasing their budgets when times are good, Mr. Sinclair said.

"Among advertisers, there is a chronic lag in their response to a buoyant economy. They are far more prompt about cutting their budgets when signs are alarming than they are about making an increase in prosperous periods."

The report says Canadian gross advertising revenues will jump to $733,000,000 this year from $69,663000 in 1964. Newspapers magazines radio and television stations will reap $685,000,000 of the 1965 total with agency commissions amount to $48,000,000.

Daily newspapers are getting the most advertising business with 29.9 per cent of net advertising revenues. But TV, with a 13.3-per-cent share compared with 12.6 in 1964, is gaining particularly in the field of national advertising.

Wheat Prices Subsidy Requested

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan wheat pool has asked the federal government to subsidize wheat prices.

A resolution, passed by delegates at the pool's annual meeting here, said the subsidy should be to the "extent necessary to prevent Canadian wheat producers from being placed in the position of having to compete with the treasuries of other countries or unfairly in the Canadian economy."

A preamble to the resolution indicated production costs had been increasing at "an alarming rate" for several years and the price of wheat had been sharply cut in 1965.

The full effect of rising production costs and lower prices had been obscured by the exceptionally large amounts of wheat farmers had sold in recent years.

INSPECTORS EVERYWHERE IN MOSCOW

MOSCOW (CP) — Factories in the Soviet Union often suffer from an overdose of inspectors.

"We are bored with inspectors," said U. F. Lutoshkin, party secretary of an oil plant at Omsk in western Siberia. "We have no time to work."

As reported by the Communist party newspaper Pravda, Lutoshkin said 19 commissions or inspection teams visited the plant in April and May.

Inspection teams have a habit of repeating one another's work, Lutoshkin complained. One Omsk-based team arrived at the plant, checked the work of some teen-agers and hastily left when another, this one a district committee, arrived to check the same work.

New Ruling Requested On Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Court of Appeals has directed the subversive activities control board to make a fresh appraisal of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

The union had asked the court to review the board's ruling that the union is "Communist-infiltrated." But the court said in a 2-to-1 decision announced Nov. 1 the evidence on which the board acted is 10 to 13 years old.

"We conclude that judicial review should await a record of greater currency than the one before us," the court said.

The independent union was ordered May 4, 1962, to register with the attorney-general as a "Communist - infiltrated organization" under definition of the subversive activities control act of 1950. The order was based on activities dating back to 1952.

Union lawyers sought review of the order and asked the court to invoke the "staleness principle" and send the case back to the board for "new consideration upon a fresher record."

In Toronto, the union's Canadian branch issued a statement claiming that "every case detrimentally affecting mine-mill and . . . used to persecute members of the mine-mill has been reversed by the court . . ."

The statement criticized newspapers, radio and television stations for allegedly not giving the court's reversal as much publicity as they gave the report of the subversive activities control board.

Red Tape Stalls Russia

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—Perhaps the biggest problem facing Soviet industry is how to curb bureaucracy and mismanagement.

Communist leaders have railed against them from the time of Lenin but the problem only gets worse.

"We must achieve utmost simplicity in the system of management of enterprises," Communist Party first secretary Leonid Brezhnev told a meeting of the party's central committee.

"We must go painstakingly through the structure of every ministry, either existing or newly formed; reduce the number of stages of management of the production activities of enterprises, so as to make the machinery of the ministries more mobile, capable of promptly, efficiently and in a competent manner settling all the problems of the operation of enterprises."

Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin, in separate reports to the committee, gave some striking examples of how the bureaucratic malaise saps the strength of Russia's economy.

15 SIGNATURES NEEDED

Brezhnev told of the development by oilmen in the Volga area of a time-saving system for drilling oil wells with a turbodrill suspended on a flexible cable instead of with drill pipes.

"It would seem clear to everyone that this was a vital matter, but it took nearly a year just to agree on the schedule for the manufacture of the equipment and cable. Unfortunately it has not been agreed upon to this day because this matter required the signatures of 15 representatives of different organizations subordinated to state committees and economic councils."

Brezhnev noted another instance in which 30 signatures from various departments were needed to approve one "clear question."

Kosygin told the committee that at the present time plans for new equipment are examined and drafted by one state organ, plans for production and capital investment projects by another, and supply matters are dealt with by still another.

LACK CENTRAL CONTROL

"There actually is no single organ that could examine all aspects and decide upon the issues of the development of an industry in all its variety."

Kosygin offered some startling data illustrating the underutilization of assets through poor organization.

About half of all journeys by state-owned road transport are empty runs, he said.

Factories reach heir planned production indexes, in a number of cases, only four years or more after they have gone into operation.

The Moscow press frequently carries articles revealing other instances of bureaucratic mismanagement. One type not often written about was recently exposed by Pravda, the Communist party newspaper: Cancellation of orders after production has started.

During the last two years factories of the electro-technical industry and apparatus building of Moscow economic council received refusals for more than 30,000,000 rubles worth of production, the account said.

In some enterprises refusals reach one-third of the annual amount of production.

REAL ESTATE

"FROM THE WOMAN'S POINT OF VIEW"

By Shirley Philps

SHIRLEY OF COLONY

OPEN LISTINGS

Homeowners who have decided to sell, often think the way to "get action" from salespeople is to phone three or four Real Estate firms, present the details, and then sit back and wait for the rush. This method is known in the profession as an "OPEN LISTING," and a guaranteed way to get NO action at all. The reasons for this are many. Realtors regard an "OPEN LISTING" as NO LISTING AT ALL; it is simply a notice that the homeowner intends selling sometime. Naturally the Realtor's first duty lies with those persons who have actually signed a listing contract hiring him to represent the owner in the sale of his home. Also the Realtor's "advertising dollars" must be spent to merchandise these homes. He cannot afford to merchandise an "Open Listing." As he is doing so the property could sell through another source and the only reward the Realtor would receive would be lost advertising dollars and wasted time. On an Open Listing the homeowner has not hired anyone to "act" for him or to protect his interests. The fact that the listing is not printed and distributed to the Realtors means financing details are often sketchy, viewing is spasmodic and uncontrolled and action is given only when time permits. To list your home, phone the firm with the most knowledge of HOME SALES. EV 6-3231, COLONY HOME SALES LTD.

FLOWERS ALWAYS IN BLOOM

Never a Dull Moment—In Victoria

By JACK BEASTALL

Most newcomers agree that gardening on the Pacific Coast is quite different from gardening in other parts of Canada, especially in regard to the winter season.

Putting the garden to bed is something we have never achieved; in fact, a winter garden here can be full of interesting plants with showings of color throughout the dull months.

Jack

While subject to one or two brief cold snaps, winter here is mainly wet and mild, a combination which prevents the use of cinder or compost as a covering for dormant crowns, or smothering blankets around slightly tender shrubs.

Roses are not mounded with soil, nor laid in trenches.

The only work on roses now consists of shortening long growths to about three feet to prevent whipping in a winter gale and the resultant loosening of the roots.

The full pruning of bush roses is done from mid March to mid-April, not before, while climbers and ramblers were pruned in August to September as described in this column at that time.

The roots of chrysanthemums, including C. frutescens, the Marguerite or Paris-daisy, are lifted and replanted in a cold-frame or put into boxes of soil and stored in a cold greenhouse or frame.

★ ★ ★

Bulbs and tubers to be lifted, dried, and stored indoors include tigridia (Mexican Shell-flower), acidanthera (Abyssinian Sword-lily), gladiolus, tuberous begonia and dahlia.

Lilies (the true lilium), Amaryllis belladonna, crinum, galtonia (Summer-hyacinth), and the hardy species of agapanthus remain outdoors in gardens where these plants can be normally grown.

Although the foliage of daffodils, tulips, bulbous irises, muscari, and triteleia is often in evidence by Christmas or earlier, and sometimes damaged a little in January, the bulbs are quite safe at normal planting depths.

While it is often wise to protect certain shrubs and conifers from cold winds that scorch the foliage, a complete wrapping with burlap or plastic film is never advised.

The moisture which forms on the inside of plastic film will freeze to the foliage and often results in more damage to the shrub than would be suffered if left unprotected.

Such coverings also encourage soft growth which suffers from late spring frosts when the covering is removed.

A better form of protection is a screen of plastic film or burlap on stakes a foot or more away from the plant and only on the side, or sides, of the coldest winds. These usually come from the north to east in this area.

Crowns of tender herbaceous perennials are best protected by laying branches of conifers loosely over the soil, while small plants of an evergreen nature can be sheltered by pushing the conifer branches into the surrounding soil.

Fruit tree pruning is done in February, that is, on apples and pears. Peaches are pruned when the fruit is gathered.

Plums and cherries, which resent severe pruning, are best summer pruned in the home garden.

Raspberries have their old (fruited) canes removed at picking time, and the tops of the new canes cut back to a convenient height of five or six feet now.

Low growing varieties have the top inch or so cut off.

The removal of the tips encourages the side growths which bear the fruit.

Bramble fruits (blackberries, logans, boysens and the others) have from four to six new canes tied together and hung from the lowest wire, about 18 inches above soil level, for the winter.

They are trained to the upper wires just before growth starts in spring.

This treatment prevents that horrible tangle we all fear with brambles.

Carrots split and beets become woody when left in the soil too long, so these and the swede turnips are lifted and stored.

WEEK'S WORK

★ ★ ★

The late blooming perennial asters (Michaelmas-daisies), heleniums, and rudbeckias can be cut back almost to ground level. Six inches of stems left will give protection to young shoots which often emerge in mild winters.

The so-called Christmas-rose (Helleborus niger) and Lenten-rose (H. orientalis) can be fed a weak solution of general fertilizer to encourage bloom.

Look around at interesting plantings of shrubs and trees with good foliage or flowers at this time of year.

Fruit trees and small fruits must be planted while the soil is still workable.

Rhubarb needs a deep rich soil in sun for best flavor.

Pull off the yellow leaves of sprout plants. Pour a cupful of weak liquid fertilizer around each plant, and see that the plants are firm in the soil.

Remove annual weed seedlings as they appear, but tread on wet soil as little as possible if it contains much clay.

TV to Shoot Armada In Recollection Of Historic Defeat

History, as Toynbee has so often insisted, should be studied as a means to relate the past with the present and the future. George Vicas, producer of the four-part series Of Men and Freedom, could not agree more wholeheartedly. The third in the Vicas series, The Defeat of the Armada, will be colorcast Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

Whether it's "The French Revolution" or "The Middle Ages," the first two of the programs, already broadcast, or the final two, "The Defeat of the Armada," and "The Reformation," Vicas sets his aims high. His objective is to humanize history and bring it closer to the people. He deals with complex problems and issues, but with a measure of excitement and entertainment to provide the viewer with the incentive to learn more about them.

"The important thing," says Vicas, "is to give these events relevancy, to put the past in historical perspective. And if, in the process, we have given the viewer something of interest to remember, to give him the feeling of involvement so that he will reach out for a book to get at the roots of historical facts, we feel that we have accomplished what we set out to do."

Citing "The Defeat of the Armada," Vicas adds "Here we see raised the interesting question—what if Philip II, with his ambitions for an all-Catholic Europe and Western world, had won instead of the British?

"Then, one must theorize what would have happened to America if our Pilgrim Fathers had been Catholic. Or, indeed, if there would have been any need at all for a flight from persecution. But, as we know, Philip II had a totally deficient fleet; the Armada defeat was the beginning of the end of the great Spanish Empire and an even greater British Empire was soon to emerge. The ultimate consequences to America are explicit."

Golden Hind

A fully rigged Elizabethan galleon, "The Golden Hind," a replica of the flagship sailed by Sir Francis Drake in 1588, earlier this year put to flight a modern fighting ship of Her Majesty's Navy. And what's more, it did it with one broadside.

Whether the news of this naval encounter was suppressed for diplomatic reasons, or is still awaiting confirmation in a future edition of "Jane's fighting Ships," is a puzzlement." But the facts are irrefutable and should be of special interest for all who will see the NBC News color special, "The Defeat of the Armada."

Details of the confrontation, as dutifully recorded in the log kept by producer George Vicas and his crew filming "The Defeat of the Armada," leave no doubt as to the authenticity of the story.

After a long search for a ship to be filmed in the historic battle sequence, Vicas found the "Golden Hind" in Dartmouth, on the south coast of England last Spring. It had begun life as a fishing boat, and in the 1950s was rebuilt according to the specifications of Sir Francis Drake's original ship. When Vicas discovered it, it was leading a sedentary life, immobile and peaceful, as a tourist attraction.

Could it be sailed? No one seemed to know. It ought to be seaworthy, its owner said, but no one had ever tried. Besides, who was left in England who knew how to sail a square rigged, 16th century galleon?

1588's Cannon

Word got around, as it always does in seaports. Sails were ordered and made. Brass cannon —circa 1588 were found and installed. A crew was rounded up, and never has there been as wild an assortment of irrepressible sea fighters. The captain was a high school principal, the first mate an executive of a printing firm, the second mate a radar specialist, the third mate an antropologist.

Despite the credentials of this formidable crew, there were lingering doubts about whether the ship would move. Optimists thought it might just sail. Pessimists believed it would either not move at all or would be completely uncontrollable.

Early in May the "Golden Hind" weighed anchor. Followed by scores of small boats, by two Royal Navy launches and a submarine, it set course for the open sea. The critics were confounded. The original "Golden Hind," with a crew of 90, could make eight knots. The NBC News' European Production Unit's naval entry, with a crew of 12, could make six knots. It was lively, responsive and perfectly seaworthy.

Elated by their new status as fleet commanders, the crew lost no time in demonstrating their mastery of naval warfare. George Vicas' celebrated pyrotechnics were readily available —the same type of ersatz fire power that had clobbered the Bastille in "The French Revolution" telecast. The inspired gunners used them to fire a broadside from the decks of the "Golden Hind."

This was too much for the British submarine. Overawed by the fireworks flashing from the gentle old retread, the sub turned about and hastily vacated the premises. If the Spanish Armada had been aware of this novel technique, history might have been reversed.

Tour de France

Highlights of the world's richest, longest and most famous bicycle race—the fabled Tour de France—will be colorcast on "NBC Sports in Action" tonight and Nov. 20 at 5:30, on Channel 5.

The Tour de France, known as the "World Series of Bicycle Racing," covers 2,600 miles on winding roads through West Germany, Belgium, The Netherlands, Spain and France. The racers share about $92,000 in prizes, with the winner of the gruelling 22-day test of endurance and cycling ability profiting by nearly $25,000.

"NBC Sports in Action" color cameras capture not only highlights of the race, which begins in Cologne, West Germany, and ends in the Parc des Princes Stadium in Paris, but also the sidelights of the event, which is run in a carnival-like atmosphere.

Famed British cyclist Tommy Simpson, who is a contestant, serves as an analyst for the program and gives the incisive reports at various stages of the race.

The Tour has been an institution in Western Europe since the turn of the century, and has been run annually since then except in the World War two years. The 1965 race, the 52nd edition of the classic, attracted 130 expert cyclists from France, Belgium, Spain, Italy, The Netherlands, Germany, Great Britain, Switzerland and Luxembourg. Among the more famous, whose following rivals that of baseball and football heroes in this country, are Raymond Poulidor of France, Rik Van Looy of Belgium, Federico Bahamontes of Spain (the "Eagle of Toledo") and Gianni Motta and Felice Gimondi of Italy.

Nearly 15,000,000 fans line the route to cheer their national heroes as they pedal past on their thin, frail bikes, and to be regaled by the publicity caravan of nearly 350 cars, trucks and motorcycles that precedes the racers.

In tonight's portion of its coverage of the Tour, "NBC Sports in Action" follows the race from its starting point in Cologne to Barcelona, Spain, where the contestants get a day of rest. On Nov. 20, "NBC Sports in Action" moves with the leaders on the final leg of the Tour.

TREASURED PET Thomasina is hero of Walt Disney Show Sunday at 6 p.m. on Channel 8 (7:30 p.m., Channel 5). Karen Dotrice portrays the owner of the cat in the three-part drama titled The Three Lives of Thomasina.

Thomasina

A charming story about a cat and her friends in a Scottish village is told in The Three Lives of Thomasina, a three-part drama, which will be shown on Walt Disney Presents, Sundays, Nov. 14, 21 and 28, at 6 p.m. on Channel 8 and 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. The drama is based on Paul Gallico's book, Thomasina.

Patrick McGoohan, Susan Hampshire, Karen Dotrice and Matthew Garber star in the production. McGoohan appears as Andrew MacDhui, a struggling veterinarian who moves to the village of Inveranoch, in the Highlands, following the death of his wife, with his seven-year-old daughter Mary (Karen Dotrice), her marmalade cat, Thomasina, and old Mrs. MacKenzie (Jean Anderson), their housekeeper.

Miss Hampshire, 25-year-old British actress, plays winsome Lori MacGregor who has a way with animals and lives alone in a nearby glen. Small Matthew Garber, as Geordie MacNab, heads a group of irresistible moppets whose world centers around Thomasina, frogs and pets. The boys include Denis Gilmore and Vincent Winter.

In Part One, Thomasina is injured, and Mary's father is convinced the cat will die.

GIDGET, TAMMY . . .

Stars Live In Cotton Candy World

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It's a cotton candy world for Sally Field and Debbie Watson who play a pair of twinkling teenagers in television's "Gidget" and "Tammy."

Both young ladies confess they portray themselves in their shows inasmuch as their acting background is almost non-existent.

Sally of the dark bangs and bright eyes was chosen from some 500 candidates for her first professional role as "Gidget." Debbie's only previous experience was in the title role of "Karen" which bombed last year.

The girls have something else in common. Both are following Sandra Dee in their roles. Miss Dee played both "Gidget" and "Tammy" in movie versions.

Aside from the fact that Sally and Debbie have boy friends at USC, they share few personal similarities.

Sally is the daughter of actress Margaret Field and is the stepdaughter of actor Jock Mahoney. She is determined to become a star.

Debbie, on the other hand, looks on her career as a means of saving enough money to attend college and become a school teacher in a depressed area.

Sally, at 19, is a high school graduate. But Debbie must attend classes with a tutor at Universal Studios three hours a day, limiting her camera work to five hours.

"I've only met sally once," said Debbie. "But I've seen her show several times, and I think she's very believable in it."

BOTH BUSY

"We're both so busy there is not much time for us to get together," Sally said. "We work at different studios, too. I don't know how Debbie feels, but getting this part is like a dream come true for me. I'm quite young for my age so it's easy to play a 15-year-old."

Debbie is more sophisticated than Sally and dreams of reforming this wicked old world; "I don't want to spend my life as an actress. I want to contribute something important."

Neither "Gidget" nor "Tammy" are setting the ratings afire, but both shows are expected to survive for a season or two, maybe longer.

Sally could play her part from memory. She saw the first movie version a half-dozen times, explaining, "I was in the right age bracket at the time and I thought Gidget was the luckiest girl ever.

"But by the time the second and third pictures came out I had outgrown them."

Says Sally: "I don't play a character, I'm just myself when the cameras are on me."

Frank Film Essay Tells Truth, Fiction About Man, Artist

"Sinatra," a CBS News Special, will be broadcast on Channel 7, Tuesday at 10 p.m.

The broadcast will be a film essay on the life, times and talents of Frank Sinatra—entertainer, business tycoon, hail-fellow - well - met, family man, Hollywood elder statesman.

Included on the broadcast will be an interview of Sinatra by CBS news correspondent Walter Cronkite, during which the singer is questioned about his image as a "tough guy," his leadership role with the "clan," and his feelings about his fame and fortune.

Bing Crosby is interviewed on Sinatra's singing and how he will be remembered, and Sinatra's elder daughter, Nancy, is questioned on the singer as a family man, and about his shenanigans with his friends.

The close-up look at Frank Sinatra will show him before a $100-a-plate black-tie audience at a St. Louis benefit, and before the inmates of Lorton Penitentiary, Virginia, outside Washington, D.C.

The cameras follow Sinatra and his friends to places many Americans read about but seldom or never see; to "Jilly's" restaurant in New York, where Sinatra's "clan" gathers; to a Sinatra recording session; to his opulent Hollywood office and his private jet airplane; to a movie set; to a movie premiere, and even back 22 years to the New York Paramount Theatre where he was mobbed by shouting girls.

As benefits a documentary study of Frank Sinatra, he will be seen singing "Man In the Looking Glass," "It Was a Very Good Year," "Fly Me to the Moon" ("In Other Words"), and "I've Got You Under My Skin."

Don Hewitt, executive producer of "Sinatra," which is written by Andrew A. Rooney, has approached Frank Sinatra as "part of the times we live in, part of the fabric of the 1940s, 50s and 60s."

"No matter what you think of Frank Sinatra," Hewitt said, "if you were going to put artifacts of our time into a time capsule, many people would suggest that you include a Frank Sinatra record.

"Not all entertainers lend themselves to this kind of treatment. As he approaches 50, he is one of the Americans that other Americans talk about, flatteringly or unflatteringly.

Harry Belafonte

Television shows by Harry Belafonte are rare events indeed; so the CBC television audience can expect something special when the famed entertainer appears in his first Canadian-produced hour—Belafonte at the O'Keefe—to be seen on Show of the Week, Monday, at 9 p.m., on Channels 2 and 6.

Videotaped before an audience of almost 4,000 at Toronto's huge O'Keefe Centre, the show features Belafonte in some of his old favorites and new numbers, and guest appearances by the outstanding folk-blues singers Sonny Terry and Brownie McGhee and Greece's Nana Mouskouri, who made her North American debut this year. Backing the soloists are the Belafonte Singers and an instrumental group under the direction of Howard Roberts.

Producer-director Paddy Sampson, who persuaded the TV-shy folksinger to do this show during a 20-minute discussion one day last spring, says Belafonte is "one of the most pleasurable artists I've ever worked with. He seems to know and understand the difficulties of everyone in the crew; he works with you every step of the way."

"What we've tried to do," says Sampson, "is to capture the feeling of a live concert by Belfonte and his group—to get across the 'chemistry' between Harry and his audience that's so powerful he can fill the O'Keefe with people every night for a month."

HATCHING A PLOT, Leon Askin (left) as a German general, and Werner Klemperer, as kommandant of Stalag 13, enlist the aid of pretty Thordis Brandt in plot to extract secret information from the prisoners on Hogan Heroes, Friday at 8:30 p.m., on Channel 7.

The atmosphere is established at the show's opening. Harry has just finished an evening performance and is about to leave the theatre—but then he decides to walk around a bit, thinking over the day's events. As he sings the Bob Dylan favorite, Blowin' in the Wind, he strolls through the O'Keefe foyer and into the darkened auditorium. As he sits there, he visualizes each number being performed on the stage of the empty theatre.

Among the songs in the show are Shenandoah and Jamaica Farewell, sung by Belafonte; Backwater Blues and Hootin' Blues, by Sonny and Brownie; the French-Canadian song Un Canadien errant, by Miss Mouskouri, and a Greek song, done by Harry and Miss Mouskouri as a duet.

Monkey Trials

A special 90-minute television version of the Jerome Lawrence-Robert E. Lee stage play Inherit the Wind, based on the famous Scopes "monkey trial," will be presented Thursday on Channels 2 and 6 at 8 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

The special, starring Melvyn Douglas and Ed Begley as defence attorney Henry Drummond and prosecuting attorney Matthew Harrison Brady, recreates the 1925 trial of biology teacher John Thomas Scopes, convicted for teaching Darwin's theory of evolution in Dayton, Tennessee.

WATERS SUFFOCATING UNDER TONS OF FILTH

KONSTANZ, West Germany (Reuters) — Scientists say that Lake Constance, an international tourist attraction, is dying.

The lake, surrounded by mountains, orchards and picturesque German, Austrian and Swiss villages, is used in summer by pleasure steamers, yachts and water skiers.

But its waters are festering and slowly suffocating under the tons of sewage, chemicals and general filth which pour into it every day from the Rhine and the lakeside communities.

Dangerous bacteria are fattening and multiplying, and threatening tourists and local residents with typhus and dysentery. More than one-tenth of its 180-square mile surface is covered with putrescent mud and algae formations.

Towns as far away as Stuttgart, which take their drinking water from the lake, are becoming seriously alarmed. The oxygen content of the water is rapidly diminishing, and experts say that once the oxygen is gone, a lake is dead for such uses as drinking water.

Tel Aviv 'Star' Of Middle East

By ALFRED FRANKENSTEIN
The Washington Post

TEL AVIV—This city, they say, is more like the Middle West than the Middle East.

There is an element of truth in the gag. Tel Aviv is new, crowded and bustling. Many parts of it are being torn down, long before obsolescence, for bigger and better developments.

But the difference are profound. Most striking is that Tel Aviv itself and its many suburbs for miles around are built solid with apartment buildings—huge, square, boxy structures to accommodate hundreds of families.

The one-family house and the deep front yard of the Middle West are totally unknown here. The reason, one is told, is that space is too dear. The whole country is no bigger than Massachusetts.

But the differences are pro- A quarter of a million Arabs remain here, apparently getting along quite well with the Israelis, although one cannot even mail a letter from Israel to any of its Arab neighbors.

SLEEPING CAMEL

Only in this country, I suspect, will one see a brand-new apartment house, bright with colored tile, and before it a camel sprawled asleep, if camels can be said to sleep.

From Beer Sheba to the Dead Sea nothing grows. It is a majestic endlessness of brown rock and bright sun. Yet the camels and donkeys of the desert are the sleekest, fattest, healthiest-looking animals one might hope to find.

Whether or not the nomadic Bedouins are similarly adjusted to their environment one cannot tell. They are shy of strangers and hide their faces from photographers, a refreshing variant of the usual reaction to tourists and their cameras.

Town Arabs are not nearly so shy. In Nazareth they point out a cave in the rocks where, they say, Jesus lived for 27 years. There is nothing in it and nothing to distinguish it from hundreds of other caves in the hills of Galilee. The Franciscans have built a modest church over it and pilgrims stream in and out.

A similar cave nearby, the Grotto of the Annunciation, contains an altar at which mass is said. Over it the Franciscans are building a huge church on Italian Renaissance lines, incorporating parts of a Romanesque church which has stood there since the Middle Ages.

The marketplace of Nazareth, with its steep, narrow streets guttered in the middle where donkeys walk, its hole-in-the-wall shops and its tall young women wearing velvets and brocades in 90-degree heat, gives one a superb idea of what Arab towns have been like since time immemorial.

Yet there is evidence of change. All the butcher shops in Nazareth have refrigerators, for one thing. Now if they can get a start on the flies . . .

MEDIEVAL FORTRESS

Roman antiquity blends with the Crusades at Caesarea, a huge ancient city that became a medieval fortress. Roman columns of grey and red granite are embedded horizontally, as strengthening beams, in the medieval walls.

Smuggler's Den Only One Store With Low-Priced World Loot

Christmas shopping while sun-soaking in Hawaii is a rewarding experience, especially if you're escaping snow at home.

On Waikiki beach, dress is so casual that you can comfortably wear your swim suit or shorts to the dozens of different stores and shops specializing in Polynesian and oriental gifts.

At the International Market Place, hub of Waikiki, you'll find everything from high fashion mu muus and sportswear to seed necklaces to black coral cufflinks to olivene earrings. These, as well as ivory jewelry and whale's tooth key chains, are good small light items to airmail, if necessary.

Many of the pili grass-thatched shops are al fresco and you can, for example, try on lauhala or pandanus sun hats at outdoor racks and counters.

One store near a laval rock waterfall carries furniture and gift items from Hong Kong, the Philippines, Japan and the entire South Pacific. They will pack and send anything from a polished brass cocktail table to a set of lacquer bowls to seashells to Hawaiian souvenir coins to a carved tree fern tiki.

There's a Smuggler's Den with low-priced loot from around the world and a good selection of Hawaii-made perfume, with free samples. They also have rolls of tapa printed paper, nice for gift wrapping.

A giant carved akua (Hawaiian god), stands in front of a shop specializing in bowls and serving trays and even cocktail table made from native monkeypod wood. Here, also, at various times of the day you can see and photograph a woodcarver at work.

A candy kitchen at the market place enables you to look through its giant glass panels to watch confections being made. Many feature Hawaii's own delicious macadamia nuts.

While strolling under the giant banyan trees and listening to Hawaiian music, you'll discover a kimono shop, an open-air budget restaurant and an al fresco gourmet bazaar with liquors and world-wide imports. One specialty here is a handsome line of made-in-Hawaii ceramics in brown and white, including everything from coffee mugs to plates to a piggy bank with the name painted on in Hawaiian. At another spot, either you or the trade winds will riffle through the racks of hula skirts, the miniature outrigger canoes with tapa sails, the assorted hula instruments and the small Hawaiian good-luck stones.

All in all, Christmas or "anytime shopping" at the International Market Place is an adventure and you should take your camera. A free Polynesian dancing program goes on every evening at 7 p.m. and a free camera show at noon on Sundays. Most of the shops are open Sundays too, some as late as 10 p.m.

Billion Gallons-Plus During 1965

The recreational vehicle industry will burn more than 1.1 billions of gallons of gasoline in 1965, according to estimates of Merrill Ormes, executive director of the Travel Trailer Division of the Mobile Homes Manufacturers Association.

This is an increase of more than 250 million gallons from 1964 consumption of 750 million gallons.

The increase is a result of the growing urge of all types of recreational vehicles, including travel trailers, pickup coaches, and canvas camping trailers. The increased use of recreational vehicles has also resulted in increased services for them, including the establishment of sanitary stations to accommodate the self-contained units.

Currently nearly 1,700 sanitary stations have been installed in the U.S. and in Canada's privately-owned and government parks, as well as at gasoline stations. Based on the phenomenal increase in gasoline consumption in 1965 and still greater anticipated use in 1966, it is expected that many oil companies will extend their program to build more sanitary stations in 1966.

There are 900,000 recreational vehicles in use in 1965. The average income of the travel trailer household is $9,290, and 67% of the household heads are between 36 and 55 years of age. Professional and managerial people own 38 per cent of travel trailers, while 39 per cent of the owners are skilled blue collar workers.

Big Ship Ordered

OSLO (AP)—The biggest ship in the history of Norwegian shipping—a 140,000-ton tanker—has been ordered by Norwegian ship owner, Niels Onstad, husband of Sonja Henie, former figure skating world champion and Hollywood star. The tanker will be built at the Stord shipyard near Bergen in western Norway.

Greece Is Heir To Bright Future

ATHENS — If, with rising world living standards, tourism is to be the industry of the future, then Greece is destined to be at the forefront of international travel interest.

But despite a remarkable coincidence of favorable factors, relatively little has been done to attract the world's travelling millions to Greece.

Greece is unique in that she combines many attractive features in one small, easily accessible land. The immortal relics of a glorious past afford visitors a sense of historical continuity with a cultural tradition to which all the world, in some way, is heir.

An enchanting landscape, with mountains, olive groves, an extensive coastline and hundreds of islands—many of them proud of their own architecture and traditions—together with a mild climate, provide a delightful holiday and outdoor relaxation.

300 DAYS OF SUN

It is estimated that Athens enjoys approximately 300 days of sunshine a year, while temperatures range from an average of 49 in January to 86 in July. Although 35 per cent of all tourists still visit the country in July and August, the best weather is in early spring and late autumn.

Add to all this the hospitality of the Greeks, a friendly, talkative and highly emotional people, who go out of their way to welcome a stranger or foreigner or guest—all three terms are covered by the same word in Greek: ("Xenos"). Merry-making with Retsina wine and love songs is a characteristic feature of open-air taverns throughout the long summer months.

LOW PRICES

And despite some price increases in the past two years, the cost of living in Greece is still appreciably lower than in most west European countries.

Organized tourism in Greece dates only from about 1950, when the Greeks won the war against Communist domination. Since then, tourist traffic to Greece has risen enormously from 33,000 in 1950 to a 673,000 in 1963.

ONE FACT . . . HONG KONG IS NOT IN VIET NAM

Slightly Crazy! But Fascinating

By JOHN KIRKWOOD
Times Far East Correspondent

HONG KONG—Setting aside for the moment such distressing topics as politics, wars, attempted military coups and the perpetual feuding and bickering that keeps Asia in a constant state of bedlam, let us consider a more pleasant subject.

Let us consider the delights of travelling in this delightful, often perplexing, sometimes mysterious, slightly crazy, but always fascinating part of the world.

Despite certain drawbacks and hindrances—such as wars, riots, floods and volcanic eduptions—and the occasional inconvenience — such as food poisoning, cockroaches, rats in your toilet bowl and overzealous immigration officers —travelling in these parts can be as interesting and rewarding as in any part of the world.

But first, before you hippety-hop down to the travel agent's shop with your money clutched in one hot little hand and your tourist guide in the other, let's get one point straight.

And that is, simply: Hong Kong is not in Viet Nam.

Americans Worst

Ridiculous though it may sound, it is a fact that many tourists—and Americans are the worst offenders—are convinced that Hong Kong is either in Viet Nam or is at least close enough to expose the visitor to Viet Cong mortar attacks or assaults by napalm and white phosphorous bombs.

And, since most travellers are generally tied down to a fairly rigid schedule, the answer appears to be: by air.

With so many airlines flying Far Eastern routes (no less than 18 lines regularly fly in and out of Hong Kong's international airport, for example) getting from any point in the Orient to any other is no problem.

Air Fares Higher

But flying does present one of the largest stumbling blocks to travel in the Far East when we discover that air fares in this part of the world are, by comparison, a great deal higher than flights of similar distance made in North America, the North Atlantic run or in Europe.

There are also ships, for travellers with time to spare.

Several lines maintain regular passenger schedules through Far Eastern waters: British ships between Hong Kong, Japan and Vancouver; American ships between Hong Kong, the Philippines, Japan and San Francisco; French ships between Japan, Hong Kong, Viet Nam, India, Pakistan and Europe; Italian ships between Hong Kong, Singapore, Indonesia, India, Pakistan and Europe.

And for the traveller with a real thirst for adventure and something different, there's always the challenge of fighting through jungles and over mountain passes by Land Rover or motorcycle. Hitchhiking is not recommended.

Take Yankee $$$

The answer to this is simple:

Don't take Canadian dollars; don't take sterling; do take American dollars — "green money" or traveller's cheques—which are honored everywhere and fetch a most handsome black market exchange rate in such countries as Viet Nam, Laos and Indonesia.

Where to stay?

Hotels generally are plentiful and comfortable throughout the Far East, although—particularly in the tourist seasons — advance reservations are advisable.

Prices range from reasonable in Japan, Hong Kong, Manila, Malaysia and Thailand to expensive in Viet Nam to outrageous in Indonesia where, in the capital of Djakarta, the government herds all visitors into the palatial Hotel Indonesia and then insists that payment be made only in foreign currency—at a minimum rate of 16 American dollars a night for a single room.

In Japan, of course, visitors are well advised to stay in the traditional Japanese inns when they're travelling in the country.

In the Malaysian countryside there are cheap, government-run rest houses dotted throughout the country, and luxurious seaside hotels on the sun-splashed resort island of Pennang.

In general, hotels away from the large cities of the Far East are cheap and comfortable enough to satisfy all but the fussiest of travellers.

And now, where to go?

JAPAN: The logical first stop on the itinerary of North American tourists, although Tokyo now heads the list as the world's most expensive city for the visitor, the bedlam of the huge city is more than compensated for by the tranquility of the Japanese countryside.

TAIWAN: Again, the countryside is the most rewarding; prices still reasonable.

HONG KONG: The British colony still remains a shoppers' paradise, despite a steady increase in prices of such items as cameras, tape recorders, radios, stereo sets. Beware of slick tailors and always pay a few extra dollars to ensure satisfaction. Exquisite Chinese food. Take time off from the run-of-the-mill guided tours and prowl the back streets and squatter areas to soak up the true atmosphere—it's quite safe.

MACAO: A Portuguese Overseas Province which offers gambling 24 hours a day in several casinos, fine wines and succulent stuffed pigeons. Regular steamer and hydrofoil sailings from Hong Kong.

THE PHILIPPINES: The friendly, courteous and hospitable people will welcome you and, contrary to what you might have heard, they won't shoot or stab you unless you cause trouble. Get away from Manila and visit the countryside—Baguio in the north, Bicolandia in the east, Mindanao in the south

THAILAND: Home of what must surely be the world's friendliest and most charming people. Life in the capital city of Bangkok is leisurely but fairly expensive. Resorts in the Gulf of Siam region.

MALAYSIA: A highly varied landscape — ranging from steaming jungles to towering mountains — make this a country well worth visiting. Mixed population of Malays, Chinese and Indians. Reasonable costs.

INDONESIA: Despite her internal strife and bitter anti-Americanism, the leaders of this vast South East Asian island nation are actively promoting tourism by building several new luxury hotels and by high pressure advertising. It's well worth visiting, too.

These, then, are the countries most popular with — and which have the most to offer —North American visitors, although more adventurous types occasionally find their way into Laos, Cambodia and even Burma, and — with Canadian, at least — package tours of Mainland China are becoming increasingly popular and more accessible, even though they're fairly expensive.

And, finally, for the eager traveller bursting to charge off to explore the Mystic Orient, some advice which we hope will prove beneficial:

- Don't bring unbending pre-conceived notions of the lands you're visiting with you. Leave them at home.
- Do try to adapt to wherever you are and to whatever conditions you find yourself in.
- Don't talk all the time of how you live back home.
- Do take an interest in how the people you're visiting live.
- Don't constantly compare standards with the standards back home.
- Do accept whatever local standards you find and make the best of things.
- Don't feel superior to the locals wherever you are because you have more money than they have.
- Do respect their customs, observe their laws and treat them as equals.
- And, above all, always remember you are guest in a foreign country and should behave as such.

Wilson Boosts Stature

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — The Rhodesian crisis has given James Harold Wilson the aura of statesmanship that hitherto eluded the British prime minister with the computer-like brain.

The personal performance of the 49-year-old socialist leader, mixing moderation and toughness, has won the admiration of critics even though some have reservations about aspects of his policies.

Near-flawless speeches in the House of Commons and on television were praised by Tory newspapers. The apparent depth of his feelings on this issue involving the Commonwealth may have convinced some true-blue Tories that here, after all, is a socialist who understands Britain's greatness.

Wilson's trip to Rhodesia before it seized independence demonstrated his determination not to stand on dignity but to do everything possible to avoid a break. He ignored those who argued that a British prime minister should not run like an errand boy to bargain with an upstart colony.

Another criticism of Wilson, whose political agility has been renowned since he came to power in October, 1964, is that no one ever can fathom where his heart lies on a particular issue.

WILSON

JUST SHOWMANSHIP?

So fixed is that impression in some minds that they wonder whether Wilson now is staging a dazzling piece of political showmanship. Just how far and how long will the Labor government persist in its pledge to break the Rhodesian stand?

Most sources have no doubt that Wilson is perfectly sincere in his campaign to restore Britain's rights and also to safeguard the rights of the non-white population in Rhodesia. They also point out that there are incidental political benefits that Wilson can gain from the situation:

—By his tough line, he can placate the left wing of his own party which periodically has been on the verge of revolt over what they regard as his unsatisfactory stand on points of socialist doctrine. These include his support of the United States in the Viet Nam war and his delay in nationalizing steel.

—These sources also believe Wilson might bring about a split in the Tory opposition. If sanctions really hurt Rhodesia, elements of the opposition might rebel, putting Edward Heath, the new Tory leader, in an awkward position.

Navy Battle Of Coronel Remembered

Memory of four Canadian midshipmen lost in the Battle of Coronel will be honored Sunday by cadets of HMCS Venture.

The fierce encounter occurred Nov. 1, 1914, between the German and British navies off the coast of Chile.

It was a disasterous battle for the British.

Lost was the battleship HMS Good Hope with most of her men. Four Canadian midshipmen were among the dead.

The naval officer cadets will parade behind HMCS Naden band to Esquimalt Garrison Church, Esquimalt Rd., to attend the special service.

VANIER TELLS TEEN-AGERS

Loyalty Must Be To All Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians must place loyalty to the country as a whole above provincial interests, Governor-General Vanier told 140 teen-agers Friday.

The young people are attending the 34th annual national 4-H Club conference. The conference moves to Toronto today.

"We are all proud of our own particular part of Canada but as we come to know and understand our friends from other provinces, we will realize that our greatest and most worthwhile loyalty must be to Canada as a whole," Gen. Vanier said.

The governor-general spoke to the young people at Government House.

In the audience were two Eskimo girls from the Northwest Territories, as well as a small group of visiting 4-H members from the United States. The Eskimo girls, Luisa Tsetso, 19, of Fort Simpson, and Nellie Raymond, 21, of Tuktoyaktuk, are making their first visit to southern Canada.

Departing from his prepared text, Gen. Vanier said he was glad to learn that both English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians were attending the conference.

OUTLINES DUTY

"I want to try to make you understand that you are not only important as a body. It is the duty of every one of you personally to do what you can to bring about unity in the country.

"An organization such as the 4-H club provides you with a priceless opportunity to discover the real meaning and purpose of life—by which I mean service to one another and to one's country.

"Just as we can only know freedom when we have self-discipline, so can we only have a full and complete life when we dedicate ourselves to determining how much we can give to others instead of how much we can take for ourselves."

Gen. Vanier was thanked by 18-year-old Doreen Lock of Dauphin, Man. Speaking on behalf of the group, she said the visit to Government House was "the highlight of the conference."

PHILIPPINES

Marcos Holds Unbeatable Vote Margin

MANILA (AP) — President-elect Ferdinand E. Marcos, with his official vote tally still mounting, called today on the law-enforcement agencies of The Philippines to foil any "attempt to alter the will of the electorate."

Marcos issued the statement in the face of incumbent president Diosdado Macapagal's refusal to concede defeat despite increasing appeals to do so following Tuesday's vote. Even the official election commission has asked the president to acknowledge his loss.

Marcos, 48, candidate of the Nacionalista Party, surged to an unbeatable lead in unofficial returns Friday night. The Philippine news service, which tabulates votes for all Manila newspapers, quit counting when Marcos built up a lead of 679,975 votes out of more than 8,000,000 cast.

The official election returns confirmed the unswerving Marcos trend. They gave Marcos 3,187,943 votes to 595,200 for Macapagal—a lead of 592,743.

Marcos' followers have charged that Macapagal's Liberal party would try to pad his vote, particularly on the big island of Mindanao which has 2,000,000 potential votes and was considered a Macapagal stronghold.

Taxes Hiked, Spending Cut In W. Germany

BONN (Reuters)—West Germans are being hit where it hurts—in their bulging purses—as Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and his new cabinet implement drastic plans to guard against inflation and balance the 1966 budget.

In a determined attempt to slash planned extra spending by some 7,200,000,000 marks ($1,800,000,000) the government is pushing through a bill which will:

1. Increase the tax on sparkling wines by 50 per cent and on spirits by 20 per cent.

2. Lop 900,000,000 marks ($225,000,000) off planned extra spending on defence and 210,000,000 marks ($52,500,000) off extra civil-defence spending.

3. Cut federal aid to East German refugees by about 70,000,000 marks ($17,500,000).

4. Delay a promised pay hike for civil servants and planned extra benefits under the national assistance, maternity aid and war compensation plans.

The 18-point bill, which has brought a storm of protest, also affects oil tax, house-building and plans to extend the inland waterways system.

The first stage of the plan—due to take effect Jan. 1 after emergency parliamentary approval—will mean a saving of some 2,200,000,000 marks ($550,000,000).

A special cabinet commission has been appointed to slash the planned budget spending to 69,400,000,000 marks—still 8.5 per cent higher than the 1965 estimate.

SECRET service agent Rufus Youngblood, credited with fast action to protect President Johnson when John F. Kennedy was assassinated, is being promoted to one of four new posts of assistant director of the U.S. Secret Service in a reorganization.

SECOND CRASH IN 5 DAYS FOR AIRLINER SURVIVOR

That was Lieut. John H. Sullivan's thought Thursday night when United Air Lines Boeing 727 airliner crash-landed short of a Salt Lake City Airport runway and turned into flaming death for 41 persons.

Sullivan, 24, of Malden, Mass. was one of the 50 survivors. It was the second time in five days he had lived through an air crash.

He had been the navigator on a U.S. Air Force C-124 Globemaster that collided with a small plane Sunday over Tulsa, Okla. Sullivan was en route back to Hill Air Force Base—30 miles north of Salt Lake—with three other crew members who survived the Oklahoma collision.

The other three didn't escape death Thursday.

As the tri-jet bellied into the ground, lost its main landing gear and twisted down the runway, Sullivan saw flames burst from the rear of the plane.

"The first indication that anything might have been wrong was when I felt this large surge of power, as if the pilot was trying to get extra power up," Sullivan said at Hill Air Force Base hospital.

Sullivan said everyone sat still until the plane came to rest. Then there was a mad dash for the emergency exits.

"There was panic," Sullivan said. "There was no consideration for other people, no consideration whatsoever. They all started to knock out the emergency exit windows and smoke started to fill the plane.

"There was an exit right behind my seat, but everyone was cramming to get out. I dashed for the other side but so many people were squeezing out I had to wait my turn. Suddenly there was a flash of light and dense black smoke enveloped us."

King-To-Be Nears Adulthood

PRINCE CHARLES
. . . more duties

By DON DALLAS

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince Charles, a dark-haired, fun-loving schoolboy, will celebrate his 17th birthday quietly Sunday as plans to groom him to become king move into higher gear.

Today, Charles, Prince of Wales, hovers uncertainly in the twilight between boyhood and manhood. But within 12 months he will increasingly be taking over adult responsibilities as heir to the throne.

Already, he has had his first experience of royal public duties. Last July, he helped his parents give a garden party for 600 Commonwealth and Scottish students at Holyrood Palace in Scotland.

The Prince's scheduled three and-a-half months stay from February next year at the "Oimbertop" division of the Geelong grammar school in Australia is an important part of the planned program in preparing a king.

His parents, Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, are believed to hold the view that an open-air, "toughening" life is good in character training, and that members of the royal family should get to know different Commonwealth countries at first hand.

In 12 months' time, Prince Charles becomes liable to serve as one of the counsellors of state who collectively exercise most of the Queen's powers when she is out of the country. They include the Duke of Edinburgh, if he is not abroad with the Queen, and the four adults next in line of succession to the throne.

WILL HEAD CHURCH

As King of England, Charles would automatically be head of the established Church of England. Last April, he underwent a ceremony of confirmation as a member of the church.

Another ceremony in store for the prince is the important one of installation as a Knight of the Garter at a date still to be decided by the Queen.

On his accession to the throne, he will automatically become head of all the armed forces.

It is usual for the heir to the throne to spend some time training with one of the services—traditionally the navy.

He is fond of sport, including boxing, shooting and yachting. He rides with his parents, has gone fox-hunting, and loves dogs.

Though he has much in common with many of the other boys at Gordonstoun, the private school in Scotland which he now attends, one thing inevitably marks him out—he is the prospective king.

Princess Turns Town Into Tizzy

The princess, the Earl of Snowdon and their royal entourage and guests stayed there Friday night.

"We didn't have silverware," said Mrs. Johnson. "So my sister, Grace, and I pooled our wedding sterling. Other people loaned demitasse cups. They didn't match, and we were going to use the old - fashioned motel coffee cups, but at the last minute we used the neighbors' anyway."

The royal party today tours scenic Lake Powell, created by the new Glen Canyon Dam on the Colorado River between Utah and northern Arizona. They planned to return to Tucson, Ariz., later in the day.

They drove over the dam, opened last year, and rode across the reddish sand plateau six miles out of town to the motel.

Patients Entertained

Official Prepares For New Election

OTTAWA (UPI) — Confronted with another minority government, Canadian Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay has ordered his 500 tons of supplies for another national vote.

He isn't convinced there's one coming any day or anything like that—it takes four or five months to get the supplies—but he must be prepared as quickly as possible for a vote.

"I'm like Mother Hubbard. My cupboard is bare and I have to fill it up," joked Castonguay Wednesday.

"I'm supposed to be able to hold an election at any time."

Castonguay, who has handled five elections in the last five years, said that when the government is in a minority situation it's more urgent that he be ready to go at any time.

"But you don't expect an election right away?" he asked a reporter. "If you do, what kind of cigarettes are you smoking?"

The order has gone out for 40 tons of ballot paper, the 165 different forms needed for an election and the thousands of pounds of pencils, erasers and other supplies.

They all add up to 500 tons.

Meanwhile, Castonguay has to pay the bills and add up the cost of Monday's election. Roughly he figures it will come to about $13,500,000 or about $1.25 per elector.

How did the election go? Castonguay coolly replies "there were problems."

Names were missed during the advance enumeration of voters by 70,000 collectors. There was a bomb threat in Montreal that turned out to be a dud and a polling station burned down in Quebec.

And there was the dog named "Scamp" who got listed as a voter.

"But we didn't lose any ballot boxes."

UBC Inherits $177,755 From Victorian

The University of British Columbia has inherited $177,755 for the expansion and improvement of its department of psychology.

The bequest was made by Dr. Gladys C. Schwesinger, who died on July 12, 1964. She was a member of UBC's first graduating class in 1916 and lived at 309 Belleville, Victoria.

Dr. Schwesinger was a member of the University Women's Club of Victoria. After graduation from UBC, she moved to the United States, received her master of arts in psychology at Harvard University and her Ph.D. in education and psychology at Columbia University.

She lived in New York until 1944, when she moved to California and became president of the California Youth Association.

Theft of Vanilla Costs Man 1 Month

A man was sent to jail for a month Tuesday for the theft of a 61-cent bottle of vanilla extract.

James Sorboe, 1450 Douglas, told court he had been drunk for about two weeks when he committed the theft at Gem Grocery, Superior Street. Jim Waller, owner of the store, said Sorboe bought one bottle of extract and put another in his pocket.

Mr. Waller stopped him when he left the store and held him for police. While they were waiting Sorboe drank some of the extract.

DOUG PEDEN, Sports Editor

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

I know how Donnie Richardson felt late Thursday afternoon at Laurel race course in Maryland.

He felt like the fellow whose wife ran off with the mailman, whose kids came home with F's on their report cards and whose furnace wouldn't run because the oilman forgot to call.

Authorities at Laurel (an authority is anybody with enough loot, say $2, to get to the seller's wickets) were moved to believe that George could succeed where no other Canadian horse had been close.

Experts echoed a similar refrain.

History records that George Royal arrived late at the finish line, fourth to be precise. The general concensus is that George simply lacks the dual carburetors of today's contemporary hotfoots.

Fourth is hardly indecent, but it offers little solace when first is worth 90,000 green slips of paper.

Now it was Friday morning and Richardson was on the blower.

"How do I feel? Well, ah was kinda sick about foah o'clock yestiddy afternoon. Ah thought George didn't have it.

"But ah'm much better now. Just came from watching the film of the race. Ah wannah tell you, Ah had the best horse. Ah had the winnah.

Wonderful, what films can do for you. I saw a film once of Brigitte Bardot modelling the latest thing in clothes—no clothes—and for the next three weeks . . . well, you know.

C'mon, Donnie. How does the film of the Laurel make the fourth-place horse the best horse?

"Ah'm tellin' you, nothing worked for us.

"George is last goin' to the three-eighths pole, but we aren't moah than a good four lengths out of it.

★ ★ ★

"Then everybody moves at once. I tole Bill (Shoemaker) 'when you hit the three-eighths pole, whack him and set him down.'

"But when they all go, in a cluster, Shoe is on the outside of foah.

"Ordinarily this wouldn't kill us, but you got to know about this track. It's two tracks. What ah mean is that the inside is flat and trim, about three horses wide from the rail. But we're on the second track. It's cut up, full of potholes an' ridges.

"This doesn't help but we'ah still gonna' make it. Then all of a sudden the Ahgentine horse (Berenjenal) comes out and whacks us. I don't mean jus' makes contact. He really belts us. George is knocked raht off stride and that finishes it.

Shoe righted George and we were flyin' the last eighth. We had too much to make up but we still only blow it by less than a length an' a half. Lookit the chart."

SEVENTH RACE: 1½ miles

HORSE		¼	½	M.	Str.	Fin.
Diatome	3-3	3-2	4-1	4-1½	1-no
Carvin II	6-2½	5-hd	5-1½	1-hd	2-1¼
Roman Brother	1-hd	2-3	2-½	2-hd	3-ns
George Royal	7	7	7	5-1½	4-1½
Hail to All	4-1½	4-1½	3-1	3-1	5-1½
Benenjenal	5-hd	6-4	6-1½	6-4	6-8
Super Sam II	2-3½	1-hd	1-hd	7	7

Winner: Dk. Brown C. by Sicahbre-Dictaway, by Honeyway. Trained by Watson, bred by Baron Guy de Rothschild, France

Went to post: 3:50, off 3:50. Course firm.

Mutuel prices:
Diatome	$11.60	$ 6.60	$4.00
Carvin II		29.20	7.80
Roman Brother			3.20

DIATOME broke alertly with Roman Brother and settled into third position along the inside. He raced in closest pursuit to the half where Hail To All moved on the outside, placing him in a pocket. He had clear running into the stretch but could not stay with Carvin II and had to be checked for a stride to cross over that rival's heels at the 3/16th marker, then closed resolutely under whipping and was up in the last strides. CARVIN II made up ground gradually and failed to last in a determined effort. ROMAN BROTHER gained a slight advantage under pressure entering the stretch and held on well. GEORGE ROYAL was steadied along to set his own pace behind the field, gradually came to the outside racing into contention on the stretch turn and finished willingly under left-hand whipping while near the middle of the course. HAIL TO ALL, lightly steadied outside the second flight early, was sent to the pace completing a mile, couldn't wrest command from Roman Brother in the early stretch and was up on six strides passing the furlong pole. BERENJENAL was well placed along the outside entering the stretch and lacked the necessary response. SUPER SAM settled into stride a couple of lengths behind Roman Brother and rushed up to head him in the final first furlong while under double wraps, paced him under restraint into the final turn and gave way suddenly when put to a drive.

(Copyright, 1965, by Triangle Publications Inc. and Morning Telegraph.)

Ernie Hammond, one of George's co-owners, later thrust a shaft into Shoemaker. The rider's judgment, Hammond said, was not necessarily A-Okay in letting the horse get too far out of it in the first part. Since he had predicted George would triumph, Hammond's holler had the whiff of a sad loser.

Richardson rode horses, and well, before circumstance took him out of the saddle and raised him to the lofty eminence of handler. He knows the knocks riders have to take, having taken some solid ones himself.

Now he was saying, tactfully: "When Bill reached down and hit George at the three-eighths pole, we might have sailed past them and avoided the bad spots on the road an' the collision if Shoe kept after him with the stick.

"But Bill told me he thought he had so much horse undah him, he decided to wait until they straightened out for home. George is funny; he tends to pull himself up if you don't keep aftah him."

★ ★ ★

In the only line which could be construed as criticism, Richardson said: "Ah believe Bill would have done things differently had he bin on George befoah. Foah instance, he wouldn't have been so fah back from the stand to the head of the backstretch, not with thet slow pace. Actually, Bill didn't take him back—George takes himself back. But he could have bin closer and come on the way he did in the Canadian Championship."

What next?

"We goin' to ship to Santa Anita and let George have two, three weeks off. Then we'll go aftah them. And we'll get the job done. I still think ah have the best horse in the world."

Trojans Trampled 32-13 By Island's Grid Champs

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Solid in all departments, the Oak Bay tide swept over Vancouver's Renfrew Trojans 32-13 in Friday's sudden-death playoff for the B.C. crown at Royal Athletic Park.

Oak Bay scored its victory with comparative ease to support manager Jack Groves' claim that the Vancouver Island champions are "the best-balanced" squad ever to perform in the 11-year history of the Island circuit.

"This has to be the best-balanced club we've ever had," said Groves. "The defence has won as many games as the offence.

"Any time we've tried anything new or different, the boys have always made it go . . ."

1,200 FANS

And everything was "go" for the Farmers on Friday before a chilled crowd of about 1,200 fans. The offence staked out a 20-6 lead before the half, and there was rarely any doubt about the outcome after that.

Coach Roy Hurtig's Trojans couldn't match Oak Bay in either experience or muscle. Although bolstered by five 19-year-olds, Renfrew just couldn't dig up a defence to contain Oak Bay's potent rushing game.

There is a six-month difference in the age limit of juveniles eligible to play in Vancouver's Big Four League compared with the Island players. The Island League has a six-month advantage, and the difference seemed to be obvious Friday.

RUSHERS RAMBLE

Oak Bay quarterback Bob Wicks directed Farmers in workmanlike fashion. End Cam Crofton, Farmers' most valuable player, came up with some key pass receptions, but it was the ground game that proved to be the "bread-and-butter" weapon for Oak Bay.

Leading the way in that department were fullbacks Dave Young and Jim Forward and halfback Terry Ryan.

Forward paced the scorers with two touchdowns. Ryan and Wicks each added one and Lloyd Murphy wound up the scoring with two converts and a pair of great field goals from 42 and 31 yards out.

Trojans had to count on the arm of quarterback Bob Norman for their scoring. Norman tossed payoff passes to Jeff Wallace and Jeff Hodgson. Renfrew made good on one of its two convert attempts when Don Andrews passed to Norman for the single point.

Norman was forced to adopt a passing game early, but was constantly rushed by an Oak Bay defence led by Jim Edwards and Keith Aldridge.

Thunderbirds Show Class At Esquimalt

University of British Columbia Thunderbirds defeated University of Victoria Vikings, 9-2, in an exhibition hockey game played Friday night before about 1,200 fans at Esquimalt Municipal Centre.

Goals by Les Johannesen and Keith Klenmets gave Birds an early 2-0 lead. Jim Haggarty got one back but before Jim Shkwork got Vikings' second goal, it was 5-1 and the visitors had things under control.

BY CHINOOKS

Bigger Blanket Needed

Victoria Chinooks have had their warning.

They know today they will have to stretch their defensive blanket to include Rick Inrig.

Chinooks, who must beat Kerrisdale Merchants at Central Junior High School tonight in order to keep first place for themselves in the Inter-City Junior Basketball League, had been alerted to give special attention to one Merchant sniper.

They were prepared for trouble from Bill Humphries, a six-foot sniper who holds down third place in the league's individual scoring race.

SPARKED ATTACK

Now they are also trying to figure a way to also shove Rick Inrig under the same defensive blanket.

Inrig, a mere six-three, blossomed out as a potent point-collector Friday night at the University of Victoria gymnasium as Merchants warmed up for tonight's chores by clipping the Uvic Vikings 61-54. Inrig sparked the attack with a 23-point effort.

And that's not the end to Chinook trepidations.

INTERIOR PRODUCTS

Two of them earned their hoop spurs in interior towns. Six-four Jordan Ellis joined the Merchants from Penticton and Glen Weyr moved in from Hope. The other two are diminutive guard Gary Cook and forward Paul Bazley.

Chinooks hold a two-point lead over four mainland clubs, including Kerrisdale, YMCA and UBC Braves, who will also be in action tonight.

Quebec Streak Ends In Brawl-Filled Bout

(Times News Services)

BALTIMORE—Baltimore Clippers snapped Quebec Aces' seven-game American League winning streak Friday night with a 4-3 victory, but hockey seemed to be only secondary in importance.

Fights were first.

As the buzzer sounded to end the roughly-fought game, Quebec coach Bernie Geoffrion charged the press box with arms flinging wildly. He failed to connect as officials scattered, and several of his own players managed to leap the dash boards and restrain him.

At the end of the second period, a fight erupted in the stands among some spectators and police had to move in to restore order.

With four minutes remaining in the game, Quebec's Bill Sutherland and Baltimore's Ted Taylor mixed it up in the penalty box and were banished from the game by referee Bill Friday, but not before a wild-swinging melee that nearly emptied both benches.

In all, 26 penalties totalling 74 minutes were handed out in the game.

IT'S C-C-C-COLD IN C-C-C-CALGARY

Snow-blowing machines were kept busy in Calgary as ground crews attempted to keep the McMahon Stadium turf free of the white stuff until today's first game of the Western Football Conference final. Calgary Stampeders tangled with Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a best-of-three final for a berth in the Grey Cup game at Toronto Nov. 27. (CP Wirephoto.)

Sam Cutting Ties With Als' Squad

Spinning the Sports Sphere . . .

Sam Etcheverry, assistant coach of Montreal Alouettes, said Friday he is severing connection with the Eastern Football Conference club Dec. 1, when his current contract expires.

Etcheverry, former Alouette quarterback, said he is leaving football for "strictly personal reasons" but indicated that he might be interested in a different post with the club.

He said he is in Montreal "to stay," and added he has received "no job offers."

If the Alouettes offered him a post "in another capacity, I'd be willing to talk."

Veteran Antonio Cerda of Mexico smashed the Bellavista course record Friday with a four-under-par 68 to take the halfway lead in the Mexican Open golf championship at Mexico City.

His 138 total gave him a one-stroke margin over Billy Maxwell of the United States.

Wilf Homeniuk of Winnipeg, Canadian professional champion, matched par 72 for the second straight day for 144 to hold a tie for ninth spot.

Other Canadian scores were: Bill Wakeham, 75-75—150; Alvie Thompson, 76-76—152; Andre Harvey, 79-75—154; and Leon Decarie, 77-78—155.

Claremont High School will take on Lester Pearson High of New Westminster in an exhibition boys' basketball game tonight at 7:30 in the Claremont gymnasium.

Lester Pearson soccer players got into action Friday and dropped a 4-0 decision to Oak Bay High, runner-up in the city final last week.

In an exhibition basketball tussle Friday night, Victoria High Totems thumped Esquimalt 74-18 as Ollie Moilanen fired 16 points for the Vics.

Leafs Hoping To Give Bucks Cooler Head

How do you cool off a hot goaltender?

Victoria Maple Leafs would like to find out.

In fact, it is imperative that the Leafs learn about an effective refrigeration system before 8:30 tonight.

At that time the Leafs step out at Memorial Arena for a Western Hockey League game against Portland Buckaroos and unless they can give Portland goalie Don Head a case of the chills, the Victorians will probably slip four points behind the pace-setting Portlanders.

Head, the churlish custodian who once set a league record by collecting 101 minutes in penalties in a single season, is the fellow who blanked the Leafs 6-0 last Wednesday in Portland. That defeat dropped the Leafs into a first-place deadlock with the Bucks.

SECOND SHUTOUT

Friday night at Seattle, Head was still as hot as a two-bit pistol. He blocked all the 24 shots the Totems hurled his way to post his second successive shutout.

Ernie Wakely, shipped in by Montreal Canadiens earlier in the day to replace Seattle goalie Jim McLeod, had he same number of shots to handle. But he missed once and the Bucks had a 1-0 triumph and a two-point lead over the Leafs.

Burley defenceman Connie Madigan took over when Wakely continued to thwart the Portland fowards. Madigan rapped a shot behind Wakely on a play with Tom McVie for the game's only goal late in the second period.

JONES SIDELINED

Portland, which played without the services of league scoring leader Art Jones, sidelined by 'flu, has now downed Seattle 11 straight times.

Totems, who blew a great chance when they had a two-man advantage in the first period, slipped into a last-place tie with Los Angeles Blades.

Vancouver Canucks also took the shutout route at San Francisco, grabbing a share for third place as they blanked the Seals 3-0.

Excellent defensive work by the Canucks made things easy for goalie Gilles Villemure, who had only two difficult saves in his 22 stops.

Canucks managed only 19 shots at Jack McCartan but they made good on two of six in the opening period and added a third, by Larry Popein, in the third session.

Bob Kabel, and Phil Maloney fired Vancouver's first-period tallies.

NEW GROUP PURCHASES . . . . . VANCOUVER HOCKEY CLUB

Foster Gets Part of Canucks

VANCOUVER (CP)—A newly-formed company has purchased Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

The company, made up of several British Columbia businessmen, a Toronto hockey broadcaster, and a part-owner of the Minnesota Twins, purchased the Canucks from Fred Hume, who took over the club before the 1962-63 season.

The new owners are headed by B.C. Telephone Co. chairman Cyrus B. McLean, who was named president of the club.

McLean's group, called the Vancouver Hockey Club Ltd., paid $500,000 for the franchise which Hume purchased from the Pacific National Exhibition for about $174,000.

It has been estimated that Hume lost about $100,000 operating the team in the last three seasons. He will retain a 10 per cent interest in the club.

All but two of the 13 shareholders in the new company are from Vancouver.

The other is Theodore S. Gray of Minneapolis, a part-owner of the Minnesota Twins of the American baseball League. He is also a director of the B.C. Telephone Co.

Trade Pot Boiling With Leafs, Bruins

HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Question: Because of the number of injuries that result from wild slap shots, do you think they should be barred from hockey? L.B., Winnipeg.

Answer: Every now and then there has been agitation to ban the slap shot, possibly due to injuries, or maybe to cut down the bills for the additional hockey sticks broken on slap shots.

I don't agree that it is a major cause of injuries. I've always claimed that the shot that does the most damage is the backhand shot. Because, on a backhand shot, you follow through and when the blade comes up it stays high.

I always tell the youngsters in my hockey school to practise every phase of shooting, backhand, slap shot, wrist and the drag.

★ ★ ★

There are occasions when you haven't time to set yourself for a slap shot. The major argument against the slap shot is that the additional time needed for it gives the defence as well as the goaltender a warning and greater opportunity to block it.

So I always emphasize the importance of practising every phase of shooting.

There are times when the puck is in a position where it is impossible to get the wrist shot away without dragging it.

★ ★ ★

I taught my own youngsters the wrist shot first of all.

It is a push and pull action. You pull with the upper hand and you push and just turn over slightly with the bottom hand which delivers most of the power.

Many players, as well as fans, don't realize the power that is developed when you pull the top hand towards you sharply as you thrust with the lower hand.

Sharpshooters like Alex Delvecchio, Norm Ullman, Henri Richard, Stan Mikita, Dave Keon, Frank Mahovlich and Ralph Backstrom will surprise you with the speed of their wrist shots. And it was the chief scoring threat weapon of the great Maurice (Rocket) Richard

By The Canadian Press

The trade pot is boiling again in the National Hockey League and the hottest rumor concerns the bottom three teams in the league — Detroit Red Wings, Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins.

The Bruins in their accustomed position at the bottom of the standings with four points in eight starts, are reported to be working on a major player swap with either Toronto or Detroit.

In Boston, the version is that Bruins' general manager Hap Emms has been trying to drum up business since Monday. But he had no comment Friday on trade possibilities.

MAY START HAGGLING

Toronto is at Boston Sunday night and if there's anything to the rumors, Emms and manager-coach Punch Imlach of the Leafs are certain to get together for some haggling.

In other weekend action, New York Rangers play at Toronto tonight while Montreal Canadiens visit Chicago Black Hawks. Other games Sunday night have Montreal at Detroit and New York at Chicago.

Imlach was tight-lipped about any trades, but he said that rookie Brit Selby, a left winger with the Leafs, is in the NHL to stay this season.

Selby has played six games with the Leafs, which means he can't be shipped back to the minors unless Toronto first puts him on waivers.

"You can bet I have no intentions of risking waivers on Selby," said Imlach. "He may not take a regular turn in every game, but he's here to stay."

TEST OUT WALTON

Imlach also said that Walton will join the Leafs for a trial later in the season, which indicates he doesn't plan to trade him. He also had praise for Brian Conacher, a sophomore forward with Rochester.

"We're trying to buy more time for our young players in the minors," Imlach said. "That's where they'll get the necessary ice time and experience."

Emms isn't working in quite the same way.

"I'll play kids if I have to," he said, adding that he will make changes if the Bruins don't win games. They've won just once so far.

GET WRIST INTO YOUR WEDGE

SINCE THE WEDGE SHOT IS PLAYED WITH A SHORTER AND MUCH EASIER THAN NORMAL SWING, THE TENDENCY OF MOST GOLFERS IS TO FAIL IN APPLYING THE NECESSARY 'HIT'.

FOR THIS REASON I FEEL THAT A BIT MORE WRIST ACTION MUST BE USED WITH THE WEDGE.

THIS ALLOWS THE CLUBHEAD TO DESCEND MORE SHARPLY INTO THE BALL AND ASSURE CRISP CONTACT.

YOU CANNOT SWING A WEDGE AS YOU SWING A DRIVER, WITH A LONG SWEEPING ACTION. YOU MUST UTILIZE THE WRISTS TO APPLY THE PUNCH.

BETTY BREIGHTON
. . . bowler of the week

Betty, who gets kicks out of swimming and beating her husband on the tenpin lanes, cracked the weekly award list by rolling a three-game scratch series of 574 in the Funlovers League at Aurora Lanes. Top-average bowler in the Dockyard League last season, Mrs. Breighton hit her winning score on games of 215, 190 and 169.

Along with all other winners of weekly awards in the 27-week Times' contest, Betty is eligible to compete in the Bowler-of-the-Year rolloff next May.

BONUS PRIZE OF $100

At stake in each of four divisions of the rolloff will be a Times Trophy and any rolloff champion who is a subscriber to The Daily Times will also receive a bonus prize of $100.

Bowlers in all regular leagues on southern Vancouver Island are eligible to win weekly awards in the contest. Four awards are presented each week to those who post the highest scores in each of the four divisions—men's and women's fivepins, men's and women's tenpins.

Some pin-spillers have apparently believed that scores registered on some lanes using new type of automatic pinsetters would not be accepted for the Times' competition. Contest officials emphasize that all bowlers in regular leagues on all southern Island lanes are eligible to win awards.

Denny's Boys Love to Run

Victoria High Tyees might be wise to be prepared to scamper when they go gunning for the Vancouver Island high school soccer championship and the Times Trophy.

Their opponents just love to run.

Clashing with the Tyees in the Island final at Royal Athletic Park Tuesday will be Alberni District High School, which has parlayed a fast-breaking attack and a solid defence into the northern Island championship.

Coached by basketball star Denny Grisdale, the Alberni boys have marched to six straight victories and even if they lose their final league tussle this weekend to Courtenay, they will still wind up with the northern crown.

Leading the Alberni attack is centre-forward Ken Elmer, who moved to Alberni from Vancouver three years ago. Elmer has been the trigger man for Alberni's hard-running short-passing forwards and has collected 16 goals in his six games.

BLANKED NANAIMO

Bulwark of the strong defence that twice blanked the powerful Nanaimo entry in a pair of 1-0 victories is centre-half Dennis St. Jacques, rated one of the league's outstanding players.

Grisdale has achieved fine results with a young team, comprised mainly of Grade XI players. Alberni was not expected to finish ahead of Nanaimo but had the speed and defence to upset the Coaltown crew.

His booters will probably be underdogs against the lower Island champs, but Grisdale isn't conceding a thing.

"We have no way of knowing how we compare with Victoria High," he said Friday, "but we have a fast club and we have a great defence. I think we have a chance to surprise them."

Alberni will try to spring that surprise Tuesday, starting at 4 p.m.

STILL IN TOW is the Russian trawler T-338 which was in collision with the Vancouver trawler Aleutian Queen Wednesday. As a result of the collision, cook Oud Gronlund, of North Surrey, lost his life and skipper Oistein Hansen, of South Burnaby, lost his boat. Legendary Hunter Dies of Heart Attack

Mr. Dewar, 61, joined the fish and game branch in 1935 and later became the first man in B.C. appointed official predator hunter.

Born in Scotland, he became a near-legend among hunters for his many exploits in the bush.

Fine, Suspension For Impaired Man

A North Vancouver man who drove his car 500 feet off the road pleaded guilty Friday in central court to being impaired in charge of a car.

William P. Vivian, 124 West 18th St., N. Van., was fined $300 and prohibited from driving for three months.

Police said he was found asleep behind the wheel of his car at the end of a footpath in Gorge Park Wednesday afternoon. He was abusive to police when wakened and told them his car had been parked at that spot for two weeks.

No Briefs For Probe At Duncan

DUNCAN — The provincial Royal Commission on redistribution of legislative seats will sit here Monday evening.

But it appears there will be no presentations made by any group or individual asking for changes.

The commission hearing submissions is chairman H. F. Angus, F. H. Hurley, K. L. Morton and secretary G. R. Bradbrook.

Sitting member for Cowichan-Newcastle, Robert M. Strachan said today: "I'll be at the hearing but not to make suggestions for any radical changes.

"Cowichan-Newcastle is a fairly average constituency and easily accessible so there isn't much to complain about."

He said he would be keeping a watching brief regarding possible changes in adjoining constituencies."

The commission, set up Aug. 5 to study electoral boundaries in the province, sits in Nanaimo on Tuesday, Alberni Wednesday, Comox Thursday and Powell River Friday.

The following week it moves to the mainland for sittings at Richmond and White Rock on Nov. 22 and Abbotsford Nov. 23.

The final sitting will open in Vancouver Nov. 29 and remain open until all submissions have been heard.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

Head-On Crash Kills Hotel Man

CAMPBELL RIVER — Local hotel manager Richard Bennett, 34, was killed Friday in a head-on collision.

Mr. Bennett, who took over the Discovery Inn only four months ago, leaves the widow and three daughters.

He was returning from Vancouver when the collision occurred at Willow Point.

Driver of the other car, Edward Shannon, of Campbell River, is in fair condition.

Both men were alone at the time of the crash.

Mr. Bennett was formerly manager of the Airport Inn, Vancouver, for three years.

Mr. Shannon, an employee of Elk Falls Co. Ltd., lives at 351 Island Highway.

Coroner P. E. Lewis was to open an inquest this afternoon.

NORTH COWICHAN — Cowichan Agricultural Society directors joined other groups this week in protesting fees levied by the provincial pathological laboratory at Clearbrook.

Farmers are annoyed at the laboratory's decision to charge for disease analysis—a service previously carried out free of charge.

The society's delegate to the B.C. Federation of Agriculture convention in Victoria Nov. 23-24 was instructed to support two resolutions asking for withdrawal of the charges.

★ ★ ★

LAKE COWICHAN — The big drive for a new Cowichan Lake Road has been stalled — by Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

But lumber mill boss Peter Stone of Hillcrest, Mesachie Lake, said Friday: "We hope the delay is temporary."

Mr. Stone has been trying for the past two months to have the premier meet a delegation.

Logging and trucking companies have the backing of the IWA and Duncan and Lake Cowichan Chambers of Commerce in pushing for a new road.

When Mr. Stone made his first approach to the premier in September, Mr. Bennett was in Europe.

A second letter in October was acknowledged — but no date set for a meeting.

Mr. Stone said: "Maybe it will be third time lucky. I'm going to write to Mr. Bennett again."

DUNCAN — Adult advisor Jim Quaife of Duncan's Teen Town organization hopes to put the municipal recreation commission on the spot.

His recent request for a community hall site was sidetracked when he was told "come up with some details first."

Mr. Quaife is working on it.

He said today: "We have approached a number of firms and have been quoted prices of $2.50 per square foot."

Mr. Quaife said this would cover cost of the shell of a prefabricated building 180 by 120 feet.

NANAIMO—A search was being conducted around nearby Nanoose Bay Friday for a fisheries department officer missing and presumed to have drowned.

A search was started Thursday when Rowland MacDonald, 52, of Nanaimo, failed to rendezvous with other fisheries officers for herring patrol duties.

Mr. MacDonald's boat, the Roxburn, was later found aground on mudflats in the bay. RCMP said the anchor chain had been pulled part way up on the flat, but there was no sign of Mr. MacDonald.

Skindivers, RCMP and fisheries officers and a dog were engaged in the search.

Fish Damage Surprise To Mayor

DUNCAN—The city will continue its Cowichan River flood control program—but not at the expense of fish and fishermen.

Mayor Jack Dobson said Wednesday he was surprised to learn damage is being caused to fish-rearing and spawning areas.

James Hatter, director of the provincial fish and game branch, told council the elimination of side channels was having a serious effect on the fish population.

Mr. Hatter said: "If flood control work is continued without regard to the protection of fish then fishery agencies and the district will exeprience considerable economic and recreational loss."

MEETING

City council agreed to meet with fishery officials before more work is done on the Cowichan.

Ald. James Saunders said it should be possible to reopen closed side channels without upsetting the river diking.

Maj.-Gen. C. A. P. Murison was drawn into the issue as chairman of Cowichan-Koksilah Floor Control Committee.

However, he told council: "My committee is in a state of suspended animation."

It last met in 1962.

The committee was formed after serious district flooding in January, 1961.

General Murison said further meetings were not called after the committee failed to enlist either provincial or federal aid for an overall flood control program.

Ladysmith Delays Sawmill Decision

LADYSMITH—Town council has delayed a decision which would bring a $300,000 sawmill here.

Pacific Logging, T. W. MacKenzie Logging and Doman Industries will form one company to build and operate the new mill.

The site proposed is in beach area which would be zoned recreational, according to the council's proposed over-all plan.

Mayor Kathleen Grouhel said Friday: "Zoning for the entire town has been in progress for some time.

"No doubt we will have to make some alterations to the scheme. We have to start somewhere."

Mayor Grouhel said: "Ladysmith will welcome industry providing it is shown it will be beneficial."

There will be about 42 people on the payroll and the entire operation will occupy 107 acres, including land and water areas.

Pleads For Dual Brake Systems

TORONTO (CP) — Chemicals used on icy roads can foul brake lines forcing them to explode during a sudden stop, Deputy Chief John Murray of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Department said yesterday.

"Every automobile should have a secondary braking system," he said on a panel on auto safety sponsored by the Consumers' Association of Canada.

"The single braking systems now in most cars are grossly inadequate."

"Now we can hurtle into eternity in extreme comfort with power steering and reclining seats."

He said disc brakes have a lower incidence of failure that drum brakes and suggested there should be an independent braking system for each wheel of the car.

IN CASE YOU MISSED IT...

QUOTE: Every automobile should have a secondary braking system. The single braking systems now in most cars are grossly inadequate.

OBSERVATION: Studebaker has a (secondary) Dual Brake System. Only 1 other Canadian-built car has such a system. It's Standard Equipment on the 1966 Studebaker. Has been for 4 years.

QUOTE: Disc brakes have a lower incidence of failure than drum brakes.

OBSERVATION: Studebaker offers Disc Brakes as a low cost option on all models. Has since 1963. The rest of the automobile industry is beginning to catch on.

FACT: Many Studebaker owners already have a Dual Brake System. They can face the coming winter with Peace of Mind.

OBSERVATION: Doesn't it really make sense to be a Studebaker Owner? Your family will feel safer in a Studebaker.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1965 —PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

Because of a kink in the 12-mile limit between the tip of Vancouver Island and the Queen Charlottes, a Russian fleet is operating where it has a legal, if perhaps not entirely ethical, right to be, and is making our own fishermen properly mad in the process.

We might take a look at this 45-ship Russian armada

which quitted the Bering Sea for the Aleutian banks and the Gulf of Alaska about two years ago, and in its methodical progress, has now followed the North Pacific hundred-fathom band to an area just off the British Columbia coast.

This is no random klatch of fishboats. It is rather a floating factory; each unit splendidly designed and equipped for its job.

Not only does it catch fish in nets it trails over the sea bottom or in the middle depths. It also processes them on board; and when its units land their impressive tonnage in a Soviet port, the take will go directly to the market as quick-frozen whole fish, fillets, and fish meal.

Three classes of vessels make up the catching and processing machine. Most numerous are side-trawlers of two classes, the first 120 feet long and the other about 170 feet.

Accompanying these are a number of ships in excess of 200 feet and 4,000 tons. These are craft of Russia's stern-trawling "Pushkin" type . . . named euphemistically for a czarist poet, and close kin to Britain's "Fairtry" factory ships.

In total, they are helping make good Russia's boast that she will put a modern fishing fleet in every ocean of the world.

With this program, she's pushing right along. Britain, the United States and Canada are lugging well astern. The closest competitor is Japan.

When we in British Columbia think of salt water fish, our thoughts jump at once to salmon. The Russians in Queen Charlotte Sound aren't after salmon, though, and any they catch must be regarded as strays.

The trawls with which they harvest the sea floor are meant for bottom-dwelling fish, chief among which is a larger cousin of the "shiners" that hang around the barnacled piles of our old wharves.

The ocean perch which has lured so formidable a Soviet array within our island-lines is a little fellow rarely exceeding five pounds in weight. In a relatively narrow offshore strip of hundred-fathom depth, he feeds and swims in tremendous schools.

Salmon - rich as we have been—but are unlikely to be for much longer — we have tended to scorn bottom fish except for the flounder and the black or grey cod. Americans have been buying and liking the silvery ocean perch for about 20 years, but we didn't wake up to his commercial value until 1957.

Even now, most of our limited catch goes to American tables.

Among Canadians who have learned a good deal about the ocean perch is S. J. Westrheim, a scientist working with director Dr. Peter Larkin at the Research Board of Canada's biological station on Departure Bay.

In a recently-concluded survey, Mr. Westrheim spent three years studying the occurence and habits of ocean perch from the Bering Sea approaches to Cape Blanco in Oregon, the limit of its North Pacific commercial range.

While he sees no need for immediate alarm or depletion, Mr. Westrheim does point out that on the few banks where the ocean perch has been heavily fished for, as off the Columbia River and Cape Flattery, it has become hard to catch.

To this he adds a fact which strikes me as significant. On the few banks where the ocean perch has been heavily fished for, as off the Columbia River and Cape Flattery, its numbers have grown scant.

One day we'll need the tasty little fish which these Russian ships are currently garnering by the million, at the edge of our coastal shelf. I hope, when that time comes, he's still there to be caught!

Dr. Lotta Coming To Town

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

It's that time of year again. Frost nips the air. you can see your breath in the morning, people start to think about Christmas.

Once again The Times will sponsor Dr. Hitschmanova's year-end drive to raise funds for her Unitarian Service Committee of Canada.

This year, celebrating its 21st birthday, the USC is still busy and helping feed, clothe and educate children in underdeveloped countries in Europe, the Far East and Asia.

Going into its 13th year of Times sponsorship, the fund is staffed by an energetic and devoted group of workers like Dr. Hitschmanova, who concludes a cross-Canada trip in Victoria on behalf of USC.

Her first effort for the fund in Victoria will be a public meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in St. Andrew's Kirk Hall, 680 Courtney Street. Collections by The Times will commence after the meeting.

All interested persons are invited to attend. Dr. Hitschmanova will show slides with commentary on the USC Flashback on Two Decades.

'I Keep Talking But Nobody Does Anything,' Says Angry Official

Mental Patients Locked Up With Criminals

By PETE LOUDON

Three Victoria residents were in city jail cells today because they are mentally ill and no mental-care hospital beds were available.

Two have been locked up with criminals while awaiting committal to Essondale.

The charge was withdrawn this morning but he is still in jail awaiting transit to a mental hospital.

The story was told today by Robert W. Dudley, spokesman for Canadian Mental Health Association here.

"I keep telling the public but nobody does anything. We're back in the middle ages," he said.

"I'm sick and tired of the mentally ill being locked in cells because there are no hospital beds available. I'm so angry I don't know what to do."

It could happen in any family in the district, he pointed out.

"It is a sad commentary on society that a man should be locked in with criminals because he is sick,"

Mr. Dudley said he knows there are no beds available in the psychiatric ward at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

But somewhere in Jubilee, St. Joseph's, Gorge Road, Mount St. Mary's, Rest Haven or in some of the other private hospitals in Greater Victoria, there are surely some empty beds, he says.

Surely in some places a man with a sick mind can be kept under supervision, he pleads.

He said mental patients waiting transfer to Essondale may have days to wait until paperwork is completed and a police constable is available to take them to the mainland.

Two of the jailed patients were expected to go to the mainland today. But that doesn't remove the stigma of the jail—that stays with them, said Mr. Dudley.

He says if earlier promises by the provincial government for a new mental hospital in Victoria had been kept, it would have been built by now and the situation would have been remedied.

Health Minister Eric Martin's latest promise is for a start in January—but it will take two years to complete.

"Until then, it appears we are going to continue to jail sick people," said Mr. Dudley.

PANCAKE HOUSE CHEFS or university administrators? Who knows when they don hats and aprons to feed hungry hordes of students and professors. Cookout kings are (from left) Chancellor J. B. Clearihue and Dean A. J. Wood, mixing batter, as president Dr. Malcolm Taylor tastes results. Occasion was the chuckwagon breakfast held on Gordon Head campus this morning, part of Uvic homecoming celebrations.

Midnight Crash Kills City Man

Alone, Unnoticed After Hitting Truck

John Perry, 2623 Fifth Street, died alone and unnoticed shortly before midnight in the wreck on Erie Street, just east of Dallas Road.

Nearby residents heard the crash but did not see the wreckage behind the truck when they went out to investigate the noise.

Jim Waller, 225 St. Lawrence, said the noise sounded like a gunshot.

It was several minutes later before a passing motorist, Colin Butts, 24, of 558 David, noticed the collision.

He thought at first that the trailer had reversed into the car. He stopped his car and walked over to the scene.

SLUMPED OVER SEAT

Said Mr. Butts: "I looked in the car and saw a man slumped over the front seat. He was badly injured about the chest. I ran down the street to a house and got the people to call the police.

"Then I went back to the car to see if I could be any help. I felt for the man's pulse but there was none. He was dead then."

Police rushed Mr. Perry to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was pronounced dead. An autopsy was to be performed today.

Police said there is a possibility that Mr. Perry may have suffered a heart attack. Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said he will decide if an inquest is necessary after receiving the post-mortem report.

ON WAY HOME

Mr. Perry apparently was on his way home from work when the accident occurred. Police said his car travelled east on Erie and crashed into a truck at a spot 365 feet east of Dallas.

The truck, loaded with pop bottles, was owned by Goodwill Bottling, 35 Erie Street. Mr. Perry's car was totally wrecked but there was little damage done to the semi-trailer truck.

Born in Scotland, Mr. Perry came to live in Canada in his early 20s. He worked as a longshoreman for the past 30 years.

Mr. Perry is survived by the widow, Margaret, and three sons. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

MEMORIAL FUNDS STOLEN

The theft was committed in the carving shed at Thunderbird Park. Police said the prowler smashed a small window to gain entry.

'FISHY' HUMAN NEARS REALITY

By JIM HUME

The day will come when man will be able to travel under water without packing an air supply with him.

Dr. Sherman W. Day, Seattle, told delegates attending the annual meeting at the Empress Hotel of the North Pacific Surgical Association that experiments with artificial gills had already worked on animals and had passed their first tests with human beings.

"Unfortunately the artificial gill works well near the surface but, at present, is unable to withstand pressure at depth."

Dr. Day said he was confident that the problem of finding a "gill" able to withstand depth pressures would be overcome in the near future.

★ ★ ★

He made his observations during discussion on a paper presented by Dr. Frank C. Henry, Seattle, on pressure effects on skin divers, sand hogs and surgeons.

Dr. Henry had described the difficulties encountered by man on underwater forays, the problem of oxygen supply and the dangers of surfacing from depth too quickly.

Leading the discussion, Dr. Day said once man could eliminate the necessity of "packing his environment with him" many of the problems outlined by Dr. Henry would be removed.

Dr. Day stressed that it was not a lack of oxygen in the sea that forced man to carry with him or have available a supply of air.

★ ★ ★

"There's plenty of oxygen in sea water," Dr. Day said. "The problem is how to extract that oxygen from the sea."

Dr. Day said many experiments had been carried out and that an artificial lung or gill had been designed from silicon rubber.

He said it took four square yards of the material to make a membrane suitable for man.

"We have experimented with animals and found that with the artificial gill they can live below the surface indefinitely drawing their oxygen supply from the sea," he said.

Dr. Day forecast that one day there would be a major breakthrough in "gill" design and that this would presage a new era for men who operate below sea level.

The two-day session, last held in Victoria in 1959, ends this evening.

LIBERAL LEAD INCREASED

Service Vote Dashes Waite Hopes

The last hope of Progressive Conservative Rev. Clifford Waite disappeared today when the armed services vote increased the election night lead of Liberal David Groos in Victoria.

The forces vote raised Mr. Groos' majority to 1,435 from 1,008 on election night, when Mr. Waite refused to concede to the former MP.

This morning, after he heard the results, the former navy chaplain extended "heartiest congratulaions" to Mr. Groos, a former navy captain.

★ ★ ★

The unofficial count (with service vote bracketed) now is:

VICTORIA

David Groos, L	14,092 (683)
Clifford Waite, PC	12,567 (256)
Frank Hunter, SC	9,746 (143)
Lloyd Brereton, NDP	7,272 (125)
W.S.E. Morrison, Communist	376 (1)

ESQUIMALT-SAANICH

George Chatterton, PC	14,793 (219)
Len Stephenson, NDP	9,176 (104)
James Gorst, L	9,112 (483)
Vera Pipes, SC	5,268 (75)

Mr. Waite said he has several jobs in the offing, including a return to the navy and two teaching posts.

"I should know in a few days," he said.

He also said he is willing to be a Conservative candidate again if the party wishes.

The official count of the Victoria civilian votes will take place Monday and on Wednesday in Esquimalt-Saanich. The election night count is made by deputy returning officers, but the official count by returning officers varies little.

WESTERN MAID IN TROUBLE

By RON SUDLOW
Marine Reporter

Today was the Western Maid's turn to receive help.

Charles Loftus, skipper of the Seattle fishboat, reported his craft was taking water in heavy seas off the northern tip of Vancouver Island.

It was in the same area where Wednesday he rescued Vancouver fisherman Oistein Hansen, 53, and his son, Robert, 21.

OUT OF ORDER

The Western Maid reported her pumps were out of order in a message flashed to the Rescue Co-ordination centre in Vancouver.

The RCN ocean-escort HMCS Stettler was dispatched to her aid but a repair crew was having difficulty fixing the pumps at press time.

The Seattle fishboat was taken in tow of another fishing vessel, the Valiant Lady, but engineering personnel of Stettler remained on board.

She was making for Bull Harbor on the northern tip of V.I.

Although the fishboat was shipping water due to malfunction of her pumps, she was not in immediate danger, a navy spokesman said.

It Is Now Time to Enjoy Life And Relax, Says Our Gracie

By AL FORREST

"This is it, this is the farewell tour," Lancashire lass Gracie Fields, 67, said here today.

"I've made a New Year's resolution to relax and enjoy life a bit. I've been living out of a suitcase too long."

Monday night at the Royal Theatre she will sing her big hits like Walter, Walter, Lead Me to the Altar and The Biggest Aspidistra in the World. Then she continues on to Vancouver, Seattle, Edmonton, Calgary, ending her tour—and her career—in New York on Dec. 5.

She chuckled this morning at the suggestion that she was a national institution like Bing Crosby in the United States and Maurice Chevalier of France.

"Now that I'm slipping out of it I can't believe that it happened to me. I was working so hard I didn't notice it before. Now it seems like it happened to another person. It's been a long time."

GRACIE
. . . goodbye kiss

She started her career at her mother's urging at age seven and never looked back. In 1928 she was No. 1 on the hit parade in England and just kept getting better and better.

During the Second World War she won the hearts of servicemen by getting out of a sick bed to go on tour entertaining the troops.

Gracie says she is pleased she is no longer mobbed by fans.

"I never did like crowds about me on the street. I would like to go about shopping without being noticed. It is a great thrill to walk unnoticed to a theatre and then once inside win over a new audience.

"Now I'm going to see some places and relax with my hobbies at home."

●

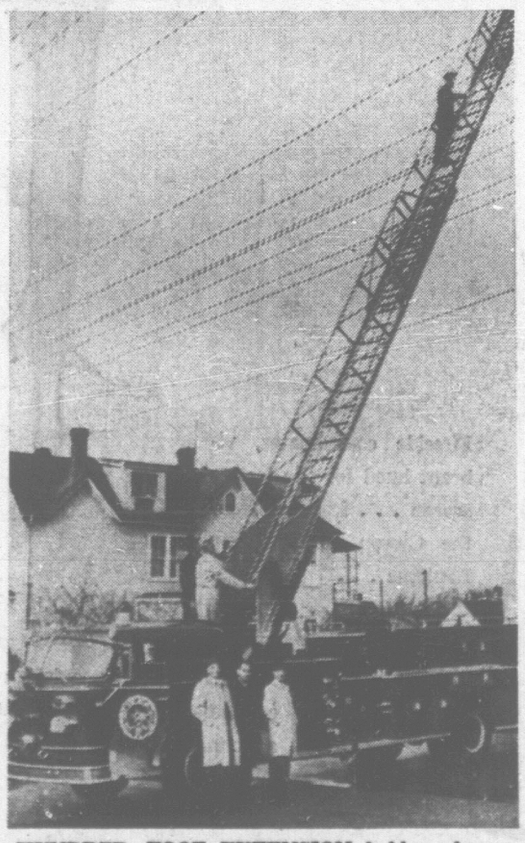
Home is the Isle of Capri where she has lived since she married Boris Olperovici in 1952. He is accompanying her. Gracie's hobbies are sketching and ceramics.

"We're founding an artists' colony in Capri," she says. "I plan to keep busy."

She noted that her farewell tour has taken two years.

"I went to the places this year that I missed last time," she said.

"They asked me to come to Victoria a second time because so many couldn't see it last year. It's all very flattering. But this is it."



HUNDRED-FOOT EXTENSION ladder of new $56,000 fire engine reaches skyward with Victoria deputy fire chief Eric Simmons aboard. Engine also has 250-gallon water tank, small high pressure pump and push-button controls on hose nozzle and spray texture. Watching apparatus from truck deck are former fire chief John Abbott, who ordered engine last spring, and city manager Dennis Young. Standing below are Aldermen Alf Toone and Michael Griffin and inspector-mechanic Robert MacKeen.

Doing The Town

The Year of the Mink . . .

In the old Chinese calendar, each year is designated by the name of an animal . . . (this is the Year of the Snake) . . . but in our book, this year . . . or any other year in which we may be lucky enough to acquire one . . . is the Year of the Mink . . . as it may well be for you, come Dec. 25th! . . . And we remind you that if you're thinking mink, the absolute ultimate in mink is to be found at Scuby Furs . . . They have a magnificent collection of stoles, jackets, boleros, capes, full-length coats . . . ranging in color from the delicate natural pale lavender, to deep, dark natural brown . . . with all the gamut of shades in between . . . The most flattering furs in the world, every one bearing the Canada Majestic label which Canada Mink Breeders accord only to their finest pelts . . . Every garment is smartly and beautifully styled . . . and the selection is so wide that you can't help but find your heart's desire . . . If the budget doesn't run to an expensive stole or jacket this year, there are some lovely small mink pieces, too, like collars, or boas you can wear in four or five different arrangements to lend a note of elegance to a suit or coat . . . even twist into a smart hat . . . And these versatile, top-quality boas may be had for under $100 at . . . Scuby Furs Ltd., 911 Government St., 385-4361.

The flattering deep-V neck . . . both back and front . . . is returning to the fashion scene.

A hat can work magic . . .

You know, it's an indisputable fact . . . proved to our satisfaction times without number . . . that you can wear the plainest dress or suit in your wardrobe . . . (we almost said the oldest!) . . . top it off with an imaginative and beautiful hat . . . and you'll look like a million dollars . . . not to mention basking in a glow of compliments! . . . In Miss Frith's this week we saw hats well calculated to perform this miracle . . . for instance, there's a gunmetal tulle cocktail hat . . . the small kind that sits well back off the face . . . covered with silvery satin leaves, velvet bows, and what look like black cherries . . . A tall black silk net turban fronted with a cluster of silk petals, has dramatic impact . . . another of white mohair with gilt-tipped feathers, besprinkled with pearl, crystal and gold beads . . . a shaded turquoise or cranberry velvet with satin flowers at the back . . . Some delightful lames . . . and while on the subject of lames, we might mention that if you own a small piece of beautiful material . . . or want a cocktail hat to match your dress fabric, Mrs. Parkinson at Miss Frith's will make it up for you quite inexpensively . . . she has real imagination, and the deftest fingers imaginable . . . Miss Frith Millinery and Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., EV 3-4912.

We can scarcely wait to see those "holey" fur coats we've been reading about. Holes cut out of the fur . . . to show glimpses of what's worn beneath!

Set a Lovely Table this Christmas . . .

Maybe it's the thought of the groaning festive board just six weeks from now that makes the contemplation of tables . . . all kinds of tables . . . of uncommon interest to many of us at this time of year . . . If your taste swings to contemporary furniture . . . modern Danish, to be precise . . . you'll find an amazingly fine selection at C. E. Sorvin Ltd., who import their wares directly from the Scandinavian manufacturers . . . These are dining room tables of many shapes and sizes . . . round, oval, oblong . . . all of which can be extended to comfortably seat anywhere from 10 to 14 people . . . Prices for these start at around $80 . . . while appropriate chairs, also in several different designs may be had for as low as $25 . . . ($11.50 for the white, orange or turquoise painted chairs which look exceptionally nice around a teak table!) . . . There are all sorts of small tables too . . . coffee, telephone, lamp . . . One very attractive coffee table is shaped somewhat like a painter's palette . . . These are all teakwood . . . beautifully made . . . and so easy to care for . . . We spotted some very nice desks, too . . . quite inexpensive, and certainly a handsome and useful addition to any room . . . C. E. Sorvin Ltd., 2500 Douglas St., 386-2612.

Give him a gown for Christmas . . .

It really isn't as difficult to Christmas shop for our men as we gals like to make out . . . certainly not if we do it at Wilson's where everything's so "right" that it's pretty hard for any woman to go wrong! . . . We looked at dressing gowns in the Men's Department this past week, and thought their choice quite outstanding . . . not to mention comprehensive . . . There are all-wool English gowns . . . in various colors, plain or patterned . . . Viyellas . . . also plain, paisley or striped . . . Cotton judogis . . . a sort of Japanesey wrap-around which fits any size from 36 to 46 . . . Pure silks . . . and one we couldn't tear our eyes from . . . a Liberty pure silk gown in the golden dragon pattern made especially to the order of Sir Winston Churchill . . . and as gorgeously flamboyant as the Grand Old Man himself! . . . Tagged at $95, it's a very special gift for the man in your life . . . Morlands real sheepskin slippers to team up with any of these gowns . . . or leather slippers with hard or soft soles . . . But if you still can't make up your mind, we suggest you purchase a Wilson's Gift Certificate and let the lucky recipient select his own . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Travelling in fact . . . or by film . . .

How long since you've spent a Christmas in Britain . . . enjoying a good old English Yuletide with relatives and friends? . . . Admittedly, bookings for December are heavy . . . but if you talk to Paulin Travel Service right away, there's a good chance they can get you there in time for the holiday season . . . And even if you're not thinking of Europe until 1966 you should be talking over your plans now so they can book you choice accommodations, arrange air transportation, or sea voyage, for the exact time you want to get away . . . make out itineraries covering the right places at the right times . . . book tours to suit your tastes and pocketbook . . . You'll find Paulin's are wonderful people to deal with . . . they pride themselves on giving outstanding service (all without cost to you) . . . Incidentally, Mr. Boyle at Paulin's asked us to tell you that starting in January, he will show travel films . . . color and sound . . . of any part of the world to any organization or group making the request . . . So if your particular group would like to see one of these, get your bid in to Paulin's . . . No charge for one of these interesting evenings of armchair travel . . . George Paulin Travel Service, 1006 Government St., EV 2-9168.

If you're one of those lucky women who's clever with needle or sewing machine . . . and likes to make some of her Christmas gifts herself . . . you'll have a field day looking over the materials in Saba's fabric department . . . How about running up a pretty housecoat for your young daughter? . . . Nice corduroys and velveteens come in practically any color you can name . . . and range in price from $1 to $3.50 a yard . . . Or surprise her with a new formal for holiday parties . . . there's some beautiful satin with Scotchgard finish (resists soil and marking) at just $2.49 . . . 45" wide, in lovely colors . . . Or iridescent taffeta belying its low price of $1.98 . . . there's a shimmering jade green in this latter we thought epecially pretty . . . as well as a lighter green, a cheerful Chistmassy red, and turquoise . . . Quite inexpensive laces which would be nice for dressy blouses or overskirts . . . black, white and pastel shades . . . One, a 54" nylon lace, is tagged at $1.98 . . . Another slightly heavier lace, is re-embroidered . . . 36" wide and sells at $3.98 . . . A new gift service for busy people . . .

By now you doubtless have received a copy of Eaton's Christmas Gift Book . . . chock-full of wonderful gift ideas . . . And we do know that Eaton's Gift Consultant has sent an extra copy to the offices of most of the business and professional men in town . . . along with a letter telling them they can order any selected items through her . . . Wonderful idea, because she not only gets hold of the articles, but also has them prettily gift wrapped and delivered . . . and if this isn't a boon for busy business men, we don't know what is! . . . However, we should like to point out that you stay-at-homers can have the self-same service too . . . There may be any number of reasons why you can't get downtown yourself . . . Perhaps you're in nursing home or hospital . . . find transportation difficult . . . live out of town . . . or are just plain too busy with the house and children to go on shopping sprees . . . Pick up the phone and talk to Eaton's Gift Consultant . . . tell her what takes your eye in the catalogue . . . or ask her to make suggestions for gifts in your price range . . . You'll be surprised what she'll come up with . . . and she'll handle everything for you . . . including mailing to friends in other cities . . . Eaton's Gift Registry, China Dept., 382-7141, local 373.

STEP WITH STYLE

Relaxing At a Spa

By Nona Damaske

PALM SPRINGS — I awakened early with a feeling of excitement and anticipation . . . this was the day I had booked to spend at the Palm Springs Spa. Several hot baths and massages in Japan and a few ladies' nights at Ove Witt's in Victoria had left me totally unprepared for the elaborate treatment with herbs, natural 106-degree mineral water, soothing oils and exercise.

Damaske

My day had been arranged by telephone and the breakfast of the 900 calorie per day "Aphrodite" menu awaited me on arrival at 9 a.m. . . . one-half grapefruit and one cup of black coffee. After noting my height and weight, I was advised by Millie Morgan, the diet chef, that as I did not need to lose weight she would recommend (if I were a weekly guest) that I adopt the Hercules 2,000 calorie per day menu.

'SWEET SUIT'

I was now introduced by Evelyn Shaver, the administrative assistant and executive secretary of the spa, to Else Marie Heen, the rosy-cheeked, glowing Norwegian gym instructor. Else handed me a buttercup yellow "sweet suit" (fashioned exactly as a sweat suit but pretty and feminine). Given a choice of rubber-soled shoes or bare feet, I chose bare feet, and now suitably attired, we entered a large airy gymnasium fitted with over $10,000 worth of exercise equipment. Carpeted in vivid scarlet, the gleaming chrome pieces glittered and winked encouragement. Arne Dahlin, physical conditioner and Else demonstrated each piece of equipment and encouraged me to take a few pulls, lifts, stretches, twists or bumps as the case may be on each machine. I thought I was in fairly good condition . . . what a fallacy!

PRIVATE ROOM

I returned to my little private dressing room where a huge fluffy towel awaited me . . . my attire for the next few hours. A quiet time in the vapor inhalation room, where I breathed the eucalyptus-scented air deep into my lungs.

Warned not to utter a sound, I was shown the QUIET ROOM where guests were resting on narrow beds with high head and foot boards. The room was entirely soundproof, dimly lit and pleasantly cool. Many beds were occupied and each woman was lightly covered with a fine percale sheet. I was rather glad I was not to have a quiet period as I found the room quite eerie and funereal.

I slipped instead, into a body-contoured Roman tub with swirlpool action. The contents . . . natural hot mineral water from the famous Agua Calient Indian springs . . . the Spa is built over a group of them. An inflated head rest and various step levels for the feet make it possible for the body to float in suspension and be moved only by the force of jet outlets. After a hot and cold shower I was taken to a massage cubicle where Marie and her capable Finnish hands made it a day to remember.

The Herbal Wrap, an ancient custom of wrapping the body in steaming cloths saturated with various herbs gives one the appearance of an Egyptian mummy. You are ultimately encased in plastic, covered with blankets and left to "stew in your own juice."

Lunch in the beautiful Agua Room of the Spa Hotel, was most festive. The three girls and I discussed color, in relation to emotion; diet, in relation to energy and good grooming, in relation to having a feeling of confidence. Mr. Davidson, general manager of the Spa Hotel, gave a sophisticated male's point of view.

THREE POOLS

I sunned for an hour, where privacy allows you to sunbathe in any attire you choose. The balance of my day was spent in the water . . . three entirely different pools and the shower. The immersion pool, where you sit or stand completely immersed in 104 degree hot mineral water. Your whole body responds to the soothing therapeutic waters. The swirlpool . . . under a sheltering roof, you sit knee-deep in a hot mineral pool . . . 108 degree water exploding against your limbs in a whirlpool of aerated water producing a beneficial vibration and massage.

The exercise pool is large and designed for those who truly enjoy swimming.

Next, I was introduced to Bob Block, of Gilberts Spa Coiffures, who didn't even shudder as he removed the pins from my hair and discovered it was waist-length. Bob's room in the salon was tremendously colorful and interesting as he is an artist with paint as well as with hairstyling. Brilliant orange and yellow tiger lilies on a field of deep green would have come home with me if I had been able to persuade Bob to part with it. I found that Bob is also hairstylist to Mrs. Harold Hicks of Palm Springs (formerly Mary Palmer of Victoria) and Mrs. Max Bell of Calgary. As I left the Palm Springs spa I was advised to retire early for the full benefit of the day . . . I did . . . and the next morning felt simply marvellous.

CWL HOLDS HUGE BAZAAR

The most successful bazaar in the group's history was held by the Catholic Women's League of Queen of Peace Church recently. It netted $1,203.33 and was opened by Mrs. M. G. Stirling, wife of the Flag Officer Pacific Coast.

President Mrs. H. Y. Wakelin greeted guests and presented Mrs. Stirling with white carnations en corsage. Also greeting guests was parish priest Fr. M. J. McNamara.

Special guests included Mrs. W. Rogers, CWL diocesan president; Fr. Lewis McLellan, former pastor; Fr. W. J. O'Brien, Msgr. Alexander Baker, Fr. Dennis Mulcahy and representatives from other parishes.

More than 200 guests paused during their shopping at the various stalls in order to enjoy a tea convened by Mrs. J. Pryke and her committee. Mrs. Jane Heppell was in charge of tea tickets.

Mrs. C. D. Macklin convened a home cooking stall that drew customers like metal to a magnet. Assisting her were Mrs. E. De Costa and Mrs. A. McCuaig. Also extremely popular was the candy stall, convened by Mrs. A. Smith and Mrs. K. Bendall.

Other stall conveners were: Needlework, Mrs. N. Hall, assisted by Mrs. M. Kokran and Mrs. P. C. Shaw; lucky seven, Mrs. G. Malenfant, Mrs. E. J. Barnaby and Mrs. H. Jordens; white elephant, Mrs. A. Bethel and Mrs. J. Comerford; fish pond, Mrs. H. Bruch. In charge of the tombola was Mrs. W. J. Edgington.

During the evening, male members of the parish assisted by running bingo games and drawing prizes.

SHOPPING GUIDE

End Bedtime Battles And Shattered Nerves

By Penny Saver

Do you often have trouble dragging your children away from the television set when bedtime rolls around? When they are finally rounded up and shipped off, do you have trouble keeping them quiet? My neighbor had this problem, until I found a solution at a local shop.

They're fascinating story books that any youngster will love to read, or have read to them. Every page is illustrated with colorful paper figures that pop up when a page is turned. Some of the figures in the three-dimension background have movable limbs, which help the youngster to understand the story.

Stories available in this novel form are "Snow White", "Jack and the Beanstalk", "Sleeping Beauty" and many others. Each book sells at $1.49.

No bedtime story is effective without pyjama-clad youngsters. Cosy flannelette sleepwear was selling in this store for $2.49 the pair, for the three to six-year-old. These charming pyjamas are white with a colorful ski-sweater type design on them. Turtle-neck collars and fitted sleeves are a special feature.

For the toddler, knitted, snuggle-soft fabric sleep-wear sells at $2.59. These come in soft shades of pink, yellow and baby blue. Plastic dot soles on the "built-in feet" prevent skidding.

Thermal sleep-wear in pink, blue and yellow with non-skid soles are $3.49. Ankle elastic on these pyjamas provide for a nice, snug foot. Your child won't get "cold feet' at bedtime with these.

When morning rolls around, and all little boys are preparing to go out and see the world, dress them up in stretchy, double-knit continental slacks that I saw in this shop, selling for $3.98 the pair. They are dark grey and guaranteed washable.

MARRIED HERE

Newlyweds To Live In Halifax

Parents of the principals are Alderman Geoffrey Edgelow and Mrs. Edgelow, 50 Highland Road, Victoria, and Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Kirby of Ajax, Ont.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in an exquisite champagne-toned suit that was accented with delicate lace at the neckline and bottom of the bodice. In her hair, she wore a headpiece of tulle, trimmed with a champagne velvet bow. White gardenias formed her bouquet.

Best man was Sub.-Lt. Matt Durnford, RCN.

Stephanotis in bud vases formed an all-white decor for the reception which followed in the home of the bride's parents. Vernon Edgelow proposed the toast to his niece's happiness.

Out-of-town guests included the bride's cousin, Mr. Michael Paterson of Seattle and Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Fox of Vancouver. Archbishop Sexton was among the guests.

The newlyweds will spend their honeymoon motoring across Canada to Halifax, N.S., where the groom will be stationed in his new appointment.

Sub-Lt. Leonard Kirby and Mrs. Kirby leave Christ Church Cathedral en route for their wedding reception, honeymoon trip and new home in Halifax. (Kandid Kamera.)

Ninety— And Full Of Life

By PAT DUFOUR

Mrs. Mary Jane Bridger will be 90 years young on Monday.

Her years lie lightly on this petite little woman who is blessed with a sturdy resilience that makes her the favorite hostess with her three grandchildren and their young friends. If her appetite for a full life has one minute drawback, it is that she has little or no sympathy for those of her friends who lose their zest for living at a mere 70 years of age!

Like any woman half her age Mrs. Bridger loves nothing better than a day downtown. She makes a point of enjoying this treat every Saturday. "I get a kick out of watching any fashion shows that are on and always attend a tea and bazaar in the Hudson's Bay if there is one."

Mrs. Bridger was born in Woking, Surrey, Eng., and came to Victoria in 1911. She married Harry Bridger in the old Christ Church Cathedral on April 14, 1913. He died in 1922 from wounds received during the First World War and Mary Bridger was left alone to bring up their son, Roy.

Helping to celebrate with Mrs. Bridger will be Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stapley and family of Campbell River, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Apps of Brentwood, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bridger, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keen and family, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Lee with Graham, all of Victoria; Alderman and Mrs. Bert Emery, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Askey, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Smith, all of Vancouver.

On Sunday, there will be an 'open house' from 2 to 5 p.m. during which Mrs. Bridger is looking forward to seeing many of her friends.

Typical of this dainty woman, Mrs. Bridger insists that her role of dual-parent was made easy because of the many friends that rallied around her.

Today, she lives with her son and his wife, Aileen, and their three children, James, 8; Donald, 6, and four-year-old Lorraine. Tonight, there'll be a family dinner in their home at 2652 Mount Stephen Avenue in celebration of her birthday.

Some of them are bound to be members of the James Bay Parent-Teacher Association. Mrs. Bridger joined the group in 1927 when her son was attending South Park School. She received her life membership pin in 1949 and still takes an active part in its activities.

"I attended a meeting this week and we saw a marvellous picture on the Peace Dam project. And, I really look forward to helping out at all their teas and bazaars."

Not one to dwell in the land of memories, Mrs. Bridger finds herself very much in demand as hostess for tea parties. Her guests often are the friends of her lively grandchildren who obviously think that their "Nanna" is 'tops.' On such occasions, she uses the cups and saucers which she is proud to tell you she received as a bonus for being an ardent theatre-goer.

"In the old days, there was a little theatre downtown that used to give cups and saucers away."

Not that she doesn't take care to note items of interest in her "birthday book." This is a tiny leather-bound volume, given her in 1890 by her sister Nellie.

In it are such priceless inscriptions as, "Queen Victoria died today, January 22, 1901" and of the Boer War, "Ladysmith was relieved today, February 28, 1900."

After this evening, another notation is bound to read, "The best party I ever had."

Mrs. Mary Bridger and her four-year-old granddaughter, Lorraine, get together for a reading session with one of their favorite books.

A matched set of side drums contained gifts of recipes, food and baking utensils when Miss Gail Buckle and her fiance, Mr. Gary Johnston were entertained at a surprise shower in the Broadmeade Avenue home of two of their chosen attendants, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Doidge. Of the 30 guests, most of the men were the groom-elect's fellow members in the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment. The refreshments featured clam chowder and a decorated shower cake. Floral decorations were in gold and bronze tones. Among the guests were the couple's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buckle Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Johnston, as well as the four other chosen attendants.

DEAR ABBY...

Snorts and Snores!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Apropos snoring mates. Mine snores so loud, it's separate rooms for us. When we travel, we request separate hotel rooms. Separate floors is better, adjoining rooms isn't far enough away from him. It has not interfered with our love life, either. A woman who doesn't get her sleep makes a poor mate. She's cranky, irritable and has no energy. Nuts to what people say. I need my sleep.

MRS.

DEAR ABBY: If you come up with a remedy for snoring, let me know. I've tried everything. The plastic ear plugs almost punctured my eardrums, and the beeswax ear plugs fell out of my ears and stuck in my hair. My doctor gave me sleeping pills but I'm afraid I'll become addicted. Believe it or not, my husband is a policeman and he is afraid to sleep alone. If I slip out and sleep on the couch, he comes looking for me. This hero is 56 years old.

BEMUSED

DEAR ABBY: When our family decreased and there was a spare bedroom available, I took it over because my husband's snoring disturbed my sleep.

It was like closing the door on an intimacy of 31 years. Well, Abby, after five years of sleeping apart, my advice to a young bride is, "Don't, under any circumstances, take a room by yourself. Stuff your ears, put a pillow over your head, take a sleeping pill, but don't leave his bed. And don't let him leave yours."

Take it from a 58-year-old woman. Something dies when a man and his wife quit sleeping together. I can't explain it. It's not sex, either. It's something more important. And you'll never get it back. I know. I've tried.

FOOLISH

DEAR ABBY: My husband has snored off and on for 33 years and I wouldn't think of trying to cure him. You see, Albert snores only when he has a guilty conscience. After having been kept awake most of the night because he's snored up a storm, I cross-examine him. And sure enough—he's been up to something. Either women or gambling. He's almost 60 now and he's cut down on his snoring. I presume he has less to feel guilty about. I'm sure he still gambles, however.

OLIVIA

DEAR ABBY: If my husband only snored in his sleep, I'd be happy. He thrashes around, kicks, hollers, grinds his teeth and swings his fists. I was always black and blue and a nervous wreck from lack of sleep. I went to a doctor and he prescribed tranquilizers for my husband. He refused to take them, so I take them, and it helps a lot.

TRANQUILIZED

DEAR ABBY: You haven't heard snoring until you've heard my little wife snore. She denied it so I had a tape recording made. We sometimes play it for laughs. She sleeps with her mouth open, so when the racket gets too bad I just reach over and pinch her nose shut and she quits.

MARVIN

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't resist your survey on snoring mates. My husband is a politician and his snoring is so bad that when he campaigns no one will sleep with him. Once when we were vacationing we stopped at a motel. The manager called us at 2 a.m. asking if he could move us to a cabin away from the others because he had so many complaints from the people around us. He's putting on weight, and the heavier he gets, the louder he snores.

USED TO IT

DEAR ABBY: Sure my husband snores, but I am happy to say that separate bedrooms never entered my mind. In my opinion that's the quickest way to a marital breakup. I just accept it as I do any other disturbance, such as noisy neighbors, barking dogs, traffic noise. You can put up with anything if you want to.

Travelling to Moose Jaw

ELIZABETH PEMBER WED

Mr. and Mrs. A. Van Boeschoten travelled from their Calgary home to attend the wedding of Elizabeth Anne Pember and their son, FO Gerrit Van Boeschoten, RCAF, held in Christ Church Cathedral, this afternoon. The bride is the daughter of Lt. Cmdr. W. Pember, RCN (Rtd.), and Mrs. Pember, 294 Beaumont Avenue.

Arrangements of white chrysanthemums were at the altar of the church for the ceremony, at which Rev. R. A. Hoult officiated. The boys' choir sang "Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven" as the bride entered the church on the arm of her father. Richard Proudman was the organist.

The bride's floor-length gown was of pure silk organza and French Guipure lace and featured a train extending from a bow at the waistline of the belled skirt. The lace bodice was styled with a portrait neckline and short sleeves. A silk organza rose headpiece held her elbow-length veil. She carried a star-shaped bouquet of garnet roses, freesia and ivy. Her only jewelry was a string of pearls.

Matching gowns of rose-toned peau de charme, with self-fabric bow headpieces were worn by the maid of honor, Miss Jill Moxness, and the bridesmaid, Miss Patricia Read. They completed their outfits with star-shaped bouquets of white chrysanthemums, freesia and ivy.

FO David Spencer was the best man. Guests were ushered to pews marked with white bows by the groom's brothers, Peter and Lucas Van Boeschoten.

The dress sword of the bride's father was used by the couple to cut the three-tier wedding cake, which centred the head table at the reception in the Empress Hotel Duke of Kent Room. A cluster of pink roses topped the cake. Rev. H. Pike proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on a honeymoon to Moose Jaw, Sask., where the couple will make their new home, the new Mrs. Van Boeschoten donned a two-piece chocolate brown velvet dress, topped with a sand-toned coat with mink collar, and mink hat.

Other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. Rust, of Edmonton, and the Misses Sylvia Reinhard and Cheryl Watson of Vancouver.

Painting by Saint Luke Shown at Sacred Heart

The portrait is that of Our Lady of Czestochowa, Poland.

"It is for the people of Poland what Our Lady of Lourdes is for the French and Our Lady of Cap de la Madelaine is for French-Canada," Father Sajewics said.

"According to tradition, the holy image was painted by Saint Luke and taken from the Holy Land to Constantinople.

"Around the ninth or tenth century it reached southern Poland as part of a dowry in a marriage between the royal families of Constantinople and Poland.

During the holy week of 1430, says Father Sajewics, a gang of bandits attacked the monastery of Czestochowa and damaged the painting so badly that it had to be almost entirely repainted.

The artist who did the repainting reproduced two heavy scars made by the bandits on the face of the Madonna.

"The painting became the Shrine of Czestochowa," Father Sajewics said, "and ever since it has attracted multitudes of pilgrims from all parts of Poland and neighboring countries."

Church choirs, big and small, have often been called the backbone of the nation's music. They raise the morale of the service, keep up the tempo of the singing—and sometimes perform in hospitals and institutions between times. Every Saturday, the Times will feature one of the Victoria choirs.

REV. HOLMES SAYS:

My Strength Made Perfect in Weakness

"My grace is sufficient for thee; for My strength is made perfect in weakness."

This verse constitutes an answer to prayer. The occasion was this: The apostle Paul was making known to believers at Corinth, a vision and revelation of the Lord that had been given him. His had been an unique experience, but in order that he should not be exalted about it, he said that he had been given a thorn in the flesh—an illness of some kind. Three times he asked God for healing. To his prayers he received an answer, not the healing, but words of our text, "My grace is sufficient for thee; for My strength is made perfect in weakness."

It is the first clause of this verse that I want to consider: "My grace is sufficient for thee."

1. GRACE—This word in its Divine attribute denotes the favor that God bestows upon man. It is completely devoid of human merit on man's part. In salvation man does not receive what he deserves, which is condemnation, but rather the free gift of God, eternal life through faith in Jesus Christ.

Not only does God's grace provide salvation, but by grace He bestows the strength to live the Christian life, and by grace He guards securely those whose trust is in His Son for their salvation. Grace represents what God can and will do for you.

2. SUFFICIENT—Sufficiency is what it implies. It is all that man needs. Philip said to the Lord Jesus: "Show us the Father and it sufficeth us." That was all that Philip needed, and that need was met in Christ. God is able to do "exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think."

3. MY—Here is an important word, as it refers to Christ Himself. It is not the favor of another that supplies our strength, but Divine grace. If it was not of God it would be useless.

4. THEE—This praise had direct reference to Paul, but it alludes also to every Christian. Each one can cling to the promise of Divine grace with utmost assurance.

5. IS—Here, I think, is the most important word. Observe that the Divine grace IS sufficient, not WAS nor WILL BE. It is this very minute that the promise embraces, so that you may be knowing this grace is sufficient right now for the trial, pain, sorrow, temptation and that crying need. We need not depend upon past blessings, for at this very moment grace is available if you will partake of it by placing your confidence in the living Christ as Saviour and Lord.

Pastor Robert D. Holmes has been minister at Victoria's Emmanuel Baptist Church since 1959. For 10 years previously he was minister of Westboro Baptist Church, Ottawa. He was born and raised in Toronto and studied theology at the Central Baptist Seminary.

Marine Life Census To Begin on Dec. 6

University of Victoria marine biology students will be involved in a census-taking of B.C. marine life Dec. 6 to 10.

In charge of the cruise is Dr. Derek V. Ellis, associate professor, Uvic biology department.

He will be accompanied by two students on the marine physics research ship CNAV Endeavour.

Their trip will take them to the deepest waters of Jervis Inlet, off Georgia Strait.

BOTTOM SAMPLE

Principle piece of machinery to be used by Dr. Ellis and the two students will be a vertical bottom sampler which will be working at a depth of 400 fathoms.

When a sample has been taken, its volume will be measured and then it is screened through a one-millimetre screen.

From a count of animals turned up in the samples, the scientists will be able to measure or estimate the sea-bottom population of the inlet.

"The studies are useful for monitoring pollution and measuring fish food on the sea bottom," Dr. Ellis explained.

Results of the samplings will enable the fisheries department to set limits on bottom fish to be taken by commercial fishermen.

"This technique is used widely in the North Atlantic and North Sea," said Dr. Ellis.

EXTEND STUDIES

"It is my hope to eventually extend these studies throughout the B.C. coast."

Dr. Ellis said he expected the samples to contain a few fish but mostly clams, starfish, other shellfish, and marine worms.

Nine members of the Uvic marine biology group will leave Victoria aboard the Endeavour Nov. 26 for a weekend plankton study in Barkley Sound.

They will be accompanied by Dr. Ellis and Dr. Jack Littlepage, an instructor with the biology department.

They will work on a 24-hour schedule while at sea doing benhic investigations (sea bottom sampling) in daylight and researching light-sensitive organisms at night.

REBELS SET GOVERNMENT

LONDON (Reuters)—One of Rhodesia's two leading African nationalist groups announced here Thursday night it has set up a "government of the people" in the breakaway British colony.

A statement from the Zimbabwe African Nationalist Union, led by Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, called Rhodesian Leader Ian Smith's unilateral declaration of independence a "declaration of war" on Rhodesian Africans.

Both Zanu and its rival organization, the Zimbabwe African People's Union, led by Joshua Nkomo, called on the British government to use force.

BLACK MAN LEFT TO DIE BEGINNING OF THE END

By GLEN ALLEN

Jakob de Villiers saw it coming.

Former resident of South Rhodesia, scion of a French Huguenot family that settled in Africa in 1689, Mr. de Villiers said since 1953, the avowed aim of Prime Minister Ian Smith and other white Rhodesian leaders had been "by hook or by crook" to declare an independent white-controlled state.

Speaking to a meeting of the Lions Club Friday at the Empress Hotel, Mr. de Villiers said the beginning of the end for him was an answer to a letter he sent Edgar Whitehead, then prime minister of Southern Rhodesia.

"I told Whitehead I had seen an injured black man dying in the street. An ambulance stopped, looked at the man and drove on without helping. It was an ambulance for whites only.

"The black man died."

BACKWARDS

But "these things" were going backwards.

Blacks, and only blacks, were being tortured and detained without charges.

"It was obvious," said Mr. de Villiers, "the definition of the black-white relationship by long-time Prime Minister Huggins as that of 'a man and his horse' was the true expression of white feeling.

"A black man pays for his color over and over again. If he is a university graduate, and if he gets a job, he gets two-thirds the salary of a white graduate doing the same job.

"He lives on reserves—overcrowded and too small in area to grow his own food needs."

Tracing the recent history of the country, Mr. de Villiers said that in 1953, at the time of the federation of South Rhodesia, North Rhodesia (independently governed by blacks since October, 1964) and Nyasaland there was reason to take heart.

"We weren't going to go the way of South Africa. We were to substitute racial 'partnership' for the South African 'apartheid' policy. It was a dream, a multiracial dream!"

That isn't the way it worked out.

POLICE NATIVES

"Race relations since then have deteriorated." Mr. de Villiers suggested it was now too late. Rhodesia will have to "police" its native population, almost four million in number to a 250,000 white population.

"The whites have built up a swift, efficient army. Thursday's declaration of independence will bring no concerted mass rioting by the blacks. They will be held off."

Mr. de Villiers grew up in South Africa, moved to South Rhodesia, served in the government's department of justice in Salisbury and Bulawayo, left for Canada in 1963, and now practices law in Victoria.

DESPITE SERIES OF THREATS

Ottawa to Fluoridate Water, Ending Lengthy Controversy

OTTAWA (CP) — Fluoridation of Ottawa's water begins Monday after more than four years of controversy.

The issue came to a head—and was resolved—at last December's municipal elections when Ottawa voted 58,234 to 36,079 in favor of fluoridation after a plebiscite in 1962 rejected it.

Elected city officials were subjected to a series of mailed and telephoned threats and abuse as the day for starting fluoridation approached. And die-hard opponents were circulating a petition aimed at a further plebiscite at the next civic election in December, 1966.

The city now joins Toronto and Winnipeg along with 171 other Canadian communities using fluoridated water.

Ottawa residents won't be the only ones affected by the change. About 40,000 persons living in municipalities bordering the capital have homes connected to the city's water system.

AVOIDANCE COST $1,000

Fred W. Richardson, an Ottawa high school teacher, spent more than $1,000 to dig a well in his back yard so he and his family will not have to use the fluoridated water.

Proponents cite evidence compiled by medical, dental, and scientific bodies that fluoridation helps prevent tooth decay.

The Canadian Dental Association says no other public health measure has had as much scientific certification as has fluoridation.

The two Ottawa fluoridation plants cost $69,000. Cost of the fluoride for a year is $13,000—or approximately 4.28 cents per capita.

In the Ottawa plants, sodium silicofluoride is poured into a hopped and fed into a special tank, where it is dissolved by rapid agitation, then piped to the water storage reservoir.

The amount of chemical added to the water is controlled continuously by a device which automatically adjusts the flow for any change in the weight of the fluoride which is measured by weight, not volume, to guard against humidity changes.

The controlled amount is one part fluoride to 1,000,000 parts water. In these proportions there is absolutely no taste.

Officials Invited To Opening

St. Joseph's Parish School, West Burnside Road, will be officially opened by Monsignor Michael O'Connell Sunday at 2 p.m.

Built at a cost of $250,000, the school has been operating since September and includes among its students Indians from the Songhees and Esquimalt reserves.

A grant was received from the federal government through the Indian affairs department to share the cost.

B.C. Unitarians Acquire Land

British Columbia Unitarians have acquired a 160-acre tract of land on the east side of Kootenay Lake for use by Unitarian camps and conferences, it was announced at a meeting of the B.C. Unitarian Council in Vancouver.

"It has a white sandy beach, meadowland and a waterfall," says Rev. Marvin Evans, minister of Victoria Unitarian Church, who attended the meeting.

With him were 17 members of the Victoria church and representatives from Cowichan, Nanaimo and Courtenay.

INVEST NOW
In my opinion, the following are good reasons to expect a very decided increase in value of revenue property: Changes in building code, a very decided tightening of mortgage funds plus higher interest rates, making new construction very difficult which naturally increases the value of existing property. Below are some of the samples of good opportunities:

OAK BAY AVE.

Well-Known Physician Dies at 85

Dr. Thomas Miller, MBE, well-known Victoria physician for more than 50 years, died in the Veterans' Hospital this morning at the age of 85.

He was at one time house surgeon at the Royal Jubilee Hospital. Until he was taken ill a few months ago, Dr. Miller lived at 367 Irving Road.

Born in Leith, Scotland, Dr. Miller came to Canada in 1888 and set up practice in Victoria in 1914.

He served with the Canadian Army Medical Corps in both world wars. He was one-time president of Victoria Medical Society and a member of Vancouver and Quadra Masonic Lodge.

Dr. Miller is survived by his daughter, Mrs. F. S. Hatcher, and his son, R. C. Miller, both of Vancouver; two sisters, Mrs. H. McKinnon and Mrs. A. B. Fraser, both of Abbotsford, and three grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements by McCall Brothers will be announced later.

Maraaree To Halifax

The warship is no longer a member of the RCN's Pacific Command.

En route, Margaree will be at San Diego from Nov. 16 to 19 and at Balboa from Nov. 27 to 29.

Part of the ship's company is comprised of 18 Sea Cadets from corps located across the country.

Curtis Seeks New Term

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis will seek re-election next month.

So far, he is the only person to announce his candidacy for the reeveship.

He filed nomination papers Friday, two weeks ahead of the Nov. 29 deadline.

The reeve said one of the two most important accomplishments has been the re-establishment of general harmony among council members.

"Council has worked together very well this year and as a result has completed far more work than it could under strain and continuing major differences of opinion," he said.

"A number of projects are already indicated for implementation during 1966 and I would very much like to remain on council in order to see these carried through to successful completion."

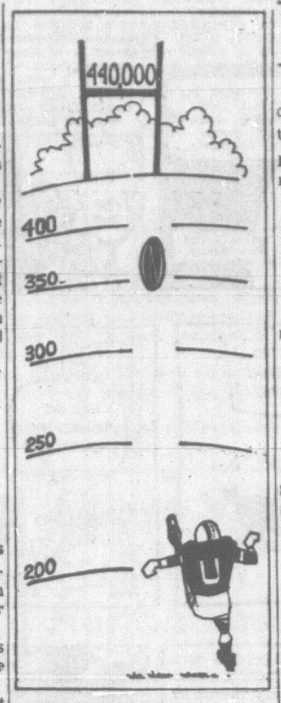
He came out in favor, of a municipal co-ordinator to provide inter-departmental co-ordination, weekly garbage collection and a liquor store for the municipality.

He also proposed revision of the sign bylaw to continue protection of beauty but to offer greater assistance to the tourist industry.



Help Score Fair Share Goal

The United Appeal total stood at $370,331 this morning —84.3 per cent of the goal.

Since 5 p.m. Friday, $4,150 has been tossed into the campaign kitty.

The residential campaign, still carried on despite discouraging weather this week, has so far netted $58,403 in the Greater Victoria area, towards a $68,800 goal.

Residential canvassing in the Sidney and North Saanich area has pulled in $2,661, and $1,740 in the Central Saanich area.

The United Appeal booth at Yates and Douglas, staffed today by the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded, is still collecting an average of $200 a day from downtown donors.

Latest winner of the Appeal's award of excellence for 100 per cent participation in the drive and a "fair share" from all goes to the staff of the YM-YWCA.

Thirty employees gave a total of $577, or $19.20 each.

100 Per Cent Compensation For Farmers

This was indicated today by Victoria MP David Groos and B.C. Federation of Agriculture manager C. E. S. Walls.

They both denied a suggestion that the election defeat of Agriculture Minister Harry Hays Monday has "bogged down" the compensation issue.

Mr. Groos and Mr. Walls were commenting following remarks made public earlier today by bulb grower Geoffrey Vantreight.

He said that the only legislation so far passed offers 60 per cent compensation for lost crops, but Mr. Hays promised 100 per cent compensation.

Mr. Groos said, "I think that when Mr. Hayes was speaking, he must have been speaking for the government."

He said the farmers' representatives will have to meet with the new minister—Forests Minister Maurice Sauve is temporarily filling the post—"but any commitment will be lived up to by the government."

Mr. Walls said he has just returned from Ottawa. He said the deputy minister said another meeting will be held with Greater Victoria representatives before the end of the year, when a new minister is appointed.

"But so far as the 100 per cent compensation is concerned, I am quite sure there is no change in that. The legislation already has been drafted."

Mr. Vantreight, comforted by these remarks, said he was glad to see the matter is under consideration. He is going to Ottawa Sunday on business and will take the opportunity to meet with federal officials to see if the payment to farmers can be hastened.

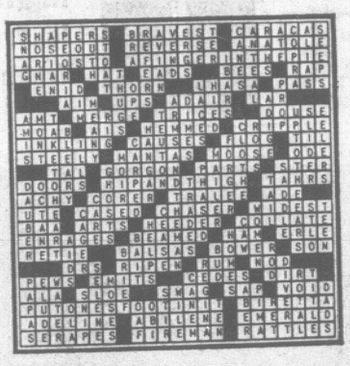
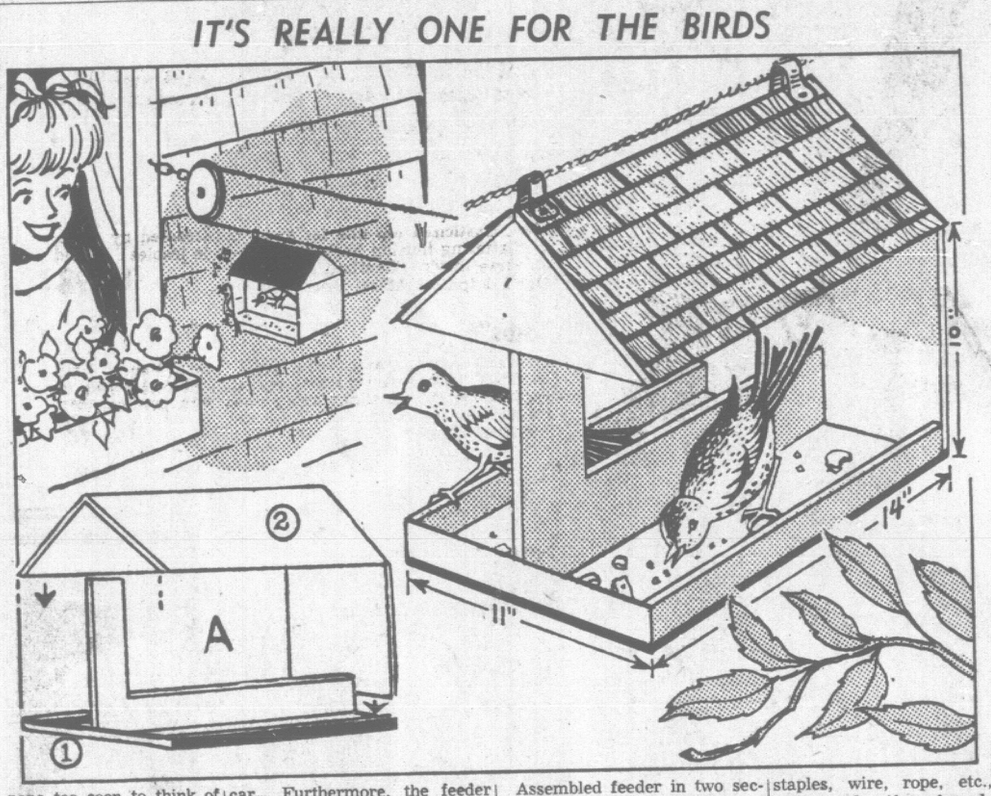
Answers to Previous Puzzle



IT'S REALLY ONE FOR THE BIRDS



It's none too soon to think of the season when, in any temperature zone, the feathered friends of man will welcome attentions in the form of foods not ready available about them in well-settled regions. They'll willingly sing for their suppers—breakfasts and lunches, too!

You can simplify your atttentions, whether house or apartment dweller, with this (see right) device, a regular trolley-car. Furthermore, the feeder can be moved closer to the house gradually until the feeders are just outside the window, where you can study the feeders close up and make pictures.

Construction details are as follows:

Materials: Exterior plywood or other lumber; shingle scraps for roofing; nails; paint, etc.

Dimensions suggested in drawing may be varied as desired.

Small strips tacked at sides help contain food; also serve as perches. Tack or tape suet, meat scraps, etc., to centre bar.

Fasten feeder to the wire in any manner desired. Large staples, wire, rope, etc., will suffice. Or, if preferred, bore a hole at both ends just below peak of roof and pass wire through feeder itself. Clothespins may be used to keep it from sliding.

Several coats of paint or other finishing materials are desirable for weatherproofing.

RIDDLE

What is often put upon the table and cut, but never eaten?

You should not take more than 52 seconds answering.

TONGUE TWISTERS

Say swiftly, if you can: The twill twine to tree twigs. Cease scissoring soft silk shirts.

BEAR LEFT AT X-ROADS

A zoologist set up a camp for the purpose of photographing a bear. One day, he left the camp, walked three miles due south, then three miles due east, where he spotted a bear, but discovered he had forgotten his camera. From this point he returned directly to the camp, a distance of three miles. What color was the bear?

Answer: The bear was white: the camp had to be at the North Pole.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

Electronic sorting machines as used in some of the larger post offices for lining up letters so that the stamps can be cancelled with a minimum of handling, require, as all collectors know, that envelopes bear special stamps treated with phosphor or similar chemicals in order to operate the machines.

Britain was the first country to experienment along these lines. Several other countries have followed suit, including Canada which has issued its so-called "tagged" stamps, which bear one or two bands of phosphor across the face.

In Australia they are using what they call helecon paper for this purpose. Instead of a wash of the chemical across the stamp, the stamp paper itself is impregnated with a luminescent substance which activates the sorting machines in the same way as our tagged stamps.

As specialists consider that stamps printed on the helecon paper are distinct varieties they will have to act quickly in order to acquire the current values so treated because they will be superseded on Feb. 14 by the stamps of the decimal currency issue.

The following denominations can at present be found printed both on ordinary and on helecon paper: 2d, 3d, 5d, Queen; 6d Tiger-cat; 9d Magpie; 11d Bandicoot; 1sh Colombo Plan; 1sh 2d Tasmanian Tiger; 1sh 6d Galah; 2sh 3d Wattle.

The 2sh 5d, 10sh and £1 also occur on two papers, but these are merely variations of ordinary paper—one on white and the other on thin toned.

The changes over to the decimal currency will have far-reaching effects as it will affect all the Australian Territories issues as well. The new Australian dollar will still be based on sterling — £1 will equal $2.50 Aust. Thus their dollar will equal around $1.20 Canadian, or $1.12 U.S.

★ ★ ★

The New Zealand 1965 Christmas stamp is perhaps the most beautiful issue ever printed by the photogravure process. This miniature edition of Murillo's "Two Trinities" in the actual colors of the original is a superb example of modern stamp production.

Area Balks at Price For Family Court

Greater Victoria intermunicipal delegates like the idea of a new family and children's court, but they balked Friday at the $300,000 estimated price tag.

The mayor and reeves tossed back to family and children's committee a plan to build a 10,000 square foot double-court room structure to the rear of Cook Street health unit and juvenile detention home.

Planners were asked to review the proposal with a view to cutting costs by reducing the area or facilities provided, and to look at the prospect of obtaining more land and including additional facilities in future.

Exclusive of land cost, a new family and juvenile court building would cost about $200,000, with $25,000 added for architect's and engineer's fees, landscaping, roads and parking.

Reeve Hugh Curtis, of Saanich, said he was concerned at the high cost and the suggestion that more land may have to be bought, bringing the estimate close to $300,000.

OVER 400 CASES

Ald. Lily Wilson, representing the family committee, questioned that. She said there were fewer than 400 cases handled last year, while to date this year more than 400 have been dealt with.

"This is not only disturbing to me, but to all the authorities," she said.

Reeve Curtis wondered how it would be paid for in any event. Mayor R. B. Wilson suggested the cost could be spread over the end of one budget year and into the start of the next.

LATE 1966 START

It was not considered likely the work could be started before late in 1966.

Reeve Cox said the provincial government "seems to forget we have to handle cases from unorganized territory" (about 10 per cent of the case load) without contributing to the costs.

Reeve Curtis said the matter boiled down to whether a building of the indicated size is needed. He mentioned interview rooms, the two courtrooms, barristers' rooms, waiting rooms, a meeting room and staff lounge.

The facility could probably do without a second courtroom immediately, Mrs. Wilson and chief probation officer Bruce McLean said.

But there must be allowance for expansion, Mrs. Wilson said.

BLAINE FREEWAY OPENS BEFORE U.S. HOLIDAY

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—The $2,200,000 Blaine freeway north of Bellingham will be opened to traffic just ahead of the U.S. Thanksgiving holiday Nov. 25, state highways director Charles G. Prahl said Friday.

The four-lane freeway will stop 400 feet short of the Blaine Peace Arch to preserve the beauty of the parkway, Prahl said.

Blaine residents had asked the highways department to avoid any construction in the international park.

APPOINTED Canadian ambassador to The Congo is John Clemence Gordon Brown, 43. A native of England and a graduate of University of Alberta, Mr. Brown is presently counsellor in Moscow.

Library Vote For Sidney, North Saanich

Property owners in North Saanich and Sidney village will vote on Dec. 11 on two separate library referendums.

The referendum will determine whether residents in the two municipal areas are in favor of obtaining the book services of the Vancouver Island Regional Library.

Cost for the service will amount to about $2 per person per year.

If the referendum passes, the regional library will establish a branch library in Sidney and operate a bookmobile service for North Saanich.

5,500 PEOPLE

It will serve a population totalling 5,500.

Mrs. R. F. Thuillier, secretary of the North Saanich and Sidney Library Committee, said the two regions are the only populated areas in British Columbia without regional library services.

"Even Jordan River with its small population has a regional library," she said.

Chlorine Comes Up Safely

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—A huge waterborne crane Friday safely lifted 600 tons of potentially deadly chlorine and a barge from the depths of the Mississippi River, ending weeks of tense waiting by the 150,000 residents of Louisiana's capital city.

Raising the barge and its cargo of chlorine was a completely unspectacular operation. Instead of taking eight hours, as the U.S. engineers had originally estimaed, the lifting operation took one hour and 45 minutes.

If one of the tanks had ruptured, the chlorine would have been released as highly poisonous chlorine gas. Officials said all along, however, there was almost no chance of this happening.

Test Missile System

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—A new U.S. star-tracking guidance device rocketed into space Friday night in a successful test of a system which might steer future missiles and spacecraft. The star-tracker first aimed its telescope at the North Star, then shifted to a second, dimmer star for reference during the brief 15-minute flight.

Wade To Seek Third Term

Oak Bay Councillor Bill Wade today announced he will seek his third consecutive term on council in Dec. 11 municipal elections.

He will file his nomination papers this week.

Earlier this month, Coun. Mrs. Frances Elford and Walter Dodsworth and Reeve Allan Cox decided they will run again.

ON ALL COMMITTEES

Coun. Wade has served on every council committee in the four years he has occupied a seat.

This year he is chairman of the public works committee and acting reeve.

He told the Times the fluoridation vote which will be put to electors in the election is "a personal thing."

"There are a lot of people opposed to fluoridation, but there is a lot of medical evidence in favor of it," he said.

FAVORS REFERENDUM

Coun. Wade said he will be voting in favor of the referendum on election day.

He offered no comment on the controversial proposed regional hospital board.

Ship Jumper Fined $100, Friends Free

TORONTO (CP)—Magistrate David Coon Friday dismissed charges against a Toronto couple of aiding and assisting a relative to remain in Canada by stealth.

The magistrate ruled that the charge did not come within the provisions of the Immigration Act.

He fined Eleftorion Pavouris of Greece $100 or 20 days for entering Canada by stealth.

Pavouris jumped ship in Vancouver last June 19 and came to Toronto where he lived with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Pavouris.

FEARED JUMP

NASSAU, Bahamas (Reuters)—Passengers of the burning Yarmouth Castle had to be urged by rescue crews to jump overboard so they could be saved, the captain of the rescue vessel Bahama Star said today.

"Many passengers seemed helpless and unwilling to climb down the ladder or jump overboard," Capt. Karl Brown said in a radio-telephone interview.

Disaster Struck Suddenly

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — The holiday cruise ship Yarmouth Castle burned from bow to stern and sank in the Atlantic Ocean today and it was feared 84 of her 550 passengers and crew were carried to the bottom.

The cause of the fire was not known. The U.S. Coast Guard said disaster struck so suddenly the Yarmouth Castle, built in 1927 for Nova Scotia service, went to her death in 285 fathoms without sending a distress call.

Two vessels, the cruise ship Bahama Star and the Finnish motorship Finnpulp, reached the scene 110 miles east of Miami, Fla., shortly after the blaze broke out. But when the rescue operation ended, only 466 persons had been found.

The ship's passenger list indicated at least 15 Canadians had been aboard. There were none from B.C.

ALL POSSIBLE SAVED

Capt. Carl Brown of the Bahama Star said "We believe all those who were not trapped inside" the fiercely burning vessel were picked out of the water.

"We have searched the area and we have found no more."

The Bahama Star was headed for Nassau with 360 survivors. The Finnpulp, first to radio word of the tragedy to the Coast Guard, was going in with 94 others. They were due Saturday.

British Overseas Airways Corporation said it would arrange for shuttle flights to carry the survivors from Nassau to Florida.

Six men and six women, burned and in shock, were flown by U.S. Coast Guard helicopters to Princess Margaret Hospital at Nassau.

HUNDREDS WEEP

At 2:15 a.m. Brown said he saw smoke on the horizon, picked up speed and overtook the Yarmouth Castle. She was burning in the forward upper deck and flames were spreading rapidly throughout the ship.

"We passed three lifeboats full of people and called to them that we would return after we got the passengers off the burning boat."

SPECIAL TIMES SERIES

Hospitals Crisis Major Battle Field

By PETE LOUDON

(Why is a rich city in a rich district in a rich province going without sufficient hospital beds? Why is this issue building into a controversy involving two layers of government instead of being quietly and efficiently solved? The Times asked reporter Pete Loudon to explore the issue. This is his first report in a four-part series.)

For the first time in history the 167,000 residents of the capital region will join next month in deciding a common problem by ballot — the crisis in district hospitals.

From Sooke to Sidney, from Oak Bay to Langford, in organized and unorganized areas on Dec. 11, 167,000 people are being asked to speak as one community with one voice.

It will be the first test of the theory that working together they can accomplish what they have been unable to do efficiently, working independently.

So far they've failed to provide hospital accommodation to cope with a lower Island population that is adding 15,000 people—as many people as there are in Nanaimo—each year.

Loudon

There are often as many as 1,200 persons waiting for hospital beds.

Hospital planners say they need $13.5 million dollars in the next five years to catch up.

They say that unless the money is forthcoming, hospitals soon will be able to give immediate admittance to emergency cases only.

Yet despite the seriousness of their plight there is a growing feeling that the hospital referendum is doomed to defeat before the first vote is cast.

★ ★ ★

On the face of it, it's a simple problem. A stranger might marvel that there should be any question at all about an affirmative vote for the hospitals.

The people need hospitals desperately. In the coffers of governments—their governments—lies the peoples' money. The federal government is ready to contribute if the provincial government is ready to contribute, if the municipal governments of the area are ready to contribute.

And that's where the wrangling starts.

A growing number of capital district municipal leaders are digging in their heels. They say they can only raise money for hospitals through taxing property owners—but they feel everyone who uses a hospital should contribute to its cost.

They say the provincial government, which taxes everyone in a variety of ways, should pay most or even all hospital costs. They point to provincial claims of unparalleled prosperity and declared surpluses in each budget.

Provincial authorities say their present scale of contributions is acceptable everywhere else in British Columbia and ranks with the best in Canada.

The people who run the hospitals and who are scared by the inadequate facilities want fast action. They say the only way to get it is by accepting the present scale of provincial participation.

★ ★ ★

They believe objection by the municipalities would be fruitless and could only cause further delay and aggravate the present situation.

Already one district reeve, Reeve R. Gordon Lee of Central Saanich, has expressed the view publicly that the district referendum will go under.

He points out that a "yes" vote means a property tax boost —and land taxes already are disastrously high in an area where many elderly folk with limited incomes have settled in retirement.

Two Oak Bay councillors, Coun. Mrs. Frances Elford and Coun. Walter Dodsworth, have said they will campaign for re-election in December while urging a "no" vote.

So far the objections are only a murmur. But behind-the-scenes talks with other municipal leaders suggest a growing uproar.

No municipal leader wants to come out against hospitals. But many of them see the issue as another phase of a growing encroachment on municipal rights by provincial government fiscal policy.

★ ★ ★

They are debating in private whether they have a duty to make a public stand against the system. They are sorry the battlefield must be the hospitals.

When the question of united effort by organized and unorganized areas of the capital region came up two years ago they opposed inclusion of hospitals in district planning.

At that time Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell proposed a joint regional council—mini-metro some called it—where representatives of all capital areas would work together on matters of common interest—sewers, parks, and like matters.

This has progressed to the point where a vote now is to be

Service Vote Gives Liberals 2

Pearson Now Commands 132

OTTAWA (CP) — Two turnover victories in the armed services vote and a guarantee of support from a Quebec independent have assured Prime Minister Pearson's Liberal government of 132 Commons votes—just two short of a clear majority.

(See also Page 25.)

The heavily pro-Liberal service vote, announced here today, provided the margin of victory for Liberals John B. Stewart in the Nova Scotia riding of Antigonish-Guysborough and Louis-P. Neveau in Quebec's Shefford constituency. Both dislodged Conservatives.

New party standing in the 265-seat Commons:

Mr. Pearson said the service vote results "are gratifying in that they increase the chances of stability in the House of Commons and the prospect of effective action on a program of constructive legislation which the government will be putting forward."

After the civilian count on election night Nov. 8, Mr. Stewart trailed Conservative D. Hugh Gillis by 19 votes. But when the service vote for the riding was added, Mr. Stewart ended on top by 57 votes. He had held the seat in the previous two parliaments.

IN THIRD PLACE

In Shefford, Mr. Neveu was in third place election night, 13 votes behind Conservative Paul O. Trepanier and four behind Creditiste Gilbert Rondeau who was seeking his third straight victory there.

The service vote shot Mr. Neveu into the top spot, 47 votes ahead of Mr. Trepanier and 61 up on Mr. Rondeau.

Mr. Rondeau immediately announced he will ask for a judicial recount and there is a possibility that Mr. Gillis will make a similar request.

Official counts are being made in most ridings this week by returning officers and after these are announced candi-

U.S. PLANES ATTACK NEUTRAL AREA

SAIGON (CP)—U.S. planes today bombed a village and police post in the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam, killing one civilian and injuring another.

A U.S. spokesman said he had no information on police casualties.

He said two and possibly more high-performance U.S. jets made a rocket-and-bomb attack on the village of Xuan Hoa. A board of inquiry ordered an immediate investigation into the incident.

Union Jacks Torn Down As Africans Slam UDI

(Times News Services)

Noisy and sometimes violent protests against Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence broke out today in a number of African capitals.

The largest demonstration was in Dar es Salaam, capital of Tanzania, where 200 university students broke into the British Information Service, smashing furniture and windows.

They also tore down the Union Jack from the nearby British high commission building and burned it and wrecked the high commissioner's car.

In Leopoldville, Congo Republic, 600 students demonstrated peacefully, chanting "A bas (down with) Ian Smith." They also waved placards calling for military action against Rhodesia and freedom for "all African states."

The demonstrations took place outside the Portuguese and British embassies but no hostile moves were made against the buildings.

In Addis Ababa, the British ambassador to Ethiopia has protested to the government over a demonstration Friday.

Sir John Russell said the incident occurred when about 1,000 stormed their way into the British Embassy grounds, smashed windows, pulled down the flag and threatened and insulted embassy staff.

The ambassador said he received a visit from Ethiopian chief of protocol who apologized on behalf of the government.

In Cape Town, South Africa, a counter-demonstration took place when about 100 Rhodesian and South African students banged on the locked doors of the British consul-general's office seeking to protest British action against Rhodesia.

Negroes Press For Blockade Against Smith

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) —The 36 African members of the United Nations called today for a rail, air and sea blockade of Rhodesia to crush the revolutionary government of Ian Smith.

Speaking for the African delegates, Ambassador Arsene Assouna Usher of the Ivory Coast charged that the economic sanctions envisioned by Britain and the United States "will not be effective without the use of force."

He presented a sweeping resolution to the council urging a complete break of diplomatic relations by all states with Rhodesia.

The resolution insisted that the rebellion "on the part of the Smith regime be put down immediately and law and order established."

It also called for an embargo on the delivery of oil and spare parts and total rupture of rail, air, postal, telegraphic, radio and any other means of communication.

Oil Shutdown Looms Closer

With a Monday midnight deadline set for a strike by oil workers against all major petroleum companies, no break appeared imminent in any direction.

Oil workers president Fred Geddes said this morning he has had no word from the provincial government or any of the six oil companies involved.

The only comment from Attorney-General Robert Bonner this morning was: "I think the government's position will be made clear next week if an emergency occurs."

Refinery workers, truck drivers and warehousemen have been on strike against British American for two months in a job security-wage dispute spreading as far east as Ontario.

DEPENDS ON SUPPORT

Because the company has maintained a curtailed service by using supervisory personnel, and because the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' International Union is not organized completely at any of the companies, the effectiveness of the extended strike will depend on support from other unions.

The 110,000-member B.C. Federation of Labour said Friday all major unions have pledged full support for the oil workers.

"Our affiliates will not stand idly by and see these oil companies ride rough-shod over the people of British Columbia," the Federation said in a statement.

"All petroleum products in

HORRORS OF SHIP FIRE RELATED BY SURVIVORS

NASSAU, Bahamas (Reuters)—A badly burned American survivor of the cruise ship Yarmouth Castle told today of the horror of fire at sea.

"I really don't know what happened," Mrs. Mary J. Hamilton of St. Petersburg, Fla., told reporters at the Princess Margaret Hospital as doctors treated her burns.

"I heard screams, opened the door and the fire was all over the place. I became hysterical and I don't know what happened after that."

Arthur Gordon, 53, of Los Angeles, said:

"I just don't know what happened. There was no explosion until the ship went down. I jumped in a boat.

"I heard shouts of 'fire.' I thought it was just a couple of drunks, but after the shouts continued I went out to the lobby.

"I was surrounded by flames. I rushed back in and closed the door.

"My wife and I went into the bathroom. I broke a window trying to escape to the deck.

"Someone later came back and helped me. I believe my wife is on one of the rescue ships."

Two more seats! Thet's whut th' army calls consolidatin' yer position.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1965—PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

Because of a kink in the 12-mile limit between the tip of Vancouver Island and the Queen Charlottes, a Russian fleet is operating where it has a legal, if perhaps not entirely ethical, right to be, and is making our own fishermen properly mad in the process.

We might take a look at this 45-ship Russian armada

which quitted the Bering Sea for the Aleutian banks and the Gulf of Alaska about two years ago, and in its methodical progress, has now followed the North Pacific hundred-fathom band to an area just off the British Columbia coast.

This is no random klatch of fishboats. It is rather a floating factory; each unit splendidly designed and equipped for its job.

Not only does it catch fish in nets it trails over the sea bottom or in the middle depths. It also processes them on board; and when its units land their impressive tonnage in a Soviet port, the take will go directly to the market as quick-frozen whole fish, fillets, and fish meal.

Three classes of vessels make up the catching and processing machine. Most numerous are side-trawlers of two classes, the first 120 feet long and the other about 170 feet.

Accompanying these are a number of ships in excess of 200 feet and 4,000 tons. These are craft of Russia's stern-trawling "Pushkin" type . . . named euphemistically for a czarist poet, and close kin to Britain's "Fairtry" factory ships.

In total, they are helping make good Russia's boast that she will put a modern fishing fleet in every ocean of the world.

With this program, she's pushing right along. Britain, the United States and Canada are lugging well astern. The closest competitor is Japan.

When we in British Columbia think of salt water fish, our thoughts jump at once to salmon. The Russians in Queen Charlotte Sound aren't after salmon, though, and any they catch must be regarded as strays.

The trawls with which they harvest the sea floor are meant for bottom-dwelling fish, chief among which is a larger cousin of the "shiners" that hang around the barnacled piles of our old wharves.

The ocean perch which has lured so formidable a Soviet array within our island-lines is a little fellow rarely exceeding five pounds in weight. In a relatively narrow offshore strip of hundred-fathom depth, he feeds and swims in tremendous schools.

Salmon - rich as we have been—but are unlikely to be for much longer — we have tended to scorn bottom fish except for the flounder and the black or grey cod. Americans have been buying and liking the silvery ocean perch for about 20 years, but we didn't wake up to his commercial value until 1957.

Even now, most of our limited catch goes to American tables.

★ ★ ★

Among Canadians who have learned a good deal about the ocean perch is S. J. Westrheim, a scientist working with director Dr. Peter Larkin at the Research Board of Canada's biological station on Departure Bay.

In a recently-concluded survey, Mr. Westrheim spent three years studying the occurence and habits of ocean perch from the Bering Sea approaches to Cape Blanco in Oregon, the limit of its North Pacific commercial range.

While he sees no need for immediate alarm or depletion, Mr. Westrheim does point out that on the few banks where the ocean perch has been heavily fished for, as off the Columbia River and Cape Flattery, it has become hard to catch.

To this he adds a fact which strikes me as significant. On the few banks where the ocean perch has been heavily fished for, as off the Columbia River and Cape Flattery, its numbers have grown scant.

One day we'll need the tasty little fish which these Russian ships are currently garnering by the million, at the edge of our coastal shelf. I hope, when that time comes, he's still there to be caught!

Dr. Lotta Coming To Town

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

It's that time of year again. Frost nips the air, you can see your breath in the morning, people start to think about Christmas.

Once again The Times will sponsor Dr. Hitschmanova's year-end drive to raise funds for her Unitarian Service Committee of Canada.

This year, celebrating its 21st birthday, the USC is still busy and helping feed, clothe and educate children in underdeveloped countries in Europe, the Far East and Asia.

Going into its 13th year of Times sponsorship, the fund is staffed by an energetic and devoted group of workers like Dr. Hitschmanova, who concludes a cross-Canada trip in Victoria on behalf of USC.

Her first effort for the fund in Victoria will be a public meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in St. Andrew's Kirk Hall, 680 Courtney Street. Collections by The Times will commence after the meeting.

All interested persons are invited to attend. Dr. Hitschmanova will show slides with commentary on the USC Flashback on Two Decades.

'I Keep Talking But Nobody Does Anything,' Says Angry Official

Mental Patients Locked Up With Criminals

By PETE LOUDON

Three Victoria residents were in city jail cells today because they are mentally ill and no mental-care hospital beds are available.

Two have been locked up with criminals while awaiting committal to Essondale.

The charge was withdrawn this morning but he is still in jail awaiting transit to a mental hospital.

The story was told today by Robert W. Dudley, spokesman for Canadian Mental Health Association here.

"I keep telling the public but nobody does anytihng. We're back in the middle ages," he said.

"I'm sick and tired of the mentally ill being locked in cells because there are no hospital beds availabel. I'm so angry I don't know what to do."

It could happen in any family in the district, he pointed out.

"It is a sad commentary on society that a man should be locked in with criminals because he is sick."

Mr. Dudley said he knows there are no beds available in the psychiatric ward at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

But somewhere in Jubilee, St. Joseph's, Gorge Road, Mount St. Mary's, Rest Haven or in some of the other private hospitals in Greater Victoria, there are surely some empty beds, he says.

Surely in some places a man with a sick mind can be kept under supervision, he pleads.

He said mental patients waiting transfer to Essondale may have days to wait until paperwork is completed and a police constable is available to take them to the mainland.

Two of the jailed patients were expected to go to the mainland today. But that doesn't remove the stigma of the jail—that stays with them, said Mr. Dudley.

He says if earlier promises by the provincial government for a new mental hospital in Victoria had been kept, it would have been built by now and the situation would have been remedied.

Health Minister Eric Martin's latest promise is for a start in January—but it will take two years to complete.

"Until then, it appears we are going to continue to jail sick people," said Mr. Dudley.

John Perry, 2623 Fifth Street, died alone and unnoticed shortly before midnight in the wreck on Erie Street, just east of Dallas Road.

It was several minutes later before a passing motorist, Colin Butts, 24, of 558 David, noticed the collision.

He thought at first that the trailer had reversed into the car. He stopped his car and walked over to the scene.

SLUMPED OVER SEAT

Said Mr. Butts: "I looked in the car and saw a man slumped over the front seat. He was badly injured about the chest. I ran down the street to a house and got the people to call the police.

"Then I went back to the car to see if I could be any help. I felt for the man's pulse but there was none. He was dead then."

Police rushed Mr. Perry to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was pronounced dead. An autopsy was to be performed today.

Police said there is a possibility that Mr. Perry may have suffered a heart attack. Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said he will decide if an inquest is necessary after receiving the post-mortem report.

ON WAY HOME

Mr. Perry apparently was on his way home from work when the accident occurred. Police said his car travelled east on Erie and crashed into a truck at a spot 365 feet east of Dallas.

The truck, loaded with pop bottles, was owned by Goodwill Bottling, 35 Erie Street. Mr. Perry's car was totally wrecked but there was little damage done to the semi-trailer truck.

Born in Scotland, Mr. Perry came to live in Canada in his early 20s. He worked as a longshoreman for the past 30 years.

Mr. Perry is survived by the widow, Margaret, and three sons. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

MEMORIAL FUNDS STOLEN

The theft was committed in the carving shed at Thunderbird Park. Police said the prowler smashed a small window to gain entry.

'FISHY' HUMAN NEARS REALITY

By JIM HUME

The day will come when man will be able to travel under water without packing an air supply with him.

Dr. Sherman W. Day, Seattle, told delegates attending the annual meeting at the Empress Hotel of the North Pacific Surgical Association that experiments with artificial gills had already worked on animals and had passed their first tests with human beings.

Dr. Day said he was confident that the problem of finding a "gill" able to withstand depth pressures would be overcome in the near future.

★ ★ ★

He made his observations during discussion on a paper presented by Dr. Frank C. Henry, Seattle, on pressure effects on skin divers, sand hogs and surgeons.

Dr. Henry had described the difficulties encountered by man on underwater forays, the problem of oxygen supply and the dangers of surfacing from depth too quickly.

Leading the discussion, Dr. Day said once man could eliminate the necessity of "packing his environment with him" many of the problems outlined by Dr. Henry would be removed.

Dr. Day stressed that it was not a lack of oxygen in the sea that forced man to carry with him or have available a supply of air.

★ ★ ★

"There's plenty of oxygen in sea water," Dr. Day said. "The problem is how to extract that oxygen from the sea."

Dr. Day said many experiments had been carried out and that an artificial lung or gill had been designed from silicon rubber.

He said it took four square yards of the material to make a membrane suitable for man.

"We have experimented with animals and found that with the artificial gill they can live below the surface indefinitely drawing their oxygen supply from the sea," he said.

Dr. Day forecast that one day there would be a major breakthrough in "gill" design and that this would presage a new era for men who operate below sea level.

The two-day session, last held in Victoria in 1959, ends this evening.

LIBERAL LEAD INCREASED

Service Vote Dashes Waite Hopes

The last hope of Progressive Conservative Rev. Clifford Waite disappeared today when the armed services vote increased the election night lead of Liberal David Groos in Victoria.

The forces vote raised Mr. Groos' majority to 1,435 from 1,008 on election night, when Mr. Waite refused to concede to the former M.P.

This morning, after he heard the results, the former navy chaplain extended "heartiest congratulaions" to Mr. Groos, a former navy captain.

★ ★ ★

VICTORIA

David Groos, L	14,092 (683)
Clifford Waite, PC	12,567 (256)
Frank Hunter, SC	9,746 (143)
Lloyd Brereton, NDP	7,272 (125)
W.S.E. Morrison, Communist	376 (1)

ESQUIMALT-SAANICH

George Chatterton, PC	14,793 (219)
Len Stephenson, NDP	9,176 (104)
James Gorst, L	9,112 (483)
Vera Pipes, SC	5,268 (75)

Mr. Waite said he has several jobs in the offing, including a return to the navy and two teaching posts.

"I should know in a few days," he said.

He also said he is willing to be a Conservative candidate again if the party wishes.

The official count of the Victoria civilian votes will take place Monday and on Wednesday in Esquimalt-Saanich. The election night count is made by deputy returning officers, but the official count by returning officers varies little.

Travelling Bazaar Grosses $3,964

The World University Service of Canada's travelling bazaar grossed a total of $3,964 at the University of Victoria this week.

Profits from the sale of the foreign curios are used by the organization in assisting Canadian students abroad and in aiding foreign students at Canadian universities.

WESTERN MAID IN TROUBLE

By RON SUDLOW
Marine Reporter

Today was the Western Maid's turn to receive help.

Charles Loftus, skipper of the Seattle fishboat, reported his craft was taking water in heavy seas off the northern tip of Vancouver Island.

It was in the same area where Wednesday he rescued Vancouver fisherman Oistein Hansen, 53, and his son, Robert, 21.

OUT OF ORDER

The Western Maid reported her pumps were out of order in a message flashed to the Rescue Co-ordination centre in Vancouver.

The RCN ocean-escort HMCS Stettler was dispatched to her aid but a repair crew was having difficulty fixing the pumps at press time.

DESTINATION UNKNOWN

It is not known where the two craft are headed. The Western Maid developed trouble 35 miles northwest of Cape Scott.

The repairmen were led by Stettlers engineering officer, Lt. Lucien Boyer, 3841 Clarndon Road.

They were dropped over the warships side into the frothing water in a whaler.

Although the fishboat was shipping water due to malfunction of her pumps, she was not in immediate danger, a navy spokesman said.

It Is Now Time to Enjoy Life And Relax, Says Our Gracie

By AL FORREST

"This is it, this is the farewell tour," Lancashire lass Gracie Fields, 67, said here today.

"I've made a New Year's resolution to relax and enjoy life a bit. I've been living out of a suitcase too long."

Monday night at the Royal Theatre she will sing her big hits like Walter, Walter, Lead Me to the Altar and The Biggest Aspidistra in the World. Then she continues on to Vancouver, Seattle, Edmonton, Calgary, ending her tour—and her career—in New York on Dec. 5.

●

She chuckled this morning at the suggestion that she was a national institution like Bing Crosby in the United States and Maurice Chevalier of France.

"Now that I'm slipping out of it I can't believe that it happened to me. I was working so hard I didn't notice it before. Now it seems like it happened to another person. It's been a long time."

GRACIE
. . . goodbye kiss

She started her career at her mother's urging at age seven and never looked back. In 1928 she was No. 1 on the hit parade in England and just kept getting better and better.

During the Second World War she won the hearts of servicemen by getting out of a sick bed to go on tour entertaining the troops.

Gracie says she is pleased she is no longer mobbed by fans.

"I never did like crowds about me on the street. I would like to go about shopping without being noticed. It is a great thrill to walk unnoticed to a theatre and then once inside win over a new audience.

"Now I'm going to see some places and relax with my hobbies at home."

●

Home is the Isle of Capri where she has lived since she married Boris Olperovici in 1952. He is accompanying her. Gracie's hobbies are sketching and ceramics.

"We're founding an artists' colony in Capri," she says. "I plan to keep busy."

She noted that her farewell tour has taken two years.

"I went to the places this year that I missed last time," she said.

"They asked me to come to Victoria a second time because so many couldn't see it last year. It's all very flattering. But this is it."

Two Good Reasons For Vancouver Trip

By JOAN MASON HURLEY

I blush to confess, as a Victorian born and bred, that I have an undying passion for Vancouver. So it was with alacrity that I seized on two good excuses to go there this week.

One was the advent of a distinguished symphony orchestra, the other the production of a great classic of Russian literature.

On Tuesday the Los Angeles Philharmonic played at the Queen Elizabeth. Their conductor is the glamorous Parsee, Zubin Mehta, son of Mehli Mehta, conductor of the Bombay Symphony Orchestra.

An exotic star in the realm of international music, 29-year-old Mehta commutes between California and Quebec, where he is also conductor of the Montreal Symphony.

He is the youngest person ever to have directed the Berlin Philharmonic and the Vienna Philharmonic.

ALLOWS SCOPE

He conducts with remarkable economy of movement, at times he is almost motionless. He allows the players considerable scope within the limits of the music.

The program was one chosen to display the technique of the huge 104-member orchestra. First came American Samuel Barber's ballet, Medea's Meditation and Dance of Vengeance.

I don't know when I have been so excited by discords. Composed in 1946 I found it electrifying music, with magnificent orchestral effects.

In complete antithesis was Mozart's Concertante for Oboe, Clarinet, Horn and Bassoon. Strangely enough, this was less successful and it was the only work for which Mehta used a score.

Richard Strauss' massive Ein Heldenleben was last. This tremendous orchestral structure requires among other things two tubas, two harps, eight basses, and in fact a most expansive orchestra.

I heard one young man complain that the work had lasted 50 minutes. But so vastly complex and fascinating a display of musical color I found only slightly too long.

This was partly due to the excellent program notes, which one was able to read as the lights were left dimly on. This civilized custom, embraced by most great orchestras, where listeners often come with their scores, would be worth trying, to my mind, here in Victoria.

★ ★ ★

The next night at Turgenev's A Month in the Country, I stumbled on the best thing I have seen in months and months of intensive theatre-going.

This was the play chosen to open the new super-modern Guildford Theatre in England this summer. It has since moved to the West End, starring Ingrid Bergman and Michael Redgrave.

The Vancouver Playhouse production has many virtues, but the most outstanding one is style. Style of movement, style of address and style of delivery.

IN 1850

The play has been adapted by Emlyn Williams into truly distinguished English.

Written in 1850, with its subtle probing of personality and love, A Month in the Country seems as new as today. It is an absorbingly interesting psychological drama.

Here was a piece of acting which quite transcended anything I have lately seen. Every emotion, love, shame, despair, remorse in turn are mirrored on her wonderfully expressive face.

ENJOYS CONTRAST

Turgenev doesn't wallow in hysteria. Like Shakespeare he enjoys contrast. There were many scenes of broad farce to relieve the tension.

There is a whole panorama of people attached to the country estate, each with his own fish to fry and his own romantic plans . . . the preoccupied husband, the termagant of a mother-in-law, her spinster companion, the scheming doctor, the charming young girl who is Natalie's rival, the stupid neighbor, the two tutors, the son, the servants and so on.

There are antithetical scenes of many kinds, the love of youth and innocence, that of age and experience, amazingly cleverly contrasted.

SYMPTOMS

The production is beautifully set on two levels, the drawing-room and the garden, and lit to enhance the sumptuous dresses. Seldom have I been so committed and so carried away by a play.

Incidentally Malcolm Black, artistic director, told me the Playhouse Company was disappointed that Victoria city had cancelled the arrangements made by Robert Ellison, former manager of the McPherson, for them to bring their productions here this season.

Without a guarantee they cannot afford to come, but in point of fact, he said, Stop the World and Ring Around the Moon had both made money for the city last year.

At all events, A Month in the Country runs through next week with a matinee on Saturday.

Accent on Youth For Festival Programs In '66

VANCOUVER (CP) — Youth will be the theme of the 1966 Vancouver Festival.

Manager Hugh Pickett told the annual general meeting Friday that attractions planned include performances by Britain's National Youth Orchestra, production of the play Noye's Fludde, the Ding Dong Dell comedy revue from Toronto and a Vancouver Operatic Association production of Humperdink's Hansel and Gretel.

Mr. Pickett said the festival hoped also to present Russia's Bolshoi Ballet.

Directors reported the festival last year had managed to cut its over-all $66,500 deficit by $2,464.

Mainland Actress In Bastion Show

One of this province's most sought-after professional actresses is in Victoria to play a leading role in "You Never Can Tell" — Bastion Theatre's next major production.

Pat Gage, who came to Canada eight years ago from Scotland, plays Gloria Clandon in the George Bernard Shaw comedy, being staged Nov. 20 to 26 at the McPherson Playhouse.

Pat has been on the stage since she was a child. In Canada, she has won a Dominion Drama Festival Best Actress Award, and played in movies and on TV as well as in the theatre.

VARIETY

Her most recent performances were in "Charley's Aunt" and "Desire Under the Elms" with the Playhouse Theatre Company, "The Rape of the Belt," "Rattle of a Simple Man" and "The Play's the Thing" with the Arts Club Theatre-in-the-Round, "Billy Liar" for Metro Summer Professional Theatre, and "The Country Wife" and Shaw's "Man and Superman" for the Freddie Wood Theatre.

One of the two feature movies she made this year was filmed in the Bahamas, the other, a Canadian production, filmed in Vancouver.

On TV, Pat Gage has appeared on Camera West and the Heritage Series for the CBC.

Starred with Pat in "You Never Can Tell," are many of Victoria's leading actors and actresses—Harry Hill, Robert Price, Bruce Sharp, Jennifer Chaster, Wendy Packard, John Bergbusch, Bruce Banyard, Stanley Bowles, May Mack and Rick Stamford.

Director Stuart Baker, who also directed Bastion's comedy "Come Blow Your Horn," turns his hand to Shavian wit and wisdom in this production.

Girl Travels 4,000 Miles To Dance

LONDON (CP)—A 22-year-old Canadian girl has travelled nearly 4,000 miles to study dancing at a suburban Romford school.

Susan Miller of Guelph, Ont., was studying with a woman who was a former pupil at the school. When she heard that Susan would have to wait 18 months to take an advanced examination at the Royal Academy of Dancing in London, she advised the young Canadian to go to Britain and study while she waited.

"I want to sing and act as well as dance," Miss Miller said. "And when I am good enough to land worthwhile parts I want to work on this side of the Atlantic."

DDF Jury Chooses 10 Original Plays

Ten new Canadian plays have been approved by a jury for entry in the 1966 B.C. Regional Festival of the Dominion Drama Festival.

Among the playwrights are Ralph Kendall, formerly of Victoria, who worked with the Theatre Guild here a few years ago, and Raymond Hull, whose The Drunkard had a phenomenal run at The Secret summer before last.

Kendall's play is titled The Duke and the Devil; Hull's, The Gang's All Here.

Others are Milt Freiman, A Voice in the Wilderness; Tom Grainger, Daft Dream A-Dyin'; Paul St. Pierre, How to Break a Quarter Horse; John Kelly, I'll Remember You, Love, in My Dreams; George Ryga, Nothing But a Man; Robert Wallace, Nursery Rhymes; Arnold H. Olson, Permission to Breed, and Beverley A. Simons, The Elephant and the Jewish Question.

A one-thousand-dollar prize is offered the drama group whose production of an original new Canadian play approved by the jury places first in the Regional Festival.

In addition, a $100 grant will be made to any properly organized drama group in good standing with the B.C. Drama Association which has confirmed its intention to enter the 1966 festival with a play chosen from this list.

Upon being invited, after preliminary screening, to present their production in the Regional Festival, a further grant of $300 will be made to not more than four groups.

The author of the best original new Canadian play entered in the festival will also receive $1,000.

Deadline for any group intending to enter a play is Dec. 1.

The Dominion Drama Festival finals will be held next spring in Victoria, at McPherson Playhouse.

Summer Playhouse To Do Without Pros

By NICK FILLMORE

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP)—Director Jack Sheriff says the Acadia Summer Playhouse will probably operate in its sixth season in 1966 without professional actors.

"Our company has developed to the stage where it is doubtful we'll need professionals next summer," Sheriff said in an interview. "Some of our young performers have developed very rapidly in the past couple of years and they're ready to handle just about any of the productions we plan."

Sheriff, professor of English at Acadia University here, said the amateur group will put on eight productions in 1966. Five will be musicals.

The plays will be The Fantasticks, South Pacific, The Little Indians, Girl Crazy, Enter Laughing, 110 in the Shade, Barefoot in the Park and The King and I.

"The only part we might need help in is the Frenchman in South Pacific," said Sheriff a native of Toronto.

DEFENDS STANDARDS

An extra — West Side Story, starring Tommy Common—was presented in October at Truro, N.S., Halifax and here. Common also played Lancelot in Camelot during the regular summer run.

"I was very pleased with Tommy's performances," Sheriff said. Camelot drew good attendances for its week-long run and West Side Story was a sell-out when it appeared here."

The only other professional to appear with the workshop last summer was Pam Hyatt of Toronto, onetime Spring Thaw regular, who had the lead in Sound of Music.

Sheriff spoke rapidly in defence of the Summer Playhouse, which has been criticized by some Annapolis Valley people for producing shows of too low a standard.

"We're here to provide entertainment. You have to expect criticism. Many of the persons in the show are teen-agers just learning there. We're not professionals."

But Sheriff said people often compare the Summer Playhouse to something they saw on Broadway or at Stratford.

"The comments I hear are usually favorable. Tourists have told me our productions compare favorably with professional theatre they have seen."

Dr. J. M. R. Beveridge, president of Acadia, which sponsors the Summer Playhouse, said the drama workshop is serving a need at Acadia and in the valley.

"In my opinion he (Sheriff) is doing an excellent job in training students in drama and in providing excellent background of live theatre for the surrounding communities and for summer tourists," Dr. Beveridge said.

U.S. Bombs Neutrals

SAIGON (CP)—U.S. planes today bombed a village and police post in the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam, killing one civilian and injuring another.

A U.S. spokesman said he had no information on police casualties.

He said two and possibly more high-performance U.S. jets made a rocket-and-bomb attack on the village of Xuan Hoa. A board of inquiry ordered an immediate investigation into the incident.

84 Feared Dead As Ship Burns

Holiday Cruise Disaster

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — The holiday cruise ship Yarmouth Castle burned from bow to stern and sank in the Atlantic Ocean today and it was feared 84 of her 550 passengers and crew were carried to the bottom.

The cause of the fire was not known. The U.S. Coast Guard said disaster struck so suddenly the Yarmouth Castle, built in 1927 for Nova Scotia service, went to her death in 285 fathoms without sending a distress call.

Two vessels, the cruise ship Bahama Star and the Finnish motorship Finnpulp, reached the scene 110 miles east of Miami, Fla., shortly after the blaze broke out. But when the rescue operation ended, only 466 persons had been found.

The ship's passenger list indicated at least 15 Canadians had been aboard. There were none from B.C.

ALL POSSIBLE SAVED

Capt. Carl Brown of the Bahama Star said "We believe all those who were not trapped inside" the fiercely burning vessel were picked out of the water.

"We have searched the area and we have found no more."

The Bahama Star was headed for Nassau with 360 survivors. The Finnpulp, first to radio word of the tragedy to the Coast Guard, was going in with 94 others. They were due Saturday.

British Overseas Airways Corporation said it would arrange for shuttle flights to carry the survivors from Nassau to Florida.

Six men and six women, burned and in shock, were flown by U.S. Coast Guard helicopters to Princess Margaret Hospital at Nassau.

HUNDREDS WEEP

At 2:15 a.m. Brown said he saw smoke on the horizon, picked up speed and overtook the Yarmouth Castle. She was burning in the forward upper deck and flames were spreading rapidly throughout the ship.

"We passed three lifeboats full of people and called to them that we would return after we got the passengers off the burning boat."

Hospitals Crisis Major Battle Field

By PETE LOUDON

(Why is a rich city in a rich district in a rich province going without sufficient hospital beds? Why is this issue building into a controversy involving two layers of government instead of being quietly and efficiently solved? The Times asked reporter Pete Loudon to explore the issue. This is his first report in a four-part series.)

For the first time in history the 167,000 residents of the capital region will join next month in deciding a common problem by ballot — the crisis in district hospitals.

From Sooke to Sidney, from Oak Bay to Langford, in organized and unorganized areas on Dec. 11, property owners are being asked to speak as one community with one voice.

It will be the first test of the theory that working together they can accomplish what they have been unable to do efficiently, working independently.

So far they've failed to provide hospital accommodation to cope with a lower Island population that is adding 15,000 people—as many people as there are in Nanaimo—each year.

Loudon

There are often as many as 1,200 persons waiting for hospital beds.

Hospital planners say they need $13.5 million dollars in the next five years to catch up.

They say that unless the money is forthcoming, hospitals soon will be able to give immediate admittance to emergency cases only.

Yet despite the seriousness of their plight there is a growing feeling that the hospital referendum is doomed to defeat before the first vote is cast.

★ ★ ★

On the face of it, it's a simple problem. A stranger might marvel that there should be any question at all about an affirmative vote for the hospitals.

The people need hospitals desperately. In the coffers of governments—their governments—lies the peoples' money. The federal government is ready to contribute if the provincial government is ready to contribute, if the municipal governments of the area are ready to contribute.

And that's where the wrangling starts.

A growing number of capital district municipal leaders are digging in their heels. They say they can only raise money for hospitals through taxing property owners—but they feel everyone who uses a hospital should contribute to its cost.

They say the provincial government, which taxes everyone in a variety of ways, should pay most or even all hospital costs. They point to provincial claims of unparalleled prosperity and declared surpluses in each budget.

Provincial authorities say their present scale of contributions is acceptable everywhere else in British Columbia and ranks with the best in Canada.

The people who run the hospitals and who are scared by the inadequate facilities want fast action. They say the only way to get it is by accepting the present scale of provincial participation.

★ ★ ★

They believe objection by the municipalities would be fruitless and could only cause further delay and aggravate the present situation.

Already one district reeve, Reeve R. Gordon Lee of Central Saanich, has expressed the view publicly that the district referendum will go under.

He points out that a "yes" vote means a property tax boost —and land taxes already are disastrously high in an area where many elderly folk with limited incomes have settled in retirement.

Two Oak Bay councillors, Coun. Mrs. Frances Elford and Coun. Walter Dodsworth, have said they will campaign for re-election in December while urging a "no" vote.

So far the objections are only a murmur. But behind-the-scenes talks with other municipal leaders suggest a growing uproar.

No municipal leader wants to come out against hospitals. But many of them see the issue as another phase of a growing encroachment on municipal rights by provincial government fiscal policy.

★ ★ ★

They are debating in private whether they have a duty to make a public stand against the system. They are sorry the battlefield must be the hospitals.

When the question of united effort by organized and unorganized areas of the capital region came up two years ago they opposed inclusion of hospitals in district planning.

At that time Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell proposed a joint regional council—mini-metro some called it—where representatives of all capital areas would work together on matters of common interest—sewers, parks, and like matters

Service Vote Gives Liberals 2

OTTAWA (CP) — Two turnover victories in the armed services vote and a guarantee of support from a Quebec independent have assured Prime Minister Pearson's Liberal government of 132 Commons votes—just two short of a clear majority.

(See also Page 25.)

The heavily pro-Liberal service vote, announced here today, provided the margin of victory for Liberals John B. Stewart in the Nova Scotia riding of Antigonish-Guysborough and Louis-P. Neveau in Quebec's Shefford constituency. Both dislodged Conservatives.

After the civilian count on election night Nov. 8, Mr. Stewart trailed Conservative D. Hugh Gillis by 19 votes. But when the service vote for the riding was added, Mr. Stewart ended on top by 57 votes. He had held the seat in the previous two parliaments.

IN THIRD PLACE

In Shefford, Mr. Neveu was in third place election night, 13 votes behind Conservative Paul O. Trepanier and four behind Creditiste Gilbert Rondeau who was seeking his third straight victory there.

The service vote shot Mr. Neveu into the top spot, 47 votes ahead of Mr. Trepanier and 61 up on Mr. Rondeau.

Mr. Rondeau immediately announced he will ask for a judicial recount and there is a possibility that Mr. Gillis will make a similar request.

Official counts are being made in most ridings this week by returning officers and after these are announced candi-

Union Jacks Torn Down As Africans Slam UDI

(Times News Services)

Noisy and sometimes violent protests against Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence broke out today in a number of African capitals.

The largest demonstration was in Dar es Salaam, capital of Tanzania, where 200 university students broke into the British Information Service, smashing furniture and windows.

They also tore down the Union Jack from the nearby British high commission building and burned it and wrecked the high commissioner's car.

In Leopoldville, Congo Republic, 600 students demonstrated peacefully, chanting "A bas (down with) Ian Smith." They also waved placards calling for military action against Rhodesia and freedom for "all African states."

The demonstrations took place outside the Portuguese and British embassies but no hostile moves were made against the buildings.

In Addis Ababa, the British ambassador to Ethiopia has protested to the government over a demonstration Friday.

Sir John Russell said the incident occurred when about 1,000 stormed their way into the British Embassy grounds, smashed windows, pulled down the flag and threatened and insulted embassy staff.

The ambassador said he received a visit from Ethiopian chief of protocol who apologized on behalf of the government.

In Cape Town, South Africa, a counter-demonstration took place when about 100 Rhodesian and South African students banged on the locked doors of the British consul-general's office seeking to protest British action against Rhodesia.

Oil Shutdown Looms Closer

With a Monday midnight deadline set for a strike by oil workers against all major petroleum companies, no break appeared imminent in any direction.

Oil workers president Fred Geddes said this morning he has had no word from the provincial government or any of the six oil companies involved.

The only comment from Attorney-General Robert Bonner this morning was: "I think the government's position will be made clear next week if an emergency occurs."

Refinery workers, truck drivers and warehousemen have been on strike against British American for two months in a job security - wage dispute spreading as far east as Ontario.

Because the company has maintained a curtailed service by using supervisory personnel, and because the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' International Union is not organized completely at any of the companies, the effectiveness of the extended strike will depend on support from other unions.

The 110,000-member B.C. Federation of Labour said Friday all major unions have pledged full support for the oil workers.

"Our affiliates will not stand idly by and see these oil companies ride rough-shod over the people of British Columbia," the Federation said in a statement.

Negroes Press For Blockade Against Smith

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) —The 36 African members of the United Nations called today for a rail, air and sea blockade of Rhodesia to crush the revolutionary government of Ian Smith.

Speaking for the African delegates, Ambassador Arsene Assouna Usher of the Ivory Coast charged that the economic sanctions envisioned by Britain and the United States "will not be effective without the use of force."

He presented a sweeping resolution to the council urging a complete break of diplomatic relations by all states with Rhodesia.

The resolution insisted that the rebellion "on the part of the Smith regime be put down immediately and law and order established."

It also called for an embargo on the delivery of oil and spare parts and total rupture of rail, air, postal, telegraphic, radio and any other means of communication.

HORRORS OF SHIP FIRE RELATED BY SURVIVORS

"I really don't know what happened," Mrs. Mary J. Hamilton of St. Petersburg, Fla., told reporters at the Princess Margaret Hospital as doctors treated her burns.

"I heard screams, opened the door and the fire was all over the place. I became hysterical and I don't know what happened after that."

Arthur Gordon, 53, of Los Angeles, said:

"I just don't know what happened. There was no explosion until the ship went down. I jumped in a boat.

"I heard shouts of 'fire.' I thought it was just a couple of drunks, but after the shouts continued I went out to the lobby.

"I was surrounded by flames. I rushed back in and closed the door.

"My wife and I went into the bathroom. I broke a window trying to escape to the deck.

"Someone later came back and helped me. I believe my wife is on one of the rescue ships."

BRITISH GOVERNOR HAS A PROBLEM

Who Fires Who in Rhodesia?

SALISBURY (CP)—What do you do when you are the Queen's representative and you get fired by a prime minister the Queen has already fired?

British Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs faces that problem today. He was fired Friday by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

But as far as the Queen and her government are concerned, Gibbs remains as the only legal power in Rhodesia. The British fired Smith as soon as he declared the British colony independent two days ago. But Smith remains firmly in control.

Gibbs' ouster was the latest move in the struggle between Britain and Rhodesia over independence.

In seizing independence to preserve white rule, Smith swore his allegiance to the Queen and said he was determined to remain loyal to "this gracious lady, our Queen" whether she liked it or not.

His newly-declared 1965 constitution provided for the Queen to appoint a governor-general "on the advice only of the ministers of the government of Rhodesia." If the Queen did not do this within 14 days, a regent would be appointed to represent her.

GIBBS EVICTED

Gibbs was asked to vacate Government House and The Associated Press quotes sources as saying that Gibbs, a practical man, was not expected to stay on the job much longer.

But Reuters news agency reports that the British high commissioner to Rhodesia, John Johnston, on his return to London Friday night, said Gibbs intended to stay at his post as governor and in his office residence.

Meanwhile, British Prime Minister Wilson told the British Parliament Friday that Gibbs now constitutes the legal government for Rhodesia.

Wilson said Britain will give full consideration to any request by the governor to restore law and order.

U.S. OPERATION SEALIFT FOR CUBANS UNDER WAY

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A U.S. government-chartered excursion boat reached Cuba today on the first shuttle of Operation Sealift, new hope for thousands of Cubans chafing to leave their homeland for the United States.

The coast guard said the 85-foot Skipper K took aboard 110 of 2,000 refugees at Matanzas for their voyage into exile.

The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Diligence was dispatched to escort the Skipper K through the 90-mile Florida Straits to Key West where a receiving centre can process up to 1,000 persons a day.

Another U.S.-chartered vessel, the 75-foot New Pan American, will join the Skipper K in the shuttle Monday. It also can carry 150 passengers.

The sealift, announced in Washington by the state department, is expected to continue most of November. A spokesman said it is hoped the sealift will end before an airlift of 3,000 to 4,000 refugees begins early next month.

It proposes joint action on a sewer study, fireworks control, park acquisition and hospital expansion. Hospitals, say the objectors in municipal ranks, were included over their objection.

★ ★ ★

They say the province chose hospitals as a battleground—and the province must take responsibility if the mini-metro concept fails to gain acceptance.

In the next few weeks councils of Greater Victoria and speakers in the unorganized areas will relate the controversy to the philosophy propounded (to willing ears) at the Union of B.C. Municipalities some years ago by the then-reeve of North Cowichan, Maj.-Gen. C. A. P. Murison.

The Murison formula called for a realignment of provincial-municipal financing with the municipal property tax levied only to pay for service to property and the province paying for services to people.

They may have enough listeners that the mini-metro vote which is primarily the hospital vote, will go under. And the people, whose governments are so prosperous, still will do without adequate hospitals.

City Demands Facts On Hospital Scheme

Victoria city council is duty-bound to demand more information about proposed regional hospital construction to prevent ratepayers from buying a pig in a poke.

Mayor R. B. Wilson delineated the problem Friday, following a meeting with Greater Victoria hospital planning committee which is promoting a tax-levy system of capital financing.

There are insufficient details of the proposal to allow an intelligent decision to be made when the question is put to ratepayers in December, city council feels.

TWO-MILL LEVY

The provincial government, which proposes capital hospital construction financing as part of regional services, suggests a two-mill annual levy to replace voluntary subscriptions from municipalities and the general public.

This would be applied throughout the capital region, including unorganized areas which now make no formal contributions aside from personal donations.

$550,000 ANNUALLY

But as the mayor points out, this levy would raise only about $550,000 a year.

The committee has a five-year plan that proposes spending $5,732,500 out of tax-raised revenues with the balance of a $13,573,400 program coming from other sources.

The suggested two mills would then produce only a fraction of the required amount—about $2.7 million, or less than half the locally-raised amount.

"This is why we want to get it clear how the two mills is to accomplish this program," the mayor said.

"It appears it can't be done on a cash basis. We have to know how much money would have to be raised, for how long and at what interest rate."

SIX MILLS

The mayor said it seemed that the hospital planners are really aiming at a 15-year program and there is no indication of how the two-mill levy would take care of it. He suggested six mills would be more realistic.

"It is only fair to the people that the government make this clear," Mayor Wilson said.

Area Seeks Same Ballot

Greater Victoria ratepayers should all mark the same form of ballot when voting on participation in regional hospital costs next month.

The form of ballot was to be sent individually by the municipalities to the minister of municipal affairs with the recommendation that it be adopted for presentation to ratepayers in the unorganized areas.

BANDITS HIT THREE BANKS IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL (CP)—Bandits hit three Montreal banks Friday and escaped with a total of $56,000 and police said a bomb explosion in a city church may have been a diversionary tactic in one of the holdups.

Hooded bandits, brandishing machine guns, robbed a downtown branch of the Royal Bank of Canada Friday morning and escaped with $5,000.

A few hours later, five bandits escaped with $16,000 from a branch of the same bank in suburban Mount Royal.

Friday night three men escaped with $35,000 from an east-end branch of the Montreal City and District Savings Bank. They fired a volley of parting shots in the air.

Police said they did not know if one gang committed all the robberies.

However, an explosion at the rear of a Roman Catholic church in northeast Montreal might have been used as a diversionary tactic in the third robbery, police said.

B.C. will be declared 'hot' immediately the union goes on strike at 11:59 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 15.

The ramifications of this decision mean that all industries in B.C. could be shut down."

The federation has called another meeting for Monday afternoon "to state the seriousness of the situation and to map strategy to ensure 100 per cent support for the oil workers in the fight for job security."

FULL RESPONSIBILITY

It also said the oil companies must accept "full responsibility" for any dislocation that occurs.

"The refusal of the oil companies to negotiate with the OCAW on the serious problem of automation can only result in complete disruption of the economy of B.C.," the federation added.

Two unions representing 42,000 forest industry workers warned today in a telegram to Premier Bennett that a complete disruption in the woods industry would result from the oil strike.

"It is now evident that our members will protest the use of petroleum products from strike-bound refineries and distributors," said the telegram from the International Woodworkers of America and the Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

The two unions urged the premier to step into the dispute and persuade oil companies to come to the bargaining table.

The union set the deadline after reducing its bargaining position to an extra 50 cents an hour over two years, instead of 40 cents in one year, and six months' notification of new processes instead of 18 months.

Mr. Geddes said there was no counter offer from the oil companies—Shell, Home, Texaco, Standard, Pacific Petroleums and BA. The companies have made no comment.

There were these other developments:

- A city service station manager said supplies of gasoline will be maintained, if at a slower pace, by distributors using non-union office staff;
- Opposition Leader Robert Strachan of the New Democratic Party said the provincial government should take over the oil companies rather than take action against the employees.

Mr. Strachan said he prefers public ownership over "the narrow restrictions of the Civil Defence Act."

veloped in fire that sent a column of smoke 4,000 feet into the air, listed badly, capsized and plunged to the bottom at 5:03 a.m.

The 38-year-old vessel was reported to have been in excellent condition and fully equipped for fire fighting.

Marvin DeBerry, production manager of the Tampa, Fla., Ship Repair and Drydock Co. Inc., said the ship completed its annual overhaul Oct. 15 and was "operating beautifully."

NO EXPLOSION HEARD

The failure of the Yarmouth Castle to send a distress call indicated an explosion might have knocked out her radio, but survivors interviewed here said they heard none.

When the Bahama Star left the scene there was only four empty lifeboats and debris scattered over the calm blue sea to mark the remains of the Yarmouth Castle.

W. R. Cooper, a coast guard helicopter pilot who flew into Nassau with three of the survivors, said: "It was a terrible sight. The ship was a mass of flames from bow to stern."

The fire raged through much of the ship before some of the passengers were even aware of it.

U.S. TO INVESTIGATE

The ill-fated vessel was built in 1927 by W. Cramp and Sons Co. of Philadelphia for the Nova Scotia Steamship Corp. She was renamed Queen of Nassau in 1954 but three years later the name was changed back to Yarmouth Castle.

Lieut. Hugh Huleatt, pilot of a coast guard amphibian out of Miami, flew over the Yarmouth Castle and said:

"The water was full of bobbing lifejackets and life rafts with people in them. The rescue vessels picked a few people right off the doomed ship's decks but had to back off because of the spreading fire. Then they picked them up as they went overboard.

"There was nobody visible on deck when the Yarmouth Castle heeled over and sank."

dates have four days in which to request recounts before a judge. Such a request must be accompanied by a $250 deposit which is returned if the candidate wins.

On Friday Mr. Pearson received a message from J. A. Mongrain, an independent elected in Trois-Rivieres, offering "collaboration to assure a stable government."

MUST NAME SPEAKER

Barring recount upsets, this gives the Liberals 132 votes in the Commons. An actual majority is 133 but the governing party must appoint one of its members as the Speaker, who votes only in the case of ties. Thus 134 members are needed for a clear majority.

As expected, the service vote went heavily Liberal.

With 79,146 of the 122,614 eligible service votes cast, the breakdown in percentages was Liberals 63.6, Conservatives 23.5, New Democratic Party nine, Social Credit 2.5 and Creditiste one. The remaining fraction was distributed among candidates of various minor lebels.

The civilian vote was 40 per cent Liberal, 32 per cent Conservative, 18 per cent NDP, five per cent Creditiste, four per cent Social Credit and one per cent for others.

However, service support for the Liberals was down from the 70.5 per cent of 1963. The Conservatives that year got 20.5 per cent, NDP 4.12 and Social Credit 4.6.

The turnovers boost the Liberal party standing in Quebec to 56 out of 75 seats and drop Conservative strength there to eight. In Nova Scotia the Liberals now hold two seats, the Conservatives the other 10.

The turnout of eligible service voters was 64.5 per cent compared with a civilian turnout of about 74 per cent. In 1963 the service turnout was 68.2 per cent and the civilian 79.6.

On a provincial basis, Liberals won the service vote in every province but Saskatchewan, where the Conservatives posted a slight edge. Biggest Liberal runaway was in Newfoundland, where they had 1,342 of the 1,702 service votes cast.

B.C. Minister Hopes for Change In Ottawa Policy

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trade Minister Loffmark of British Columbia said Friday he hopes the resignation of Walter Gordon signals a change in the federal government's fiscal policy.

He said he hopes the resignation of the finance minister means there will be a change of heart on the part of the federal government about tight money. During the election campaign opposition spokesmen said the government planned to bring in tight money—restriction of credit.

Mr. Loffmark also hoped the government policy on subsidies to depressed areas and Dominion-Provincial taxation would change.
